Roosevelt Asks Speed On Draft But Senate Refuses to Limit Debate

Barkley Unable To Get Unanimous Consent to Cut Discussion Short

By John G. Norris.
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday called for immediate passage of the conscription bill, to prevent, he said, a serious delay in preparedness plans, but the Senate, in its third week of debate, gave no sign of heeding his words.

Majority Leader Barkley, after another day without action on a dozen or more pending amendments, revealed that he had tried to get a unanimous consent agreement for a time limitation on debate, but that two or three anti-draft members objected.

Opposition Senators denied they were filibustering, but contended that exhaustive and thorough consideration of such a far-reaching proposal is necessary.

Guard Bill Passed

Congress, however, did complete action on the National Guard mobilization bill and sent it to the White House. It would empower the President to call out some 395,000 Guardsmen and Army reservists for a year's service anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

Anticipating the approval of the draft and guard mobilization, the War Department announced that construction of housing facilities for 319,310 new troops is being started so as to have shelter available for them when needed.

The President's statement marked his first definite stand on the conscription bill. Previously, he had indorsed merely the principles of "selective service," a similar position to that taken by the Republican Presidential nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, in his acceptance speech a week ago.

Mr. Roosevelt directly opposed the pending Maloney amendment to the draft bill, which would postpone calling any men until January 1, during which time an intensive campaign would be launched for voluntary recruits in an effort to obtain enough men so that the compulsory system would be unnecessary.

Time Is Lacking

Speaking at his press conference, the President said Secretary of War Stimson had advised him that it would take a year to recruit voluntarily the 400,000 men required to fill up Army units. Another 400,000 men are needed for supporting units, and this would take another year, at the present high rate of recruiting, he said.

A year or two is too long, Mr. Roosevelt sadded.

The President's declaration is ex-

Defense Board Denies Business 'Strike,' Blames Delay on Congress

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Responsibility for delays in the defense program was pinned on Congress yesterday by the Defense Commission.

Pointing out that the three-ply bill covering excess profits, removal of Vinson-Trammell Act profit ceilings and permission to charge off plant costs in five years for tax purposes is not yet law, the commission declared that industrialists have not staged a sit-down strike on defense.

John D. Biggers, head of the commission's tax and finance committee, called on Capitol Hill for action on the omnibus tax bill and also on the $5,000,000,000 defense appropriation bill, needed to translate defense plans into signed contracts and signed contracts into actual war equipment.

Finance Plan Disclosed

While calling for Congressional action, the commission announced a share-the-risk plan for inducing private capital to join in building emergency arms plants and at the same time protecting the Government's purse.

The plan would be "one-legged," Biggers said, unless Congress passes the pending legislation.

Explaining that under the plan the Government would offer manufacturers contracts good as security for bank loans to finance factory construction, Biggers said there are three types of potential 'factories under the defense program.

First are the plants, such as for powder, that only the Government can use and thus the Government pays for from start to finish, hiring private firms to run them.

Second, Biggers said, are the plants built by private capital, but which would be too great a load on private industry if the Government did not reimburse the builder for the actual plant cost.

Third, he said, are the defense plants that could also be used for commercial purposes, where the only inducement offered by the Government is provision for five-year depreciation of the plant's cost for income tax purposes. Biggers said he hoped many such plants would be built with private capital.

How Plan Works

The two-way reimbursement, or share-the-risk, plan announced yesterday applies to the second type of plant, Biggers explained.

Here is how this financing plan would work:

If the Government decided there was need for an entirely new plant, say a $1,000,000 plant to produce airplane superchargers, it would negotiate with a manufacturer to do the building.

The Government, under a ruling Thursday of the Comptroller General, would reimburse the manufacturer for the plant at the rate of 20 per cent of its cost each year for five years, or $200,000 a year.

The manufacturer could present this bankable contract to a bank or the RFC in security for a loan. Minor legislation would be needed to authorize this, Commissioner Leon Henderson said.

The manufacturer then could

President Says U. S. Is Ready For 'Any Crisis'

His Program 'Will Enable Us to Absorb Shock,' He Asserts

President Roosevelt took the occasion yesterday of signing legislation that regulates investment trusts and investment counselors to tell the Nation it is ready for "the emergency" because of "our vigorous fight to put our domestic affairs on a true democratic basis."

Parrying critics who assert he has neglected domestic affairs, the President said that his domestic program "will enable us to absorb the shock of any crisis."

Emphasizing his concern for strictly domestic matters, the President reviewed with satisfaction the various laws passed since 1933 for the protection of investors.

The bills he signed yesterday were the Investment Company Act of 1940 and the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, which bring under Government regulation a $5,000,000,000 investment industry.

Holding Companies Condemned

The Chief Executive, third-term candidate, also used the occasion for a reminder of the sins of public utility holding companies in the 1920's. (Wendell L. Willkie was formerly president of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, a holding company.)

The President recalled that holding companies, which he described as "these corporate monstrosities," had been permitted to "pyramid" stockholdings before passage of regulatory laws in 1935 until "a few men at the top with only a microscopic investment of their own"

Missed the Pay Rolls

Six 'Wild West' Bandits Rob Mail Coach in Manhattan

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 23.—A half dozen bandits, performing in the best Wild West tradition, held up a New York Central mail car in uptown Manhattan early today and made a clean getaway.

Executing the robbery at the 225th Street Marble Hill station with clock-like precision, the gun-flourishing bad men made only one error—they robbed the right train, but on the wrong day, and got nothing but a sack of "valueless" letters, authorities said.

Postal Inspector William K. Halliday said the stolen bag contained only mail of a personal nature from Washington, including two large envelopes containing 23 registered letters and none of them official documents.

Tonight FBI agents, postal inspectors and city police were working on the case. They had one of the bandit's pistols, general descriptions of the men, and a report that they fled in a sedan with New Jersey license plates.

At irregular intervals, shipments of $100,000 are moved by New York Central trains from Grand Central Terminal to banks in Yonkers for factory pay rolls. The bandits, apparently, wrongly selected today as pay roll day.

Ten years ago a $104,000 pay roll was stolen in a holdup of an armored truck in Yonkers. Before this robbery, railroad men had been tipped that the Central's Albany local would be held up between Marble Hill and Riverdale stations. Instead, the bandits bided their time and staged the robbery in the Yonkers street.

Since then, each shipment of money has been convoyed from the

Roosevelt, Aides Turn Attention To British Leases

By Harold B. Hinton

With the appointment of the joint board on Canadian-American defense out of the way, President Roosevelt and his advisers are understood to be concentrating their attention on the question of leasing air and naval bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday that there was no news on this subject, but in Congressional circles an announcement is expected in the near future.

One proposal which is before the President, with some Congressional backing, would have for its ultimate objective a leasing deal which would cancel the entire British war debt to the United States.

It would involve writing down the present book value of the British debt, which runs to about $5,650,000,000 with all accrued interest, to something like $2,800,000,000, by granting the British a retroactive interest rate of .42 per cent instead of the 3.5 per cent now applicable to the British debt, and by applying against the funded principal all amounts paid, which total $1,469,000,000.

The Congressional backers of this proposal have as yet no assurances that the scheme has Administration interest, beyond the fact that Secretary of State Hull transmitted it personally to President Roosevelt some months ago.

They took heart, however, at

Montevideo Agrees To U. S. Plan, Insists Use Be Open to All

By John W. White

Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 23.—Uruguay has informed Washington of her willingness to cede naval and air bases for hemisphere defense similar to those being arranged in Canada and the Caribbean, provided they are made available for occupation by any American country or group of countries rather than exclusively by forces of the United States.

The Uruguayan proposal, in other words, contemplates establishment of Pan-American naval and air bases in preference to United States bases.

This proposal was made late in June to two secret emissaries from Washington sent to Montevideo to discuss details of the military and naval assistance that the United States was offering to Uruguay at that time in view of the discovery of a Nazi plot to seize this country as a German colony.

While the cruisers Quincy and Wichita were on their way to Montevideo, Washington sent Capt. W. O. Spears, U. S. N., and Col. Ralph Wooten, of the United States Army Air Corps, to Montevideo to confirm the offer of assistance Secretary of State Hull had made to Jose Richling, Urguayan Minister to the United States. Col. Wooten, formerly on General Staff duty in Washington, is now military attache at Santiago, Chile. Capt. Spears

Crew of Nine Killed in Army Bomber Crash

Pilot Holds Course Into Storm Cloud To Avoid Collision

By the Associated Press

Denver, Aug. 23.—An Army bomber—held to its course into a lightning-streaked cloudbank to avert possible collision with a sister-ship—carried nine men to death as it crashed and exploded on a prairie 23 miles southeast of Denver Tonight, nearly 24 hours after the craft disappeared on a routine bombing mission, Army officers picked through scattered bits of wreckage in attempt to determine the cause. Lightning was eliminated.

Two officers and seven enlisted men were aboard the twin-motored B-18-A Douglas medium bomber as it fell near the bombing range it had headed for after taking off from Lowry Field, Air Corps technical school, here. Its gasoline tanks, containing about 300 gallons, exploded as it struck the ground.

Japan Reported Warned by U. S. Of a Reckoning

Hongkong (Saturday), Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The United States has delivered a new written warning to Japan that a time of reckoning must come if Japan persists in her present course in East Asia, reliable informants said today.

[State Department spokesmen in Washington declined comment and would neither confirm nor deny the report.]

Japan has not replied to it and probably will not do so, the Hongkong informant said.

The document reviewed in broad outline the history of Japanese-American relations since the beginning of the Chinese-Japanese conflict in July, 1937, the informants said, and stressed the viewpoint of the United States Government with regard to the rights of Americans in China.

It went into detail with regard to hindrances to American trade and other American rights in China, and concluded with an assertion that these matters were not being forgotten and that a time certainly would come when a reckoning would be necessary.

Resignation Of Ortiz To Be Rejected

Argentine Factions Unite in Support Of Ill President

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Aug. 23.—All factions in Congress today decided to reject the resignation of ailing President Roberto M. Ortiz, easing a crisis over an army land purchase which threatened to split the country.

Rejection of the resignation and a vote of confidence for the President by 186 of the possible 190 votes in tomorrow's joint meeting of the Chamber and Senate were forecast tonight.

Liberals and conservatives, who have been bickering for more than ten years, were in agreement on a major issue for the first time in a decade.

Victor Guillot, Radical (Liberal) Party deputy, accused of profiting in the land purchase, committed suicide today before what amounted to a united front to reject the President's resignation was shaped. Guillot, whose expulsion from the Chamber had been asked by a congressional committee investigating the land deal, was found in his study with a bullet wound in his head. On his desk calendar, he had scribbled a note, "May God forgive me."

R. A. F. Pounds German Guns On Channel in Night Attack

British Artillery Hurls 'Few Rounds' At Foe Across Water

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 23.—New raids by British bombers on German artillery emplacements on the Nazi-held French coastline were signaled late tonight by the high barking of German antiaircraft batteries across the English Channel and the dull thunder of bombs.

Flashes from the Nazi guns could be seen first at 10 p. m. (4 p. m. E.S.T.) dotting the French side for miles. Occasionally there were more diffused flashes, apparently caused by the falling British bombs.

A single searchlight beam swept the sky midway along the French shore between Boulogne and Calais, but after a few minutes was cut off.

Dover Being Abandoned

The R. A. F.'s counterattack across the Channel was one of a series first launched last night when the Nazis opened up with their big guns, bombarding the English coast particularly in the region of Dover, which was heavily shelled.

Tonight, that old Channel town was being abandoned by thousands of its people as a front-line city in a new artillery war zone.

Britain itself was under widespread air attack tonight. Low-flying Nazi bombers were over southeast and southwest coast towns, and as far as Wales. One flight dropped 20 bombs on a southern residential district, causing some casualties.

German bombing planes made a prolonged raid over the industrial Midlands during the night, dropping both high explosive and incendiary bombs on one town. Between 200 and 300 incendiary bombs fell in a Midlands area.

In a southeast coast town, "several" were reported killed. Explosions in that area were said by residents to be "very much louder" than those customarily heard. Many homes were smashed or damaged.

Bombed also were a town in Hampshire and parts of the Isle of Wight. There, too, "some" fatalities were reported.

These night raids were on a scale apparently at least equal to those which during the day had occurred in far-separated areas in Britain. During the day-time attacks—which in turn had followed early morning smashes at three thickly-populated suburbs of London—bombs fell in at least three sections. Up to late afternoon four German planes had been reported shot down.

Towns Machine-Gunned

The air and war ministries officially accused the raiders of "indiscriminate machine-gun attacks" at several points in the industrial midlands and in one eastern district.

The new Dover artillery front was opened in a series of heavy bombardments that began Thursday night. The British disclosed that their own coastal guns had fired "a few rounds" back. They

Greece Will Fight Invader, Premier Says

Metaxas Asks Pacifist Ministers to Quit; More Troops Called

Athens, Greece, Aug. 23.—Premier Gen. John Metaxas told his ministers today he was resolved to put up a fight, if Greece were attacked, and will rely on the Greek people to resist with courage.

He notified his colleagues that if any of them disagreed with his policy they should resign. There were no resignations.

The 69-year-old premier, who also holds the ministry of foreign affairs, war, marine, air and education, described the situation as most critical and said it was conceivable that an attack might come at any hour.

"We shall stand," he is reported to have said and "we must be ready to face severe ordeals."

An indication of what sort of ordeals are before this country, even if war does not come, was shown today when fires broke out simultaneously in a uniform factory and a warehouse for uniforms, blankets and army boots at Dragetsona and in the immediate vicinity of the principal arsenal at Skaramaga, both lying between the Piraeus harbor district and Salamis Bay.

Candidate Urges Jackson Study Possible Breach Of Hatch Act

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Aug. 23.—With the approach of the November election, Wendell L. Willkie said today, "There is already definite proof that the Roosevelt Administration is planning again to pack the relief rolls, especially in those States which are politically doubtful."

At a press conference, the Republican Presidential nominee said relief rolls had increased in election years and declined in others and termed this "a very interesting and striking coincidence." He called on Attorney General Robert H. Jackson to determine whether current WPA activities involved any violation of the Hatch antipolitics law.

Later Willkie issued a statement saying:

"During the month of July of this year the relief rolls have increased by nearly 90,000 for the country as a whole over the month of June, despite increased industrial activity, increased employment and the fact the summer naturally would tend to reduce relief needs.

Might Swing 360,000 Votes

"It is generally conceded that one person placed on relief may affect as many as four votes, consequently, the addition of 90,000 during the month of July could mean a switch of 360,000 votes from the Republican to the Democratic column."

[Replying to Willkie, Howard O. Hunter, acting WPA commissioner, said in Washington that employment estimates submitted to Congress last April by Col. F. C. Harrington, commissioner, refuted the charge that the rolls had been increased for political reasons.

["As a matter of actual fact, the WPA employment decreased from June to July by approximately 100,000 persons," he said. Total WPA employment for the months preceding the election will be the smallest for the same period in the last three years, he added.]

Willkie gave these figures of relief rolls for the period from June to October of the following years:

1933—Relief rolls decreased 15.4 per cent and industrial employment declined 16.5 per cent.

1934—(Election year)—WPA increased 11.6 per cent.

1935—WPA decreased 9.6 per cent.

1936—(Election year)—WPA increased 14.4 per cent; industrial employment declined 13 per cent.

1937—WPA decreased 16.9 per cent; industrial employment declined 10.5 per cent.

1938—(Election year)—WPA increased 19.2 per cent; industrial employment declined 9 per cent.

1939—WPA decreased 25.5 per cent.

1940—(Election year)—WPA recipients increased by 90,000 from June to July.

Violated Act's Intent

(The nominee did not supply figures on industrial employment for the years 1934, 1935 or 1939.)

Willkie then read to his press conference this provision of the Hatch law:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to promise employment, position, work, compensation or other benefit provided for or made impossible in whole or in part by any act of Congress."

WPA increases in past election years, he said, "certainly have violated the spirit of the Hatch Act," which was enacted originally in 1939 and revised this year.

Willkie asserted at his press con-

New Curbs Urged On Election Funds

Senate Group Talks Of Plugging Holes In Present Law

By the Associated Press

Bipartisan recommendations were advanced yesterday in the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee for a ban on the solicitation of political contributions from employes by their employers or business superiors.

Chairman Gillette (Democrat), Iowa, said he was confident that the committee, which is charged with policing the coming election, would offer legislation to "try and plug up holes for abuses" in the present Federal Corrupt Practices Act.

Senator Reed (Republican), Kansas, sharply criticized employers or corporation executives who took up political collections among their workers, but said that it was extremely difficult to frame legislation that would cover these cases.

Raised Willkie Fund

Both Senators spoke as a result of testimony here this week by Carl B. Tuttle, Detroit store system executive, that he had raised $8,926 to aid the campaign of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, by a letter to Fellow S. S. Kresge & Co., executives in Michigan.

A transcript of the closed committee inquiry revealed that Senator Reed, after noting that he was a Republican and small businessman, told Tuttle that "it was extremely bad taste for the Kresge organization to do what you did."

Reed said that whenever an employer makes a request of an employe "it isn't just the same as though some outside party made the same request."

While absolving the Detroit business executive of coercive intentions, Senator Reed said an appeal by an employer for political contributions "opens a way that I think is not consistent with our ideas of a free electorate and it ought not to be done."

Praised For Frankness

Tuttle, the committee record disclosed, said that he had spent 41 years with the store system and "I have never coerced anone yet, I have never been coerced, and certainly I have never sandbagged anyone."

Chairman Gillette complimented Tuttle on his "frank" testimony but added that Congress was "trying to keep the electorate free . . . We know that in the past there have been methods used to influence voting, solicitation of campaign funds, and the casting of the vote of the individual that were subversive."

Political contributions by corporations are illegal under present Federal laws, but Senator Reed said the system employed by Tuttle "could be used to circumvent the law."

pected to spell the defeat of the Maloney amendment, though there were indications previously that it would not carry, as some of the opponents of the draft were against it.

Before approving the Guard mobilization bill, Congress eased its application somewhat, by permitting men below the rank of captain who have dependents to resign. Boys in the Guard under 18 would not be called, under another change.

Another proviso directs employers to rehire Guardsmen after their year of service. The Federal courts could direct the reemployment of men in case of unreasonable refusal to comply with this direction.

Units to Be Called

Tentative plans have been revealed by Army officials for calling out about 55,000 Guardsmen of the Forty-fourth, Thirtieth, Forty-fifth and Forty-first divisions, plus some coast defense units on September 15. Men from New York, New Jersey, Tennessee, the Carolinas, New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma, Colorado, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho, make up the four divisions.

Another 55,000 men will be mobilized, October 15, 65,000 on November 15 and 40,000 on December 15—all of the Guard—under these plans. There has been no indication as to which group will include the District of Columbia, Maryland or Virginia Guardsmen.

Yesterday's action on the Guard bill was the Senate approval by voice vote, of a joint conference committee's adjustment of differences between the Senate and House versions of the measure.

President Roosevelt spoke at considerable length on the question of conscription. Asked for his view on postponing compulsory service and trying volunteering first, he said he was absolutely opposed to this, as it would delay matters nearly a year.

It has been said that manpower without equipment is no use, he remarked. Soon, however, we can say that equipment without manpower is no use, the President added.

Soldiers Too Soft

He spoke of the Army maneuvers now nearing conclusion in northern New York and other parts of the country. They have shown that the men were willing, but that too many in this country were soft, Mr. Roosevelt stated, that a 15-mile march is a strain to some, while across the ocean some armies can march 30 miles a day.

Declaring there is plenty of rifles for training the men, the President said there were many other things they must learn, like operating "talky-walkies"—Army slang for portable field radios, plane detectors, and cooperation between air and ground troops. The latter, he added, is in a rudimentary state in our Army.

Proper training cannot be had, the President continued, until the Army can operate as a team with the ranks filled up and the men hardened. This would be like the late Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, he said, starting the football season with nine men instead of 44. Notre Dame wouldn't have had a winning team.

If the United States is invaded it wants to win, the Chief Executive added.

Calling for action now, Mr. Roosevelt said the bill had been introduced June 20 and Congress was still merely talking about it. If the measure does not pass in the next few weeks, there will be real delay, he concluded.

Opponents of the draft challenged the President's assertions. Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, declared that "such a revolutionary proposal" should have the fullest consideration. Senator Wiley (Republican), of Wisconsin, said that three more weeks' discussion in the Senate would not be too much.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, said the President's "effort to pretend that Congress has dawdled with conscription since June 20 is disingenuous." Few ever dreamed until August 1 that a peacetime draft would be seriously attempted, he added.

During the day's debate, Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, opposed the draft as "insult to our American boys" and charged a "war hysteria" is being promoted by big business to push it through.

ference that Pennsylvania offered an example of how WPA operated. In his later statement, he said that in 1936 Mr. Roosevelt carried only 20 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties, and that 19 of those 20 "received the highest relief disbursements of any counties in the State."

Willkie's office announced tonight "that due to an error in these figures supplied him by his research staff" the Pennsylvania example "is not correct."

Saying he might write Jackson about the WPA situation, Willkie asserted: "I am calling this publicly to the attention of the Attorney General in order that he may make an investigation to see whether there are any violations of the Hatch Act."

Willkie lunched during a busy day with Roman Catholic Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of New York, at the latter's request. The nominee said they had a stimulating and interesting conversation.

One reporter, saying he represented a Jewish newspaper, told Willkie that "anti-Semitic forces" in Yorkville (German) sector of New York had been campaigning for him. Willkie replied:

"If anybody is for me on the basis of any racial or religious prejudice, I repudiate them completely. I don't want that kind of people supporting me."

At Chicago, Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, said that sentiment against a third term might be "a determining factor in a lot of States" in the November election.

"The sentiment against a third term for President is stronger than most people realize," he asserted at a press conference.

Martin said Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, would "win by a substantial majority" if the election were tomorrow and that "Willkie sentiment will increase."

Stamp Plan Reduces U. S. Cotton Surplus

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 23.—Bombs over Europe help shatter America's cotton market, but a cotton stamp plan operating along the general lines of the Government's food stamp project is contributing to the restoration of a balanced cotton economy for the Nation.

The plan enables welfare clients, WPA employes and others of the country's poor to double their purchases of cotton goods, thereby reducing the American surplus that normally must be marketed abroad.

In less than six months Memphis, Tenn.; Springfield, Mass.; Minneapolis and St. Paul have adopted the plan. Los Angeles is working on it.

Both the cotton and food stamp plans are based on issuance of bonus stamps to low-income folk. Principal difference is that persons who receive cotton stamps get twice as much bonus. For each actual dollar the food stamp client spends, he receives 50 cents worth of free bonus stamps. For each cotton stamp dollar, the client receives a full dollar in free bonus stamps.

Cotton stamps are good at face value for purchase of specified cotton goods in any participating retail store or mail order house. Any person receiving public assistance may purchase them. The stamps may be used to purchase any product completely manufactured or processed from domestic cotton in the United States or its possessions. Under the food stamp plan only certain Government-specified surplus goods are obtainable for stamps.

The merchant sends stamps he has accepted to his bank, which sends them to a Government depository and receives in turn a check for the full amount.

The Government finances stamp redemption by diverting portions of appropriations previously spent in purchasing surplus supplies for direct distribution to relief clients. The ultimate objective of the stamp plan is to increase trade sufficiently to warrant the Government's retirement from surplus purchasing.

claim a tax exemption for the $200,000 received each year from the Government in amortization of the plant.

Should the manufacturer wish, he could buy the plant from the Government at a price fixed by a three-man board (one each to be appointed by the Government, the contractor and the senior judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the circuit wherein the facilities are located).

If he did not wish to buy it, the plant would revert to the Government.

Fair to Both

"Adoption of this plan assures," the commission said, in a statement, "that neither the private manufacturer nor the Government would assume in advance all the risk, nor subsequently reap as a profit the residual value."

Biggers said he believed the plan would tempt much idle private capital into financing construction of emergency defense plants. The RFC, he said, has approved its outlines.

Countering charges that defense program is bogging down, Biggers said that many manufacturers are going ahead on engineering work without waiting to see the new tax and amortization law in black and white.

"We don't think there is a strike of business," the former glass industry executive said.

At Chicago, Biggers asserted that 3,000 out of 4,500 planes on the first emergency defense program had already been contracted for with money made available July 1, 1940.

Six State Dept. OfficialsNominated For Promotions

The President yesterday sent the names of six State Department officers to the Senate for confirmation of promotions. Two were Washingtonians.

The list was Rudolf E. Schoenfeld, of Washington, now on duty in London, from Class 3 to Class 2; Herbert S. Bursley, of Washington, stationed at the State Department, from Class 4 to Class 3; A. M. Warren, of Ellicott City, Md., now in Europe, from Class 2 to Class 1; Edwin A. Plitt, of Baltimore, from Class 5 to Class 4; William E. Flournoy, jr., of Portsmouth, Va., from Class 8 to Class 7; Ellis O. Briggs, of Maine, from Class 4 to Class 3, and H. Freeman Matthews, of Baltimore, now in Vichy, France, Class 3 to Class 2.

Toscanini Denies He'll Live in Mexico

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Arturo Toscanini, orchestra conductor, told the National Broadcasting Co. tonight that he would remain in this country and had no intention of living in Mexico.

In Mexico City, the Department of the Interior announced that Toscanini had asked and received permission to live in Mexico.

Senate Action On NLR Act Held Unlikely

Amendments Appear Stymied, Says Thomas

By the Associated Press

House-approved amendments to the National Labor Relations Act probably will not be considered by the Senate, Chairman Thomas (Democrat), Utah, of the Senate Labor Committee said today.

Thomas said he did "not see how" it would be possible to obtain Senate action since his committee had failed to accept a suggestion for limiting discussion on the subject.

He said he had told his colleagues that an early report to the Senate would be possible if the committee would lay aside amendments regarding procedure and deal only with other subjects, such as reorganization of the Labor Board, but that they "didn't think the idea was a good one."

In submitting this suggestion Thomas called attention to what he said was an "extremely harsh campaign" by the United States Chamber of Commerce to discharge the committee and bring the amendments directly before the Senate.

He said the chamber had sent a letter to 12,000 members referring to "suppressive tactics being used to block a Senate vote" and asking businessmen to write members of Congress in an effort to have the committee discharged.

During the day, the labor law committee of the National Lawyers Guild expressed opposition to amendment of the present act.

"Of all the attacks which have been made on the National Labor Relations Act," the committee said in a statement, "the recent allegation that it will hamper the defense program is certainly the most baseless. It involves a deliberate attempt to use the natural desire for adequate defense as a vehicle for the scuttling of a law which is vitally necessary for the success of any defense program."

Political Arena

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 23.—In the second Administration retort to the acceptance speech of Wendell Willkie, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt tonight assailed the G. O. P. standard bearer for "utter inability to grasp the fundamental issues of national preparedness."

McNUTT

McNutt, keynoting the Connecticut State Democratic convention, credited President Roosevelt for saving the country from a moral and physical collapse comparable to that of France, for which, he said, Republican policies of the 1920's had paved the way.

"It was," he declared, "a subtle poisoning of the national life. It was an attitude of helplessness . . . of futility and a feeling of impotency.

"That is why the richest nation on earth in 1932 was prostrate after 12 years of economic mismanagement and political blundering. We had no national defense. We were drunk with the heady wine of a booming roaring stock market. The national charter was slowly degenerating.

"But America was saved. It was saved by the Democratic Party, by Democratic leadership, and by a courageous, far-seeing Democrat, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

McNutt brought the delegates to their feet, cheering, with a challenge to debate the issues with Willkie. "I'll take him on. I've done it before," he said.

The nominations of Claude R. Wickard, of Indiana, to be Secretary of Agriculture, and that of Paul H. Appleby, of Maryland, to be Undersecretary of Agriculture, were confirmed by voice vote without an objection in the Senate yesterday.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP).—The Massachusetts Superior Court was asked today to bar President Roosevelt's name from the Presidential election ballot in this State.

The request came from Joseph Ferreira, New Bedford attorney, who contended that an "unwritten law," which he said had been promulgated against a third term, "is about to be violated" by the President.

Ferreira, in a petition for a writ of mandamus filed in Bristol County Superior Court, cited the refusal of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe as grounds for his claim that such a law was established.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., has become a temporary volunteer worker for the reelection of his father, Democratic National Headquarters disclosed today.

A law student, young Roosevelt next month is scheduled to take his bar examinations, and if he passes them has a job waiting for him in the law office of Eugene L. Garey, self-described "ardent anti-New Dealer."

Edward J. Flynn, national Democratic chairman, said young Roosevelt had been "[illegible] young Democrats and college men and helping out generally."

Gallup Poll

82% of Public Backs Program To Help Youth

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 23.—One of the measures the Roosevelt Administration may point to with pride in the coming campaign, it appears today, will be the NYA—the National Youth Administration.

DR. GALLUP

Most of the heavy firing in the campaign will center about other issues, to be sure—foreign policy, the spending program and the third term—but a Nation-wide study by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates that the youth administration has the approval of more than eight persons in every nine who are familiar with it.

In its five years of operation the NYA's chief function has been to provide part-time jobs for some of the high school and college students who would otherwise have been unable to continue classes, and would consequently have been turned into an already overflowing labor market.

4 to 1 in Favor

Even among those not familiar with the NYA itself, the Institute survey shows, sentiment is made than four to one for a program similiar to NYA's "out-of-school" projects, which provide employment for boys and girls, and young men and women, who have finished school but are without jobs.

Approximately one person in three, the survey found, gave definite indications of his familiarity with NYA. These persons were asked:

"Do you think the NYA should be continued as a regular department of the Government?"

Their answers were:

Should be continued as regular part	82%
Should not be continued	10
No opinion or undecided	8

Whether or not to continue the NYA has been a question that has come before Congress every year since the program was first launched, back in 1935. This year Congress extended NYA's life until July, 1941, an appropriated about $95,000,000 for its support. In a typical month last year the youth administration reported 314,310 young people receiving aid in the high school program, 120,000 in colleges and universities, and 312,000 in out-of-school projects, making a total of 746,310.

CCC Also Favored

Like the Civilian Conservation Corps, the National Youth Administration has apparently won an accepted place in the machinery of government, the survey indicates. Institute surveys have also shown that approximately four voters in every five think the CCC should be made permanent.

Further evidence of the way the public in general has come to support special Government assistance to unemployed youth is shown by the results of the following question:

"Would you favor a special Government program to provide part-time work and training for young people who have left school and are not able to find work?"

YES	82%
NO	11
No opinion or undecided	7

Support for such a Government program comes from every section of the country and all income levels, the survey indicates:

	Favor Program	Opp. Program	No Opin.
New England
Mid-Atlantic	83%	11%	6%
East Central	84	10	6
West Central	78	13	9
South	82	8	10
West	82	14	4

TOMORROW—A new State-by-State Gallup poll on Roosevelt and Willkie.

Poll Shows Press 66% for Willkie, 20% for Roosevelt

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Editor and Publisher today printed a national table of the political preferences of 1,030 daily newspapers in the United States which showed 683 (66.4 per cent) of them had declared for Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee. The canvass of August 21 shows 208 (20.9 per cent) are for President Roosevelt.

A condensed table of the '32, '36 and 40 preferences as compiled by the trade publication follows:

	Dem.	Rep.	Neither.
1932	399	537	59
1936	356	623	52

Miss Perkins Reports 1940 High in Jobs

130,000 Created Between Mid-June And Mid-July

By the Associated Press

Secretary Perkins said yesterday that continued stimulation of industry by defense work and further gains in construction helped create 130,000 jobs between mid-June and mid-July, raising the number of persons employed to a new high for 1940.

Miss Perkins placed the number at work during July in nonagricultural industries at 35,600,000, or about 1,000,000 more than in the same period last year.

Defense Work Adds 77,000

She said that private and public construction had added 75,000 workers, a figure which was offset by a similar decline in wholesale and retail trade employment.

However, around 77,000 new jobs were said to have been added in industries aided directly or indirectly by the defense program. These included:

Aircraft, 7,000; shipbuilding, 4,700; engine manufacture, 3,100; machine tools, 1,800, and aluminum manufactures and explosives, 1,000.

Others Stimulated

Other manufacturing industries stimulated by Government or war orders, she said, were:

Iron and steel, 20,000; woolen and worsted goods, 14,500; shoes, 13,800; men's clothing, 8,600, and cotton goods, 5,800.

The automobile industry showed a decline of 90,000 workers due to the changeover to new models but larger than seasonal gains were reported for the slaughtering and meat-packing, radio and phonograph, and book and job printing industries.

Despite the increase in factory employment, weekly pay rolls declined about $2,900,000 or 1.5 per cent. Miss Perkins said pay rolls normally were reduced during the month due to shutdowns for inventory and the July 4 holiday.

could control far-flung operating companies.

Looking to the future, the President declared, "We will continue to push our program for the protection of the investor on all fronts because we are convinced it is essential soundness.

"Have Come a Long Way"

The President expressed pleasure that "businessmen have at last come to recognize that it is this Administration's purpose to aid the honest business man."

We have come a long way, he declared, since "the bleak days of 1929."

At the same time, the President signed legislation repealing the clause which requires a 20-day waiting period between registration of a security with the Securities and Exchange Commission and permission to sell it.

In this connection the commission yesterday issued a statement of policy to be followed under the repealer. It included the following points:

Certain Conditions

The SEC's policy will be to accelerate the effective date of registration statements, subject to certain conditions.

These conditions will be influenced by the adequacy of disclosure and compliance with the law's requirements, the advisability of allowing a speed-up of important amendments to applications filed after the initial filing date, and the nature of any other data relative to the application which is available for cross-checking.

The legislation which became law yesterday was worked out by the investment industry and the SEC in cooperation, at the original request of the industry. The President in his statement noted this fact with pleasure and called it "most commendable."

Army Will Enlarge Two Nearby Posts

Funds Allocated For Fort Meade And Fort Belvoir

The War Department announced yesterday that two nearby posts are to be enlarged to care for the expanding Army contemplated under the conscription program.

Funds have been allocated, it was said, to start construction at Fort George G. Meade, Md., and Fort Belvoir, Va., as part of a program to provide housing facilities for 319,310 men at 34 posts throughout the country.

Fort Meade will become a "recruit reception center," capable of handling 1,500 draftees or volunteers at a time, under a program which involves the building of some 30 barracks, mess halls, officers quarters, hospital facilities and other necessary structures. About $370,000 will be spent at the post on temporary construction.

$150,000 at Fort Belvoir

Similar buildings will be erected at Fort Belvoir to house 420 engineer troops. Total cost of the work at the Virginia post may run close to $150,000, with initial expenditures about $60,000, it was learned.

In the South, the War Department said, tent camps will be used for housing the troops. Camps for nine National Guard divisions are projected at Fort Clark, Tex.; Fort McClellan, Ala.; Camp Jackson, S. C.; Fort Sill, Okla.; Camp Robinson, Ark.; Camp Blanding, Fla., and Camp Shelby, Miss. The latter two will have two divisions each.

Housing for two other National Guard divisions are to be provided at Falmouth, Mass., and Fort Dix, N. J. Facilities for other Guard and Army units are provided at other posts.

Funds are now available, it was said, only for starting work on the new projects, clearing sites, draining land, providing hospitalization and extending sewerage, heat, and power facilities.

"The full construction program to make them habitable," the War Department announcement said, "must wait further appropriations which cannot be requested until full authority for calling the National Guard and legislation for selective service have been enacted."

G.O.P. Chief Bars 'Rubber Stamp' In Congress

Chicago, Aug. 23.—No attempt will be made to induce Republican members of Congress to adopt the position of the Republican candidate for President on conscription, or any other issue, Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, said in an interview here tonight.

Representative Martin indicated that he did not believe it was inconsistent for a Republican Congressman to advocate the election of Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican Presidential nominee, on the one hand and to vote in Congress against policies advocated by the candidate, on the other hand.

"We leave it up to the individual Congressman to do what his constituents want," Mr. Martin said. "The Republican Party does not want rubber-stamp Congressmen."

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Lord, 91, Longtime Resident

Funeral services for Mrs. Delphine Carusi Lord, 91, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Lord Hunter, 3900 Northampton street northwest. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Lord, who would have been 92 Tuesday, died Thursday. She was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and had lived in Washington since childhood. She was married in 1865 to William E. Lord, who died in 1874.

For more than 40 years Mrs. Lord was a member of the Eastern Presbyterian Church. She had made her home with her daughter for the past several years. Surviving, besides Mrs. Hunter, are five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Nine Die in Crash Of Army Bomber

At the controls was Second Lieut. Wilbur A. Champagne, 34.

Second Lieut. Blair M. Sorensen, copilot of the second plane, said Lieut. Champagne radioed that he could not see the lights of the companion bomber and therefore was following the Army practice in such a situation—flying straight ahead.

That took him into the dense cloud.

Fifteen practice bombs carried by the plane were found scattered among the wreckage—none exploded.

The crash occurred during one of six regular daily bombing flights from the school, now operating night and day to train men in the Air Corps expansion program.

The second bomber followed the first plane into the cloud, but skirted the worst of it. The first ship disappeared.

Noticed a Flash

"I noticed a big flash, but there was quite a bit of lightning," Lieut. Sorrensen said, "so we thought that was what it was. The other ship didn't show up so we went on and dropped the rest of our bombs.

"We thought they had been forced out of the area by the wind."

When the bomber failed to return Capt. Frederick L. Anderson, jr., and First Lieut. Robert F. Fulton were sent by plane to search for it. Using flares, they located the wreckage and radioed field headquarters. A ground crew reached it at 5 a. m.

Old Selznick Company Now Just Gone With the Wind

Corporation Made So Much From G.W.T.W. That It's Decided to Take Profit and Disband; Head Forms New Firm

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 23.—David O. Selznick, who produced "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca," announced today that those two pictures had made so much money that the stockholders, at a meeting Thursday, had voted unanimously to dissolve the company, Selznick International Pictures, Inc., and take what they had coming to them.

This unusual procedure, the liquidation of a successful corporation, he said, was decided upon because the motion-picture business is uncertain at best and has been made more so by the European war.

Selznick said today he would like to take his money and "disappear for two or three years" along with the other stockholders, but he is obligated to deliver two more pictures for release through United Artists. To do this, he had a new company incorporated last week, David O. Selznick Productions, Inc.

In addition to the commitment to deliver two more pictures the new company has taken over the old company's contracts with individual directors and players, among whom are Vivien Leigh, Ingrid Bergman, Joan Fontaine, Alfred Hitchcock, Robert Stevenson, Alan Maraha and Hattie McDaniel. The physical assets of Selznick International will be offered for sale. These include cameras, lighting equipment, wardrobe, props, stories and other motion-picture paraphernalia.

Selznick said that at the meeting he agreed that it would be a good time to withdraw. Seldom was a company in better shape, according to his description of its finances at the cessation of business. There are no debts of any kind, he said. All invested capital has been returned with yearly interest of 6 per cent. Besides all the stockholders getting their share, Selznick has enough to finance the new company all by himself.

"I expect to retain 100 per cent of the new company," he said simply.

Selznick International was formed five years ago. The principal stockholders were John Hay Whitney, C. V. Whitney, Myron Selznick, brother of David; Mrs. Charles S. Payson, Norma Shearer, Robert Lehman and John Hertz.

The company made nine pictures. These pictures made money in varying amounts, but it was invariably put back into making more pictures. The entire subscribed investment of the stockholders was $2,900,000. Beyond this the company's financing was done through bank loans, all of which have now been repaid in full.

Then the company made "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca" and the money rolled in. It still is rolling in.

U. S. to Hear Railroad Pay Boost Proposal

A minimum wage proposal for the Nation's railroads, calculated to give more than 60,000 workers pay increases totaling about $7,180,000 a year, will be submitted to a hearing September 23 before Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator.

The proposal has been made by a majority of the railroad carrier industry committee. Under it the hourly pay minimum would be 36 cents for trunk line railroads and 35 cents for short line roads.

The committee majority comprised four members representing the public and four representing the employers. The minority, comprising labor's four representatives, held out for a 40-cent minimum.

After the hearing, the administrator may approve or disapprove the majority recommendation.

Miss Margaret Gladys Richardson, of New York, and Thomas Arthur Krock, son of Arthur B. Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, were married Thursday in Milford, N. H., the Associated Press reported.

The civil ceremony was performed by Judge Benjamin F. Prescott, at the home of the bride's mother.

Drive on Vagrants In Silver Spring Traps D. C. Man

Joseph Martin, 64, of Washington, was the first victim in a drive inaugurated by Montgomery County police against vagrants and panhandlers in the Silver Spring area.

Martin, arrested by County Policemen Frank Lane and John Higdon, denied having been arrested in the county before, but when shown records of the Bethesda police court that he had been convicted twice for vagrancy and released on probation, he admitted the convictions.

Martin was sentenced to serve one year by Judge Ralph G. Shure in Silver Spring Police Court.

Flynn Cheered By Democratic Leaders' Reports

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Democratic leaders from seven Midwestern States gave National Chairman Edward J. Flynn optimistic reports today of the progress of the Roosevelt campaign in their areas.

Delegations representing Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa conferred with Flynn at luncheon.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, of Chicago, national committeeman from Illinois, said his visit here was "a real eyeopener on organization ideas."

"I'm satisfied," he said, "that the people of Illinois, after weighing the issues, will vote intelligently on election day, and, of course, that means for Roosevelt."

British Agree To Let Some Oil Into Spain

Madrid Said to Have Promised It Won't Seep Into Germany

By Thomas J. Hamilton

Copyright by New York Times

Madrid, August 23.—Virtual agreement has been reached between Spain and Great Britain whereby Spain will comply with the regulations of the British blockade and be permitted to resume importing gasoline in October, it was learned today. Six Spanish oil tankers which had been held up at Barcelona, left yesterday for the United States.

The negotiations centered around the question of whether any gasoline was leaking through to the Axis powers from Spain, and it may be assumed that the Spaniards have given satisfactory assurances on this point to Mark Turner, the official of the British ministry for economic warfare, who came here several weeks ago to investigate the situation.

U. S. Stand a Factor

The United States has been cooperating with the British, although so far as is known here, the American ban on the export of gasoline and lubricating oil for airplanes, still holds.

Lack of success, so far, for Germany's well-advertised offensive against Britain is one factor in Spain's attitude. But of more importance is the attitude of the United States. The virtual pooling of the military forces of the United States and Canada created a deep impression, and the Spaniards are beginning to believe that the United States is sure to come in. This, they know, would mean a long war, one which would be beyond Spain's resources. At the same time they feel the pressing need of American credits.

The reinstatement of American control over the Spanish telephone system this week would have been impossible but for Spain's shortage of food and raw materials, but it is also realized here that American goods cannot reach here without British permit.

Vatican's Views Differ

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 23.—There are strong reports here tonight that Spain is close to entering the war on the side of the Axis powers. These reports were circulating even before the announcement that six reserve classes are being called up in Spain. The reports are particularly insistent in Vatican quarters where close contact is being maintained with Madrid.

Friend of Nazi Severs All Ties With Oil Firm

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Capt. Torkild Rieber, the Norwegian immigrant who rose in the United States to a position making him one of the world's leading oil men, severed all his 35-year-old connections with Texas Corporation today.

He resigned as a director of Texas Corporation and the subsidiary, Texas Co., and the board of directors announced:

"This marks a complete retirement of Capt. Rieber from the affairs of the organization."

Rieber resigned last week as chairman of the board after disclosures of his association with Gerhardt Westrick, Nazi trade envoy, who is on his way back to Germany by way of Russia.

ADA Authorizes 313 Dwellings On Alabama Ave.

The Alley Dwelling Authority announced yesterday it has approved a bid of $1,198,000 to construct 313 dwellings for colored occupancy in the Frederick Douglass Dwellings Project at Alabama avenue and Twenty-first street southeast.

Jeffress-Dyer, Inc., who submitted the bid, will be notified to begin work in approximately ten days. A total of 300 days will be allowed to complete the project.

Located on high, rolling land, the site of the project affords a distant view of the Potomac River. The houses will be one-family dwellings.

Myron C. Taylor Is on Way Home

Rome, Aug. 23 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Vatican, left by plane today for a visit to the United States during which, his associates said, he would confer with the President on whether he should return to his post.

Taylor was accompanied by his wife and a nurse. He has been convalescing from an operation, and friends have said his health might prevent his return.

He was received in a farewell audience by Pope Pius XII Tuesday.

Hopkins Plans To Quit Post Before Sept. 2

Reports Circulated Freely He Would Do So Because of Health

By the Associated Press

Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins plans to resign from the Cabinet shortly before Labor Day, it was learned last night.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said that a statement probably would be issued today when he was asked to comment on the reported resignation.

Hopkins has been ill for more than a year. Reports have circulated frequently that he planned to resign because his health would not permit him to assume active duties, but he never has carried through that intention.

It was learned that his new decision is based on a desire to leave office before the Presidential campaign enters its final stages. This, is the reason why he has set Labor Day as the deadline.

President's Confidante

He was nominated for the Cabinet post on December 23, 1938, to succeed Daniel Roper, and confirmed by the Senate January 23, 1939. Previously, he had been the Roosevelt Administration's relief administrator since 1933.

A close friend and confidante of President Roosevelt, Hopkins has been living at the White House for nearly a year, together with his young daughter, Diana.

Several persons have been mentioned in recent weeks as possible successors to Hopkins as commerce secretary, including former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson. Johnson resigned from the "little cabinet" recently in order to permit War Secretary Henry L. Stimson, Republican, named by Mr. Roosevelt in creating the "national solidarity" cabinet, to bring in his own first assistant, Robert P. Patterson, of New York.

Johnson was offered the post of administrative assistant to the President, to serve as Mr. Roosevelt's "eyes and ears" in the defense program, but rejected it. A few days ago he was offered another post which he said was so "flattering" that he could not turn it down without serious consideration. Some observers believed it might be the Commerce secretaryship.

McNutt Also Mentioned

There also have been rumors that Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt might be named secretary, so he could take an active part in the campaign. Some observers believe McNutt feels he cannot play an active political part in his present post.

It was recalled that McNutt actively fought nomination of himself for the Vice Presidency at last month's Democratic convention in view of Mr. Roosevelt's support of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for the selection. Some observers feel that the Cabinet appointment might go to McNutt as a reward for his action.

There were some reports Hopkins might take part in Mr. Roosevelt's campaign for reelection, and the close friendship between the two men appeared to give credence to the reports.

station to the bank by a police machine-gun squad.

In today's holdup, the bandits boarded the train when it halted at 2 a. m. (E. S. T.) at the near-deserted station. Three men ran from the shadows to the edge of a stone embankment alongside the mail car, pushed a cleated gangplank into the open door of the car and entered with drawn guns.

Head Clerk Louis Weiller and his assistant, Brooks Hall, said, "They were on us before we could get our guns out."

Clerks Manacled

"The leader told us to turn our backs and we complied," said Weiller. "The other fellow pulled out two sets of handcuffs and, while the leader covered us with a shotgun, his companion manacled me to a leg of the mail table, and Hall to an iron upright in the end of the car. . . . The men kept asking for the pouch for Yonkers."

When the bandits found the Yonkers mail bag, they dropped from the car after disarming the clerks.

At the rear of the train, three other bandits had kept the conductor, trainman and a passenger covered. At signal, they ordered Joseph Wagman, the conductor, to give the "go ahead" signal. He yanked the signal cord once.

"Give it another yank," growled the signal-wise bandit. Wagman obeyed. While the train pulled 1,000 feet down teh track before halting again, the robbers fled in a waiting automobile.

Several hours later a successful robbery was staged in a mid-Manhattan loft building elevator. Two gunmen took a $3,600 pay roll from a bookkeeper for a coat manufacturer.

Retired English Vicar To Preach at Trinity

The Rev. Alexander Sharpe, of Plymouth, England, will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Trinity Episcopal Church, Piney Branch road and Dahlia street northwest.

Scottish born, the clergyman was educated in Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Canada, where he received his B. A. and M. A. degrees. He retired in 1938 as vicar of St. Barnabas' Church, Plymouth. In the summer of 1924 he was in charge of St. Paul's, the American Episcopal Church in Rome, Italy.

He recently has been touring England and its colonies and this country.

Tragedy's Aftermath

Tourist 'Booster' Owes Job To Shawl Worn by Lincoln

BETTY PERRIN—SHE HAS UNUSUAL JOB

By Scott Hart

How the gray, bloodstained shawl which covered the prostrate form of Abraham Lincoln just after the assassination could result in landing someone a job as a California tourist booster is strange, but so.

Mrs. Lilo McMullin Perrin, jr., formerly of Washington, is now director of the Stockton (Calif.) Tourist and Convention Bureau. She is probably the only woman occupying such a posititon. She never made any attempt to mold a career along this line.

She simply was in Stockton managing an "heirloom dress parade," a showing of antiques, interesting Americana. Meanwhile, the Stockton Tourist and Convention Bureau wasn't doing so well. Mrs. Perrin's show was doing well.

Its success was greatly attributable to the shawl Lincoln had worn to Ford's Theater the night of April 14, 1865, when he was shot. Bloodstains are still on the shawl. Californians come in droves to see it. A Civil War Union veteran asked that the glass container be opened, so that he could touch the shawl. He did, and, overcome with emotion, fainted. Interest mounted. The show thrived.

The citizens regarded their failing Tourist and Convention Bureau. They thought Mrs. Perrin should run it. She has ever since, successfully. The shawl had come down to her as a family heirloom. Her great uncle, A. M. Williamson, had been tutor at the White House in the Lincoln Administration.

Mrs. Perrin is at the Hotel Willard attending the International Association Convention Bureaus convention. The shawl is in a safety deposit vault.

Uruguay to Cede Defense Bases

flew all the way from the United States and back.

Richling reported to the Uruguayan foreign minister that Mr. Hull told him the two officers were authorized to work out details of military, naval and air cooperation for defense of Uurguay if needed. The Uruguayan government appointed a special military commission to discuss these matters with them.

The minister reported that Washington was prepared to send landing forces, if necessary, also that while the cruisers were reported on an informal visit, they would be authorized to remain in Montevideo beyond the period announced if the Uruguayan government so desired. The Quincy was held over several days to await the Wichita's arrival.

In July Richling reported failure of his attempt to float a loan of $5,000,000 for the purchase of badly needed armaments. He said the Guarantee Trust Co. informed him it could not handle the loan but referred him to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which also was unable to handle it. The envoy reported that the State Department told him President Roosevelt was giving personal attention to the effort to have statutes of the Export-Import Bank altered to permit loans to South American countries for purchase of arms.

Turns to Spain

In view of the failure to get the loan in the United States, Uruguay is now negotiating with Spain for $5,000,000 worth of artillery and antiaircraft guns on a barter arrangement in exchange for Uruguayan products that Spain needs.

In their conferences here, Capt. Spears and Col. Wooten, after explaining to the special Uruguayan military mission how far the United States Government was ready to go in helping defend Uruguay against any present or future danger, informally approached the question of establishment of United States naval and air bases in Uruguay to facilitate such cooperation.

The Uruguayan committee, which was daily in close contact with the minister of defense, rejected the idea, but presented a counterproposal in the form of a private suggestion that Uruguay was willing for naval and air bases to be established for the use of any countries belonging to the Pan American Union.

Never Formally Negotiated

These conversations never reached the status of formal negotiations. They were intended merely to sound out the Uruguayan government preparatory to more formal diplomatic conversations if Uruguay was receptive.

It is understood the subject has been dropped since the United States found the Uruguyan proposal unacceptable. It seems probable that the question may be reopened soon after the arrival next week of Gen. Alfredo R. Campos, former minister of defense, who attended the Havana conference.

A large group of newspaper editors and other leaders of public opinion strongly favors cession of naval and air bases for exclusive use of the United States. They plan to begin a public campaign to that end in the near future.

One definite proposal put forward by Capt. Spears and Col. Wooten was for establishment of direct contact between the United States and Uruguayan general staffs. It is understood here this contact, looking toward future possible cooperation of the military forces of the two countries, was established while Gen. Campos was in Washington, where he was reported to have spent five days in close contact with high military authorities.

Guarantees Desired

It is explained that Uruguay's preference for Pan-American bases is due to a desire to surround the cession with the most secure possible guarantees against any possible political or even military domination of Uruguay by the United States if at some time in the future the present good neighbor policy should be dropped in favor of some more aggressive attitude. Uruguayan authorities and people profess the greatest respect and admiration for the United States Government as now constituted, but they argue that there is no guarantee that the good neighbor policy is a permanent institution.

Government officials believe any bases established in Uruguay or elsewhere in South America should be put under the same sort of collective administration as the Havana Conference agreed upon for any mandates that may eventually be established over European possessions on this side of the Atlantic.

As in the case of these mandates, it is understood Pan-American bases would be open to unilateral administration by the United States if other republics were not interested.

It is believed here that Uruguay is a logical location for bases in the South Atlantic to complement those being established in Canada and the Caribbean since such bases would control the rich commerce of Southern Brazil and the entire River Plate basin, including Argentina, Paraguay, Eastern Bolivia and Western Brazil. These bases, it is argued, would be a South American Gibraltar at the mouth of the River Plate which not only could serve for the defense of the southern part of the continent but also control one of the most important trade routes to European countries that might be attacking countries in the Western Hemisphere.

War Red Tape No Travel Bar, Says Canadian

Here for Convention, Tourist Aide Also Denies Rationing

T. H. R. McNally, of the Toronto Convention and Tourist Association, denied here yesterday that Canadians are on food rationing or that rep tape impedes Canadian travel.

He urged against any border shyness that might have arisen since Canada went to war. Canada, he said, welcomes American visitors as much now as it ever did. Only simple papers are required to cross the border, he said.

McNally is attending the International Association of Convention Bureaus' twenty-eighth annual convention at the Willard Hotel.

He wanted it known that American game hunters still are welcome in Canada and can bring their shooting equipment upon application. He said the Dominion understandably is alert to the danger of persons entering the country with firearms, but that bona-fide hunters who make official application will experience no difficulties.

There was something else tourists can bear in mind, he said—that much of the money they spend in Canada will come back here to pay for Canadian war orders.

Election of officers and reports of committees are the features of today's concluding session at 9 a. m. at the Willard Hotel.

McCoach Favors D. C. Centralized Ambulance Plan

Commissioner David McCoach, jr., yesterday agreed "in principle" with proposals of Health Officer Ruhland to establish a centralized ambulance control department under the District government.

The proposals, submitted for Commissioners' consideration at yesterday's board meeting, were held in abeyance until the return Monday of Commissioner Young.

Col. McCoach said he had not read the Ruhland report, but he believed in a centralized control for this service.

Under the health officer's proposals, an agency under the District would be set up to provide a 24-hour ambulance service with a "dispatcher" who would handle all incoming calls and refer these to the nearest ambulance station.

Tobey Demands Probe of FCC

Senator Tobey (Republican), New Hampshire, said yesterday he had received information that "some members of the Federal Communications Commission have in the past received perquisites, favors or gifts" from broadcasters.

He made public a letter to members of the commission inquiring whether they had received such favors and at the same time introduced a resolution calling for a Senate investigation of the FCC's administration of the Communications Act and of possible monopoly in the radio equipment industry.

Four-Fifths of a Pint Liquor Sales Refused

The Treasury refused yesterday to permit the sale of liquor in four-fifths of a pint bottles, but distillers indicated they might appeal to the cours.

Officials said that apparently the distillers wanted to substitute four-fifths pint for a full pint in order to sell it, with the new defense taxes, at about the same price charged for a full pint before the taxes became effective.

D. C. Guard Units Return Today

By Marshall Andrews

Post Staff Writer

Northumberland, Pa., Aug. 23.—Only a night from home, Washington's 260th Coast Artillery pitched its pup tents in a clover field here tonight, ready to pull out on the last leg of its three-day journey at dawn tomorrow.

The regiment tonight received word of the passage of the National Guard bill calmly enough. It was expected, and it was accepted by men whose minds already were made up to the course they intend to pursue.

Col. Walter W. Burns, commanding, said his regiment will be affected not more than 5 per cent by the bill's discharge-for-dependency clause. Men with dependents already have been released in large measure, he said.

Though it was the first of hte District's Guard outfits to leave its camp in the northern New York maneuver area, the 260th will be last to arrive in Washington. Its speed on the road is held down to that of its slowest units, the 12-ton prime movers with their 8-ton guns.

In its trucks were a score of men who had only five hours sleep in the 56 hours before arriving here. Those men, the detail laying and taking up the wire for the regiment's telephone communications in the field under Lieut. Howell A. Nash, began removing the 260th's 98 miles of line as soon as the "war" ended at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

Before they had finished that job, the regiment was ordered to take up also 35 miles of wire belonging to other antiaircraft regiments. The wire detail, before it finished its task at Heuvelton and Richville, had taken up, coiled and stored in trucks 133 miles of line.

It worked without sleep or rest from the time it went on duty Wednesday morning, all day Wednesday and all day Thursday until 5 p. m.

The detail reached the bivouac at Cortland this morning at 2. Three hours later, at 5 a. m., it was routed out with the rest, to begin the 200-mile drive to Northumberland.

Shortly after dawn today, the first battalion, 104th Quartermaster Regiment, passed through Cortland on its way home. Three hours later, the 104th Ordnance Company refueled there and took up the trail south.

All three units, antiaircraft, quartermaster and ordnance, should be in Washington tomorrow. Immediately after arrival they will be paid and, when their equipment is unloaded and stored, will be mustered out. When they will be recalled again for a year's service is up to the War Department.

Tumultuous Action Marks Progress Of New 'Sea Hawk,' at the Earle

Errol Flynn Has Stellar Role Among Cast of Notables; Brief Stage Revue

"THE SEA HAWK." Warner Brothers picturization of a screen play by Howard Koch and Seton I. Miller, starring Errol Flynn, with Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Flora Robson, Donald Crisp, Alan Hale, Henry Daniell, Una O'Connor, James Stephenson, Gilbert Roland, William Lundigan, Julien Mitchell, Montague Love, J. M. Kerrigan, David Bruce, Clifford Brooke, Clyde Cook, Fritz Leiber, Elias Irving, Francis McDonald and Pedro de Cordoba. Directed by Michael Curtiz. At the Earle Theater.

Preserving all of the qualities of swashbuckling romance, thunderous action and high adventure that made its silent edition, in 1924, one of the fabulous boxoffice attractions of its time, the Warner Brothers' 1940 version of "The Sea Hawk," presented yesterday for the first time on a Washington screen at the Earle Theater, spreads its exciting story across a vastly larger canvas.

BELL

The new "Sea Hawk" is a pseudo-historical document, instead of the personal history of an intrepid adventurer. The flavor of the fictional tale remains the same. Geoffrey Thorpe, the piratical sea-rover of the title, still is the physical embodiment of courage, indomitable purpose and prodigious achievement. He still is the scourge of the Spanish Main, scuttling galleons theoretically inimical to the interests of his good Queen Bess, even when they bear Spanish ambassadors to the court of his country's ruler. He still is undone in one of his major adventures and chained to the oars as a galley slave—presumably for life. Once again, he contrives a clever escape that salvages everything of importance to England by thwarting an attack of the Spanish Armada. But much of the scene is changed.

To achieve all of these Gargantuan heroics, it is necessary for our handsome hero to meet defeat in Panama through the perfidy of ministers close to the councils of his sovereign. How he wriggles out of that one forms the climax and the crux of the picture—even down to bringing about a complete romantic understanding between Thorpe and the ward of the Spanish envoy whose transport he has scuttled in the opening sequences of the film.

It is in these initial sequences that the action reaches the high pitch which it consistently sustains through the remainder of the considerable footage. Those old sea fights were horrendous affairs and the one that opens "The Sea Hawk" was one of the most horrendous of them all.

ᔓᔕ

During the development of the subsequent narrative there bobs up now and again something of the implication of "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex." Queen Elizabeth it seems, was in personal and private sympathy, if not official accord, with everything Capt. Thorpe did. There was a bit of something going on between them. The veiling circumstance in the instant case is that Errol Flynn always is a far more effective "Sea Hawk" than he was Lord Essex, opposite Bette Davis. This is not explained by the presence of Flora Robson in the role of Elizabeth. Miss Robson contributes one of its outstanding character studies to the newly photographed fable. These two, however, are not alone in placing "The Sea Hawk" in the upper brackets. Alan Hale, Donald Crisp, Brenda Marshall, as the love interest; Claude Rains, preeminently, as the Spanish Ambassador; Henry Daniell, Una O'Connor, J. M. Kerrigan, Montagu Love, Fritz Leiber, Gilbert Roland, Francis McDonald and Pedro de Cordoba are among numerous others who lend genuine distinction to a cast that Michael Curtiz has directed with a full eye to sensationalism. The almost forgotten Clyde Cook and Clifford Brooke, so long identified with the National Theater Players, are others who add their quotas to an ensemble that is as impressive as it is huge. All contrive, somehow, to capture the spirit of stupendous drama and unbelievable physical fortitude called for by the script.

ᔓᔕ

The investiture of the picture is not the least of its merits. It has been staged with an opulence that wholly overshadows its predecessor of a decade and a half ago. The high-decked galleons, with their tiers of galley slaves, are immensely realistic and the costuming is in keeping with every diverse ramification of the expansive and far-flung plot. It is not difficult to believe that the Warners expended something in the neighborhood of $1,700,000 in the resurrection of this yarn that did so handsomely by them back in the early 20s.

ᔓᔕ

Because "The Sea Hawk" is of such proportions and such length, the "Polka Dot" stage revue—as was the case when "All This and Heaven Too" was the feature—necessarily is brief. Its most conspicuous stars are Johnny Barnes, the Washington youth, who has become one of the foremost tap dancers of the day, and that mixed double quartet of vocalists known as The Yost Singers. The Roxyettes contribute two interesting routines, including that "walking globe" number, given new comedy touches since its last presentation. The new issue of the newsreel is the only screen supplementary of a feature of such magnitude that it could do very well without any.

Capitol Has New 'Sleeper' In 'The Golden Fleecing'

By Richard L. Coe

"THE GOLDEN FLEECING." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen-play by S. J. and Laura Perelman and Marion Parsonnet, adapted from a story by Lynn Root, Frank Fenton and John Fante, with Lew Ayres, Rita Johnson, Lloyd Nolan, Virginia Grey, Leon Errol, Nat Pendleton, George Lessey, Richard Carle and Ralph Byrd. Directed by Leslie Fenton. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

There's another "sleeper" on the Capitol screen. "The Golden Fleecing" is the title of this fresh, unassuming little comedy which M.-G-M has tossed off without preliminary fanfare. It's nothing to mortgage the homestead for, understand, but it does prove all over again that entertainment is not necessarily reliant on a large budget. It's got humor, human interest, and you can't help enjoying it.

"The Golden Fleecing" tells what happens to a shy insurance salesman forced to protect his company's interest when a racketeer client is in danger of sudden death. As this befuddled Mr. Nobody named Henry Twinkle, Lew Ayres undergoes adventures his audience lives through with him, happenings that are natural, human, slyly satirical or robustly funny.

Key to all this unexpected humor appears on the credit sheet when you discover S. J. Perelman and his wife Laura scripted "The Golden Fleecing." S. J. Perelman being the New Yorker's prickly essayist, creator of "Dawn Ginsburg" and author of the current lit'rary classic, "Look Who's Talking." Only from such an iconoclast could come the idea of a policeman powerless to arrest a fellow racing through a small town at 75 miles per hour because the judge is in cahoots with a gangster. And only Perelman could have conceived an ending to this adventure in which the crooks get theirs because of a single bad habit. The lines are classics of the sass-'em-back variety.

Has Satirical Undertones

Fundamentally, Henry Twinkle is of the same ilk as Mr. Deeds, Senator Smith and the soon-to-appear John Doe. He's just an ordinary little man who wants to be let alone, but who's picked on by fate for unexpected things. There are the same satirical undertones. Even when his girl wants to make a hero of him, he'll have none of it. Lew Ayres plays him well, too, and the more you see of Henry Twinkle the better you like him.

Others in the cast include Lloyd Nolan, back at the villainy business this time and a very swell racketeer he makes. His aplomb at Henry's nerve, his amazement that such a slight fellow can outbox him and Nat Pendleton, and his accusation when his stock goes down that the stock market is crooked, are all engagingly funny. Rita Johnson plays Henry's determined sweetheart and Leon Errol her uncle. Virginia Grey is another satirical figure as a mercenary moll. There are a few arid moments in the film, generally romantic interludes, but, on the whole, Leslie Fenton's direction is resourceful and rapidly paced.

Coupled with such bright ingenuousness, the stage revue is pedestrian stuff. Chief entertainer is Dr. "Think-a-Drink" Hoffman, that remarkable chap who catches any drink he can name out of the air. His act remains a mystifying novelty.

"Our Gang" Sweetheart

Celebrating her eighteenth birthday, which didn't come a day too soon for our District child labor law, Jean Darling is a honey-blonde beauty whose girlhood was spent as the "Our Gang" sweetheart. Pretty as any girl has a right to be, she sings sentimental ballads in an immature soprano. The Eight Capitolians, a double male quartet, assists her. Steve Evans, in his talkative inebriate role, and Nellie Arnaut and brothers, offering trick violining and whistling, are the other variety performers. The Rhythm Rockets present three routines, first of which is a bon voyage salute to their fellow Rocket, Virginia Howe, Miss Washington of 1940, soon to set out for Atlantic City's Miss America contest. Miss Howe offers a tap routine and looks as though she has a good chance to finish in the money.

A delirious Lew Lehr short on wrestling tactics, a pack of fun from our local arena to the Antipodes; a fair enough Terry Toon mocking the Aquacade, and a newsreel with Mr. Willkie visiting the farm belt, complete the bill.

But "The Golden Fleecing" is the surprise of the new week and the more you think about it, the better picture it seems. Matter of fact, it's a swell little picture.

ᔓᔕ

WHO AM I to be different? After two days of no constructive ideas, I consulted that super-low-pressure salesman, Elmer Blurt, for a suggestion. The "I hope, I hope, I hope" chap flipped back, fast as he could in that "sure, sure" drawl of his. "Why not write about salesmen? Everybody thinks they have an easy time, but they don't."

ᔓᔕ

I ALWAYS thought they did. They travel around, meet interesting people, hear all the latest stories, are entertained, do their own entertaining on an expense account. I said as much to Elmer.

ᔓᔕ

"YOU'RE WRONG," he said, "A salesman must be a superman. He must be a man of vision and ambition, an after dinner speaker, night owl; he must be able to work all day and drive all night, then appear fresh next day. He must learn to eat two meals a day to economize on traveling expenses so he can entertain his friends in the next city.

ᔓᔕ

"HE MUST BE ABLE to entertain customers, wives, sweethearts and secretaries without arousing jealousy. He must be able to sleep on bad trains, eat tired food without getting indigestion. He must be able to inhale dust, drive through 10 feet of snow at ten below, or work all summer without perspiring.

ᔓᔕ

"HE MUST BE a sales promotion expert, create a demand for obsolete merchandise, be a good credit manager and correspondent. He must attend all business meetings, tournaments, funerals and visit customers in hospitals and jails. He must contact all accounts every month, attend sales conferences, do 'good will' work and in his spare time look for new business.

ᔓᔕ

"HE MUST BE an expert talker, liar, story teller, dancer, traveler, bridge, poker and golf player, a diplomat, financier and politician. He must be a Republican, Democrat, New Dealer, Old Dealer and fast dealer. Not to mention the fact that he must be an authority on palmistry, chemistry, zoology, psychology, dogs, cats, horses, blondes, brunettes, red-heads and the State of the Nation.

ᔓᔕ

"HE MUST BE a man's man, and a ladies' man; must have a wide range of telephone numbers in every principal city, but must be a model husband and a good father. He must have unlimited endurance to overcome over-indulgence in wine and gab.

ᔓᔕ

"LAST OF ALL, he must have a car, attractive home, belong to good clubs, be generous to his family and pay all expenses at home and on the road on 5 per cent commission, minus 2 per cent excise tax, 1 per cent old-age pension, and 2 per cent lost sales tax."

YES, HE MUST BE a superman, I decided. How can a man do it?

ᔓᔕ

Disney Festival Charms at Met. Second Week

Walt Disney's name will be written right alongside of those of the Brothers Grimm and Hans Andersen in future histories of fairy lore. The old writers of fairy lore invented the stories, but Disney has enriched the old stories and given them back to the youngsters of this day.

So the current Walt Disney Festival at the Metropolitan is a "must" item for little folks who are having a Wonderful Time. There's no lack of grown-ups, too, in addition to those who are escorting their children.

Four of the best Disney shorts and the full-length feature, "Snow White," make up a program that has at least 150 per cent diversion value.

Those great Disney favorites, "Ferdinand the Bull," "Donald Duck" and the "Three Little Pigs," are contrasted admirably. And the comparatively new "Ugly Duckling" is just as lovable. Excellent judgment is also shown in choosing one of the later "Three Little Pigs" pictures (the one showing the lie-detection machine) instead of the first "T. L. P." picture which has been overshown.

Comment or criticism on this program is more than superfluous. It simply represents the cream of the Disney crop, is so completely diverting that it should be the forerunner of other all-Disney bills.

The newsreel is the only break in the Disney program and it includes those also fabulous characters, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

Football Star

Tex Harris, amateur and professional football star, has been selected to continue his pigskin exploits in Pete Smith's latest Specialty, "Quicker'n a Wink."

Hard-Boiled Eddie Arnold Is Uplifter

Hollywood, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—A funny town is Hollywood—a place where screen villains actually are kindly old gentlemen, where there are cowboys who can hardly mount a horse and where the man who plays the hard-boiled corporation executive actually is the most socially-conscious of them all.

No one can say that Edward Arnold has ever played a soft-hearted individual on the screen. Usually he appears as a business leader with gimlet eyes that soften only at the mention of profit or other personal benefit.

Yet, in real life, Arnold is so busy with social and philanthropic chores that he hardly finds time to appear in pictures. He belongs to at least ten organizations and is active in every one of them.

"I ought to slow down and spend a little more time with my family," Arnold said as we sat on the sound stage where he is appearing in "Meet John Doe," at Warner Bros.

"But I can't join an organization and not take part in its activities. Some of the groups are professional and serve a great purpose in bettering conditions for actors, others have patriotic motives which I feel I should aid as a good citizen."

Has a Bushel of Titles

Arnold is president of the American Federation of Radio Artists, vice president and nominee for president of the Screen Actors Guild, organization chairman of the "I am an American" movement, vice president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, a director of Theater Authority, member of the Pacific Geographical Society, member of the board of trustees of the Southern California Symphony Society, grand muscle of the Uplifters Club, member of the Bohemian Club and president of the Trojaneers.

"It's a long list," he admitted with a grin, "and each of them is important to me. For the past few months I've been busiest helping organize the 'I am an American' movement.

"The purpose of that organization is to impress upon youth the benefits and duties of citizenship by honoring our young men and women when they reach voting age. This year, May 19 was designated by Congress as the day set aside in honor of the young people who will be able to vote for the first time. It's just to celebrate on such an occasion.

"I had a reason in accepting office with the Actors Guild and also the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. My motive is to attempt to improve relations among the various branches of motion pictures.

Aspires to Be Conciliator

"Studio executives and producers, as well as others, are affiliated with the academy. I hope that as a member of both groups I can make each see the point of view of the other."

Arnold, never one to evade any question, denied that there had been any infiltration of radical or subversive elements into the motion picture industry.

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Aug. 23.

Before this communistic going-over by Martin Dies and our district attorney is finished, our producers will be wishing that they had gotten together years ago and formed a public relations system to take care of such things before any damage could be done. The steel, automobile, even the liquor business are all organized and have their public relations men. But in our business, it's every man for himself. It's just too bad that a business which employs thousands of people could be wrecked by half a dozen. This investigation should have been conducted a year and a half ago by the industry itself, allowing every man to speak. But now I'm afraid the public will believe the accused are guilty, before they can prove their innocence.

That picture, "No Time for Comedy," started a round-table discussion at Warners' Green Room the other day. "It's no time for comedy," said Jeffrey Lynn, "when the lady of your dreams says, 'No, but I'll be a sister to you.' Try to laugh that off!" Olivia de Havilland took it up: "It's no time for comedy when two minutes before the boy friend arrives you find a snag in your last pair of hose."

"It's no time for comedy," was George Brent's opinion, "when you take your girl out for an evening and bump into her former boy friend who can rhumba—you can't, so you watch." Which seemed like nothing at all to Frank McHugh, who said, "When your growing daughter says 'Daddy's too old to understand,' that's trouble." "Oh, you think that's trouble, do you?" said Rosemary Lane. "Well, my idea of no time for anything except help is when the letter you meant for John is delivered to Tom—or vice versa." That's what I calls trouble.

ᔓᔕ

In looking for a new type of girl for the toughie in "I Wanted Wings," Arthur Hornblow came across Veronica Lake—blonde, brown-eyed, and with a lovely figure which keeps your mind off your work. It's her first part in pictures, though she's had a couple of years of little theaters, and after they saw her test and said, "You've got the part," she turned pale, said, "Oh, yes?" Her knees started to cave in, she whispered, "Gee Whiz!" and fled. If she's as good as her test, the audience won't be able to keep its mind on its work, either.

I didn't realize how pretty Ann Morriss was until I saw her dressed to the eyeballs and playing a scene with Myrna Loy in "Third Finger, Left Hand." You know, Ann's the girl who went to the studio a couple of years ago, asked for a test, didn't get it, and said, "I'll be back in a year, and you'll give it to me." She came, they did—now she's got a contract and I hear is about to get a husband. She'll soon be Mrs. Ed Marin.

Myrna is so natural she never seems to do a lick of acting, so therefore takes a lot of kidding from Bob Leonard, who even has to adjust the flower in her buttonhole, 'cause she never knows when it's out of whack. She doesn't care one iota about clothes.

ᔓᔕ

Linda Darnell was so lame from taking bareback riding lessons for her part of the circus rider in "Chadhanna" that she couldn't walk straight, so they cut out the walk and took a closeup. That circus story is a new angle on the big tent, and most of it is built around a sick lion. What that band of riders, acrobats, comics do to save the life of that lion will have you in stitches.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 23 (INS).—Robert Montgomery, who hasn't been seen in a good comedy for far too long (we'll just skip "Haunted Honeymoon") will delight his fans by playing a hilarious role in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," Carole Lombard's next for RKO. Bob made his success in comedy, but he's had a great yen for heavy drama in recent years. I'm glad he's going back to the lighter side of life in Norman Krasna's comedy, which they tell me is highly amusing. When Bob finishes "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" he'll return to his own studio, M-G-M, for "Slightly Married," another humorous opus—so you see he won't be going serious on us again for some time.

PARSONS

Carole's fans will also be pleased to know that she is returning to comedy, which made her famous. We've had an avalanche of letters begging Carole to pretty up, wear some smart clothes, and look and act as she used to. There's a tip for Alfred Hitchcock, who'll direct her in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith."

ᔓᔕ

My son-in-law, King Kennedy, who religiously follows the adventures of "Li'l Abner," will be glad to know that an actor has finally been found to play the comic-strip character. Granville Owen, 6-foot-3, 195-pound graduate of San Jose State University is the lucky lad. A college football and baseball star and Pacific Coast amateur boxing champ, Owen has played a few small parts on the screen, but this is his first real break. Producer-Director Albert S. Rogell started the cameras rolling yesterday on "Li'l Abner," which is being made independently by vogue pictures for RKO release. Abner's sweetie, Daisy Mae, is yet to be cast, but Mona Ray and Johnny Morris, both less than 5 feet tall, will be mammy and pappy.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: There is a rumor that Wallace Beery and his divorced wife will reconcile; the Dick Berlins have a date with the stork. He is head of the Hearst newspapers and she was formerly Honey Johnson, socialite. This will be their second child; Twentieth Century-Fox gave Richard Greene a substantial bonus and assured him as soon as his services with England are over his job will be waiting for him; Doc Holden, once wed to Fifi Widener Wichfield, is Elsa Maxwell's house guest. He's just arrived from Honolulu and came on the same boat with Mrs. Jessie Donahue and her son, Jimmie. Wooly Donahue, who was a house guest of Countess di Frasso, has gone East.

Bob Taplinger and Ruth Foran, who seems to be his steady gal, at Ciro's with the Jules Steins; the Judge Dawson, who is running for Superior Court judge, is the one who is so good on the radio. He gives all the money he makes broadcasting to charity; also, the Harold B. Pressman, who is running for assemblyman, is Claudette Colbert's brother-in-law, a brother of Dr. Joel Pressman; Louis Bromfield has been commissioned to write a story on Humphrey Bogart for a national magazine; Eddie Collins refuses to put his head in the lion's mouth in "Chad Hanna" so that's one scene that won't be filmed.

Judith Anderson's mother, who recently arrived from England, is visiting her; Mona Barrie, who looks extremely well, in conference today with Orson Welles about playing in "Citizen Kane"; Mary Carlisle and Billy Bakewell have discovered each other.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Japan Envoy Gives Notice of Recall

Nazi Pressure Seen Behind Diplomatic Shakeup in Americas

By James R. Young
By International News Service

Japan's Ambassador to the United States, Kensuke Horinouchi, bowed out of Undersecretary of State Welles' office yesterday where he gave formal notification of his recall.

In a sweeping move, Tokyo's foreign office Thursday withdrew without exception every ambassador, minister and consul general in the Western Hemisphere and at Honolulu and Manila.

The sensational shakeup is attributed in diplomatic quarters to:

Nazi pressure to pattern Japan's diplomatic system after the Moscow-Berlin fashion of party men or envoys with definite views of Japan's plans for a complete Axis and Asiatic bloc.

Displeasure over failure to win greater South American cooperation after a vigorous year of special economic mission work, ending in collapse after the Roosevelt-Hull sponsored Havana conference.

In this connection, it was said, Japan had counted heavily on the Argentine. Tokyo calculated on using Argentine favor with Japan as a bid for economic cooperation with Peru, Mexico, Paraguay and Colombia.

Successor Unnamed

Horinouchi's successor is not known. The ambassador said his call on Welles was:

"A general discussion of American-Japanese problems. Two or three more calls will be made before I leave for Japan.

"I shall not wait for my successor. It is better that the embassy chair be left vacant for his arrival."

Horinouchi and Renzo Sawada, ambassador to France, are generally recognized among the last of Japan's internationally minded and liberal diplomats.

"Younger men who aspire to ambassadorships and ministerial posts for a long time—as far back as 20 years—wish to fill the positions," he commented. The retiring ambassador is about 50 years old.

Horinouchi has been in disfavor with the military clique since last August, when the United States abrogated the 1911 commercial treaty. The ambassador was held responsible for not interpreting Japan's publicized "peaceful aims in the Orient" and with not convincing American authorities that the trade agreement should continue.

Blamed for Treaty's End

He was subjected to further criticism at home when the treaty expired in January, after negotiations for a renewal were unavailing. The foreign office spokesman, Yakichiro Suma, formerly counselor of the Japanese Embassy here, had assured the Japanese public there would be no treatyless period.

The new axis-minded cabinet set-up has a significant quartet of Manchurian adventurers who have moved back to Tokyo, including Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, former president of the giant South Manchurian Railway.

War Minister Gen. Tojo is a Manchurian military figure; Naoichi Hoshino, main "brain truster," is a survivor of the post-Stimson era, and Chuichi Ohashi, new vice minister for foreign affairs, is an outstanding political figure who several times sought to reduce the diplomatic status of envoys to Fascist-minded portfolio carriers.

Mentioned as successor to Horinouchi is Yoshisuke Aikawa, a colorful and dynamic figure in Japan's present industrial inflation boom. He is related to high military figures and desires the Washington appointment to use diplomatic influence in obtaining American credit and equipment for his Kreuger-like pyramided industrial domain.

"Brain Trust" Is Formed

A Japanese new deal brain trust is being organized, to include anti-American and pro-Axis supporters. Toshio Shiratori, long a bitter critic of Secretary of War Stimson, is one of the sponsors. He was formerly Ambassador at Rome. Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, noted artillery officer and inspiration for attacks on two British gunboats the same day Japanese naval aviators attacked and sank the U. S. gunboat Panay, is another.

Japan's totalitarian trend follows public criticism and demand for a quick end of the China campaign. Economic moves to the South Seas region are demanded, according to Foreign Minister Matsuoka, as well as a firmer policy against the United States—and now that Britain and France are no longer important Far Eastern factors—and closer alliance with Berlin and Rome.

Tokyo fears her only barriers to realizing the world-wide Nazi brotherhood plan are the United States Navy on the east and Russia's air force on the north.

Ortiz Resignation To Be Rejected

the Ortiz offer to resign, submitted last night, had served its purpose in rebuking officials who were implicated in the land transaction, and had won additional support for his attempt to pacify factions that have been at loggerheads for years.

The accusation of graft that arose from the land scandal had assumed serious proportions because of similar charges that preceded overthrow of a Liberal government by a revolution in 1930.

Conservatives ruled the country after the revolution until 1938 when Ortiz, first businessmen President in Argentina's history, who was on good terms with important factions in both the Conservative and Liberal camps, was inaugurated on a Conservative coalition ticket.

R. A. F. Sinks 2 Italian Subs And Destroyer

Supply Vessel Also Destroyed in Series Of Raids in Libya

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 23.—Thee Italian warships and one auxiliary vessel were destroyed yesterday during a Royal Air Force raid on the Bomba roadstead in Libya, a British communique claimed today.

Flying low, whisking across the water, too swiftly for the heavy antiaircraft fire to be effective and braving a vicious barrage from multiple pompons and machine-guns, British bombers shattered two submarines, one destroyer and submarine depot ship, with direct hits. The British planes returned safely.

This was only part of the operations against Italian concentrations in Libya, the communique declared, reporting heavy successful attacks on the landing ground at Derna, 40 miles farther along the coast. Here, besides a motor transport, concentrations of shipping and aircraft were hit.

The Italians retaliated at Alexandria early this morning, but although several warplanes participated no damage was apparent.

Ruined Fort Reoccupied

The Italians have again occupied the ruins of Fort Capuzzo, which was battered in the bombardment by the British Mediterranean fleet August 17, according to an army communique, issued tonight.

Bombres of the South African air force carried out a series of raids on the airdrome at Mogadiscio, an Italian Somaliland seaport. Bombs struck and fired transport concentrations in the vicinity of the administrative buildings and soon these, too, were ablaze. Other missiles hit buildings, hangars, barracks and the radio station. Three Italian war planes were believed to have ben badly damaged.

British aircraft continued to reconnoiter the Kenya-Italian Somaliland border. In Eritrea, the Assab naval barracks near the French Somaliland border was bombed during a British raid.

Alexandria Bombed

Rome, Aug. 23 (INS).—Intensive aerial bombardment of the Port of Alexandria and a heavy attack on a British convoy in the Eastern Mediterranean were reported tonight, but British aerial attacks on Italian-held objectives in Africa were "scarce," an official communique said.

Egypt Next Objective

Rome, Aug. 23.—It is frankly admitted here today that Italy's next great objective is Egypt, but authorities continue to state that the attack will really be against British bases in Egypt and Sudan and not against the countries concerned.

Thus it is still hoped to preserve the theory of a neutral Egypt. The offensive will be in the form of a punitive expedition, not an invasion, Italians assert. Only if Egyptian forces actually enter the firing line and shoot at Italians will Italy consider that she is at war with Egypt.

Roosevelt Asks Check on Reports Of Nazi Bases

Copyright by New York Times

Government intelligence agencies are checking reports that Nazi bases are operating in the Caribbean area, but no evidence of them has yet been found, President Roosevelt said yesterday at his press conference.

He made this statement in response to an inquiry based on a series of syndicated newspaper stories by two writers who asserted that such bases exist.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had been informed of the articles, and had asked for an inquiry into the conditions they described. Perhaps a check will show something, he said, but a number of such reports have been investigated in the past, and heretofore they have developed into figments of the imagination.

War Sidelights

Drastic French Step Taken to Curb Drinking

Aperitifs Limited To Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Vichy, Aug. 23.—Drastic measures to suppress alcoholism and drunkenness in France are embodied in a law which will be published in the "Journal Official" tomorrow.

According to the terms of this law consumption of aperitifs containing more than 15 per cent alcohol will henceforth be prohibited. Furthermore, drinking aperitifs will be limited to Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays. The sale of these drinks is also forbidden to minors under 20.

For eight months during the "phony war" when there was virtually no action on the Western Front the French troops drank tremendous quantities of alcohol, a spokesman said, and military authorities blame the widespread intoxication for much of the moral collapse of the soldiers.

The drinking produced nervous disorders and shellshock when the French forces finally came up against the Nazi mechanized forces, it was said.

Italians, Nazis Taken Off British Honor Lists

London, Aug. 23 (AP).—King George VI today ordered the removal of all persons of German and Italian nationality from the lists of honorary members of British orders of chivalry and from the roll of foreign holders of decorations and medals.

The King of Italy was a Knight of the Garter, highest of the British orders.

French Pilots Fly Planes to Gibraltar

Copyright by New York Times

Gibraltar, Aug. 23.—Numbers of French aircraft have recently arrived at Gibraltar from several French Moroccan towns. The crews surrendered to the British authorities, stating that they were determined to fight alongside Britain for the liberation of France. They assert there is a possibility of other airmen reaching the decision to break with the Petain government.

London Times Calls Duff Cooper a 'Misfit'

London, Aug. 23 (AP).—The voice of The Times, usually close to the Administration, was added significantly today to the move for ministerial changes in Britain's government. The paper spoke of "a number of misfits" in the present regime.

The Times singled out Prime Minister Churchill, Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin, Food Minister Lord Woolton and Aircraft Production Minister Lord Beaverbrook for praise, and had blame for Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood and Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper.

Briton Denies Shortage Of Plane Materials

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Henry James, general manager of the Northern Aluminum Co., Ltd., of England, said today there was no great shortage of aluminum or other materials necessary for the manufacture of airplanes in Great Britain. He said news pictures showing British women and children donating aluminum kitchen utensils were "probably something just to stimulate the people."

Paris Witnesses First Anti-Jewish Parade

Paris, Aug. 21 (Delayed, via Berlin) (AP).—Windows were broken and 14 persons were arrested in the Champs Elysees yesterday when a score of members of an anti-Semitic organization marched along the wide avenue, shouting, "Down with the Jews."

At the same time, a group of 70 from the same organization tried to thrust their way into offices of a youth organization on the Rue de Valois to learn the names of its directors. Police arrested the whole group but later released all.

These wer the first anti-Jewish demonstrations in Paris, although the newspapers have unanimously attacked the Jews since the German occupation.

15,000-Ton Vessel Sunk, Nazis Claim

Attacks on Airfields Also Reported Despite Bad Weather

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 23.—Germany, concentrating on her "total" blockade of Britain, reported today the sinking of a 15,000-ton British merchant ship and damage to others in moonlight raids on the Scottish coast.

Despite bad flying weather, the official news agency, DNB, said the Nazi fliers drove home these attacks and others on essential war industries in central England and plane factories and airports in southern England.

Four bombs were reported to have hit squarely on the decks of the British ship in an attack on a convoy as it entered Moray Firth, Scotland, with the ship settling quickly to the bottom.

In one raid on a plane parts factory at Luton, northwest of London, the plant was reported destroyed by bombers guided to their target by fires set off by a lone raider preceding them.

Harbor Mining Continues

The high command mentioned specifically air attack on the Manston airport and night forays on other air bases in Cornwall and Wales as well as an airplane factory and a motor plant in Rochester.

Bolstering Germany's newly proclaimed blockade, the high command reported the mining of British harbors continued. Recounting yesterday's air fighting, today's communique said 11 British planes and two barrage balloons were downed against the loss of two Nazi craft.

Authorized German sources said observation planes flying from new bases on the French coast have photographed all of England, including every military objective.

British planes raided the Netherlands during Thursday night and first reports from Amsterdam indicated 16 persons were killed. Ten of the dead were counted at Rotterdam and six civilians were killed, 20 wounded and 80 dwellings wrecked in an east Netherlands town, German authorities reported.

Fritz Reinhardt, state secretary of the finance ministry, reported Germany is paying for the war as she goes, without any extraordinary increase in taxes or great public loans.

Reinhardt, in predicting income taxes in 1940 would bring the government 25,000,000,000 marks (nominally $10,000,000,000), observed the tax income when Adolf Hitler assumed power in 1933 was 6,800,000,000 marks and increased to 23,600,000,000 marks in 1939.

This increase, he said, was made possible by a tremendous enlargement of the German people's productive capacities under Hitler and a corresponding increase in incomes and elevation of living standards.

"It reflects a fundamental change in the way of life," said Reinhardt.

British Bombers Pound Nazi Guns

insisted the German shells could give the Nazis no more than a "nuisance" advantage.

Dover as a military point, they said, could not be knocked out.

Nevertheless, Dover's hills were alive all day with moving vans, taking out the belongings of inhabitants who asserted that the German marksmanship was such that their shells might readily land "anywhere."

Just what damage had been done to the Nazi gun emplacements by British bombers sent out to silence them was not made known, the air ministry saying only that they had been "heavily attacked."

Along with this, the ministry reported, as day after day it had done, that the Royal Air Force had made last night another in a long series of successful raids over German and German-held territory.

Bombed, the ministry announced, were these vital objectives:

A synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, an airplane factory at Frankfurt, a power station near Cologne, a munitions—high explosive—factory at Griesheim near Frankfurt, docks at the Rhine Port of Duisburg, railway junctions at Mannheim and Coblenz, freight sidings at Hamm and Soest, 22 airdromes in Germany and the occupied territory.

German planes kept up furtive raids on Britain all day and into the night.

Homes and public buildings were blasted by Nazi explosives in the raid on London and a delayed-action bomb burst in one roped-off area several hours later, but casualties were comparatively few.

About 30 bombs were dropped during the night on one southwest town by relays of single aircraft.

A German bomber crashed in a field in southeast England this morning. A gamekeeper captured the crew of four.

Shortly before noon single planes raided the Midlands, one dropping some medium-sized bombs which smashed a cottage. Another raider dropped three bombs on another Midlands town, but all fell on open land.

Six bombs fell on a thickly populated district of a third Midlands town. One casualty was reported.

Early this afternoon a single bomber dived out of the clouds and dropped six high explosive bombs along the sea front of a southeast town. All hit the beach.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Home Security said today there will be no published list of the dead and injured in London raids. The August total of civilian air raid casualties for all of Britain will be issued the first week in September.

There was much speculation during the day as to the Germans' ultimate purpose in loosing their artillery batteries from the Nazi-held French coast.

One military source said what the Nazis had done so far was merely "practice," a term the Germans were reported to have used themselves, and every informant agreed that the main British retort would be from bombers.

Rumania Calls Reserve on Eve Of New Parley

Collapse Predicted For Negotiations Over Transylvania

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, Aug. 23.—All Rumanian reserve officers and noncommissioned officers were unexpectedly called up tonight and all army leaves were canceled indefinitely.

This was interpreted as a bad augury for the Turnu Severin conference, for observers tonight predicted likely collapse through failure of Hungarian and Rumanian delegates to agree in principle on the Transylvania question.

Discussion of Hungary's territorial claim, embracing Transylvania, is scheduled to be resumed tomorrow, but there were predictions that an "agreement to disagree" would be reached quickly unless a compromise could be devised.

A Hungarian source expressed doubt whether, in the event of failure here, Germany and Italy would attempt any immediate arbitration of the problem, but rather would merely seek to prevent an armed clash between bitterly opposed Rumania and Hungary.

Hungary's Version

A Hungarian spokesman, describing developments thus far, said that before the conference began the Rumanians agreed to the principle of the Magyar demand for part of Transylvania, a territory which Rumania obtained in the World War settlements.

At the conference, he said, Hungary asked for about two-thirds of the 35,000 square miles of Transylvania, and Rumania replied with a diplomatic document proposing the transfer of populations and omitting any mention of possible land cession.

At this point, he said, the Hungarian delegation ordered their Danubian boat to get up steam and asked for clearance papers and a pilot.

But in a last-minute attempt to prevent the conference breaking up, both sides agreed to consult their governments and report back.

Present reports say neither side has changed its position and that unless an agreement in principle can be found, tomorrow's meeting will be mere formality, with the conference doomed to failure.

Russia Uninterested

Copyright by New York Times

Bucharest, Rumania, Aug. 23.—Well-informed circles said tonight Soviet Premier Molotoff has assured Hungary that the Soviet Union is not interested in either the Transylvania or the Ruthenia question.

Rumanian negotiations with the Bulgarians can be considered to have ended and the signing is to take place within a few days at Craiova. Rumania has practically ratified all Bulgarian demands. The unyielding attitude of the Bulgarians, however, has created a certain amount of uneasiness in Rumanian official circles.

A crown council held tonight which lasted about five hours examined the country's foreign policy. Gen. Mihail, vice president of the cabinet, resigned following his appointment as chief of the general staff, and further reconstruction of the government is to be expected.

(The German wireless reported tonight from Bucharest that the cabinet would be re-formed with the ousting of four ministers. The new cabinet, it was added, was expected to include two of the highest church dignitaries among the Transylvania Rumanians — Orthodox Bishop Balan and Greek Catholic Archbishop Nieulescu.)

German Embassy, U. S. Mission Hit In Chungking Raid

Chungking (Saturday), Aug. 24 (AP).—The Chinese central government considered the compulsory evacuation of all civilians except high officials and those directly serving war needs here as Japanese warplanes yesterday resumed their heavy bombing of this capital.

The German Embassy and American missionary residences recently built in the suburban hills to avoid bombings were badly damaged in an attack which German correspondents of D.N.B., the official German news agency, called "inexcusable" in their dispatches to Berlin.

Copyright by New York Times

Peking, Aug. 23.—Chinese forces suddenly flamed into action when units of the Eighth Army attacked three Japanese-controlled railways, causing severe damage and a cessation of traffic. Japanese garrisons along the railway routes were immediately called out and after some fighting repulsed the raiders.

Nazis to Send Mail To Americas Via Siberia

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Aug. 23.—Mail for North, South and Middle America, as well as Iceland nad Greenland, can now be sent via Siberia and Japan, it was announced today.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Home Security said today there will be no published list of the dead and injured in London raids. The August total of civilian air raid casualties for all of Britain will be issued the first week in September.

The Germans also announct that, effective September 1, the direct transatlantic radio-telephone service will have been extendtd to include those portions of the former Polish republic that are now occupied by Germany.

Roosevelt Studies Leasing of Bases

Prime Minister Churchill's unqualified offer of 99-year leases anywhere in the Western Hemisphere and were encouraged to believe that an agreement in principle must have been reached in order for the head of the British government to make such a flat statement to the House fo Commons.

According to the statistical studies President Roosevelt has before him, it would be possible to work out a system of about 18 leases, for 99 years each, on base sites to be selected by the Army and the Navy from Newfoundland to Trinidad, the present cash value of which, including interest allowed for the anticipated payments, would work out at $2,800,000,000. It is understood that the computation involves an average annual rental per base of $2,000,000.

No Link With Ship Deal

According to the understanding on Capitol Hill the deal for the leases will have nothing to do with the possibility of making available to Great Britain over-age American destroyers. Mr. Roosevelt has stated this to be the case, and the Congressional interpretation is that he has in mind an offset against the British debt as the quid pro in the contemplated transaction.

Completely informal and unofficial soundings have been made at the British Embassy here, it was learned, and the impression has been gained that the British government is not disposed to haggle over the details of such a plan—either the rental rates or the interest rates involved.

London would be only too glad, it would appear, to consummate a deal on strictly business lines which would remove at this juncture the stigma of debt default and bring the added advantage of exemption from the Johnson Act if the war should be prolonged and private credits should be needed to finance British purchases in the United States.

The idea of leasing the proposed base sites instead of trying to purchase them was suggested to the Administration as long ago as last May, when it became apparent that the British government would not consider outright sale and consequent transfer of sovereignty. Churchill's offer of the leases in his speech of last Tuesday was taken to indicate that this is the proper approach, presumably acceptable on both sides.

Congress Must Approve

Whatever settlement of the lease problem is finally advanced by the Administration, it will have to have Congressional approval in some form. Even if President Roosevelt's advisers are correct in their opinion that he can contract the leases as an Executive agreement, and not by treaty, Congress will have to vote the appropriations to pay the annual rentals.

If the proposition were arranged so that a credit against the British debt, instead of cash, was required, a resolution countenancing the projected composition of the debt would have to pass both Houses of Congress.

The sponsors of the scheme outlined above feel it would be wiser to crack the whole nut at once, especially since certain isolationist Senators, such as Lundeen, Reynolds and others, have often advocated purchase or seizure of British possessions in the Western Hemisphere as offsets against the war debts.

Rome Maker Threat

By the Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 23.—An Italian invasion of Greece will follow any effort by the British to occupy the strategic Greek islands, a high Fascist source declared in plain words today.

"Italy is not going to let the British occupy any Greek islands," he said, discussing rumors that Britain was thinking of moving into the islands of Crete and Corfu.

"If the British move into Greece, we will do the same."

[Whereas the British characterize the report as Italian propaganda, the New York Times said, the Italians say it is a British effort to disturb relations between Rome and Athens. In any event, both sides agree that no such move took place.

[Athens messages given prominent display in all London papers said British and Italian warships are cruising off Crete as if deploying for a large-scale naval battle. Fascist bombing planes waged a 2-hour duel with the British war vessels, International News Service said.

[It was further said Soviet Russia is believed to have assured Greece that it will give Turkey a free hand to help the Greeks in case Italy attacks.

[Italy will demand that Greece renounce her guarantee from Great Britain, but no ultimatum has been served upon the Athens government, it was stated in well-informed Fascist quarters tonight, the United Press said.

[British foreign office quarters said Britain intends to stand by her guarantee of Greek independence, given April 13, 1939, if Greece resists any invasion, and that a report of a conversation yesterday between the British minister and Greek Premier John Metaxas was being awaited.]

Italian claims on Greece in behalf of Albania, foreign sources in Rome predicted, will be announced at an early session of the Albanian legislative council, attended by Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

These sources expressed the belief that Italy, in this way, would try to get territory from Greece without an invasion. (Italians have declared Greece should indemnify Albania for the recent beheading, allegedly by Greeks, of a so-called Albanian patriot.

(In Athens, the Greek government called up four more categories of army "specialists," thus continuing her steady preparations for the threatened extension to her shores of the war in the Mediterranean.)

The press in Italian-conquered Albania took up, meanwhile, the cry against Greece, the Albanian newspaper, Tomori, asserting Greece had "virtually closed" the mountainous frontier with Albania, thus barring Albanian farmers from crossing into Greece to cultivate their land.

Sea Raider Hunted Off New Zealand

British Steamer Missing After Reporting Attack

By the Associated Press

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 23.—New Zealand naval and air forces searched the Tasman Sea tonight for an unidentified German raider which attacked the British steamer Turakina 3 days ago.

They also hunted the 3,706-ton Turakina herself. She had flashed a radio message Tuesday night that the raider was firing on her and gave her position. Nothing has been heard from her since.

The Tasman sea is in the South Pacific between New Zealand and Australia.

The Turakina was due last night in a New Zealand port but did not arrive. Her appeal for aid was the first indication that a Nazi surface raider or submarine was in the South Pacific, although the 7,582-ton Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara went down off the New Zealand coast last June 18. The sinking was attributed to a mine.

Carribbean Raider Vanishes

A German raider was reported preying on British shipping in the South Atlantic and Caribbean Sea last month but has not been heard of since the British auxiliary naval vessel Alcantra engaged her July 31 off the coast of Brazil.

The Alcantra put into Rio de Janeiro for repairs after a "lucky shot" struck her and slowed her, the British said. Germany claimed the British ship was "routed." The Alcantara left Rio de Janeiro August 5, in search of the Nazi ship.

The most famous German raider operating in the South Pacific during the World War was the Emden, finally run down off the Cocos Islands and sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney.

Former U. S. Ship Torpedoed

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—The freighter Ville de Gand, formerly the American Importer, one of eight American ships sold to a Belgian firm for trade between England and New York, has been torpedoed off the Irish coast, the United States Lines said today.

The company said that about half of her crew of 54 has been rescued and that hope for the others still existed.

Dutch Tanker Damaged

Lisbon, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Dutch tanker Hermes, which left Lisbon on Wednesday, returned tonight, badly damaged in the prow, and reported she had been torpedoed 250 miles off Lisbon. One sailor was injured.

Canadian Freighter Sunk

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—The New York Maritime Register said today the 7,244-ton Canadian freighter, Geraldine Mary, had been sunk by "enemy action" off the Irish coast, with a loss of three lives—one passenger and two crewmen.

Trotsky's Lawyer Seeks to Remove Body to New York

Mexico City, Aug. 23 (AP).—Leon Trotsky's attorney asked tonight for United States permission to take the old Bolshevist's body to New York for memorial services.

The attorney, Albert Goldman, filed his request with the United States consulate, but there were indications that American authorities were not enthusiastic over the plan.

Police, meantime, said that Frank Jackson, Trotsky's confessed assassin, had told them he had bought a pistol last Tuesday, the day he attacked Trotsky with a pickax, in order to kill himself after the assault. The arrival of the guards, he said, prevented this.

The police continued to hold Jackson's friend, Sylvia Ageloff. She was hysterical, screaming: "Where is my father? I'm an American. I want out of here." (Her father, Samuel Ageloff, was reported to be still in Brooklyn, N. Y., today.)

A Timely Appeal

President Roosevelt is fully justified in suggesting that Congress speed up its consideration of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. That measure has been under discussion in and out of Congress for nearly two months. Every conceivable argument for and against it has been repeated many times. There is no point in dragging out the debate simply to multiply words.

Continued debate now seems to be particularly futile since a majority in the Senate undoubtedly favors some sort of compulsory military training. The chief question in the minds of many Senators is whether conscription should be ordered immediately or delayed until January so as to give the voluntary method a longer trial. The latter plan doubtless has much appeal for some legislators who must stand for reelection in November. But it would not prevent the draft from going into effect. It would only delay our preparedness program by several months.

At the present rate of recruiting, the President noted yesterday, two years would be required to build up an army of 1,200,000 men. It is true that greater emphasis upon one-year enlistments might shorten the period necessary to obtain the required number of men. But in any event, reliance upon the voluntary method would seriously retard the preparedness program to which Congress is already committed so far as ordering equipment, ships, airplanes and weapons is concerned.

Fortunately, Majority Leader Barkley has already taken steps to counteract the dilatory tactics which some Senators are employing. He realizes that opponents of the bill have said many times everything they have to say. Sponsors of the measure have occupied comparatively little time. But their case has been fully stated. The quicker the controversy can be brought to a close the better it will be for Congress as well as for the cause of national defense.

What Future For Gold?

The gold standard no longer functions as a means of settling trade balances between countries by relatively limited shipments of the metal. The times are abnormal and the movements of gold are likewise abnormal. Vast international shifts of capital, due to political upheavals and war, largely account for the tremendous gold acquisitions of the United States during the past few years.

Germany's recent threats to abandon the gold standard and depend entirely upon barter in trade with other nations have enhanced fears that after the war the United States may be left with a vast hoard of gold which might be of little use to us. But it is too soon to indulge in prediction concerning the international exchange mechanism of the postwar world. Moreover, some believers in the gold standard are beginning to take heart again.

They point out that Germany did not adopt the barter system by preference, but from necessity. And even Germany's barter system is based upon exchange values calculated in terms of gold. Nobody has yet suggested how world-wide systems of barter could be made to work successfully if there were no common denominator, such as gold, in which values could be expressed.

Many countries and peoples have a tremendous stake in the gold standard through ownership of producing mines. Last year gold worth over $1,000,000,000 was produced by the mines of South Africa, the United States, Canada, Russia and other countries. Even if the present gold stocks of central banks and foreign governments should come into our possession, gold still in the ground would give the nations mining it an abiding interest in gold as a universally acceptable means of payment.

When the war is over, many difficult adjustment problems will have to be faced. But if ever a real and prolonged period of peace ensues, some of those adjustments, insofar as gold is concerned, will take place automatically. The gold problem seems particularly insoluble at present because abnormal conditions have precipitated mass flights of capital to this country.

With a return to more normal conditions, the chief question will be how to assure a well-balanced movement of goods between countries so as to prevent any single nation from becoming a gold sink while others find themselves constantly denuded of gold.

Doubtful Trade Gains

The Department of Commerce reports that during the first ten months of the war our export trade was 35 per cent higher than during the comparable period of the preceding year, and 16 per cent above the level of two years ago. Standing alone, those figures might give an inaccurate impression. For the latter part of this period witnessed the invasion of Scandinavia and the Low Countries, the defeat of France and the declaration of war by Italy.

The result has been an extension of the British blockade and loss of our important continental markets. It was not until the closing months of the period covered that the effect of the extended blockade began to be apparent. Indeed, even in June, the last month for which reports are available, our exports to France were valued at $47,000,000.

A partial offset to the disappearance of our trade with the continent is afforded by the rapid increase in our sales to Great Britain and to Latin America. But over a fourth of our entire export trade, which amounted to $3,273,000,000 during the 10 months from September through June, went to countries now cut off by the blockade. It is obvious that no conceivable increase in sales to other countries will provide full compensation for loss of this continental market, expanded as it had been by wartime demands.

In analyzing trade gains and losses we must also consider the changing character of our exports due to the war. Steel, aluminum and copper exports have expanded rapidly, as have foreign sales of machinery, airplanes, chemicals and textile products. But trade in commodities not essential to the conduct of war has been correspondingly restricted.

The outlook for agricultural exports is especially gloomy. About one-third of such exports normally goes to the European continent from which trade is now excluded. Another third is usually taken by Great Britain. But the British are currently covering their needs insofar as possible from empire sources and cutting down on all but essential foodstuff purchases from the United States.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics concludes that "at least as long as the war in Europe continues, export sales of our principal surplus farm commodities (cotton, tobacco, pork products, and wheat) will be in very limited amounts." Canned and dried food products, which are well adapted to military use, may fare somewhat better.

It is well to remember that increased demands for war equipment do not solve the adjustment problems created by shrinking export outlets for surplus products. And in the present instance the statistical record of the past throws little light on the trade developments of the months immediately ahead.

Penitent Physicist

The life and work of Sir Oliver Lodge afford yet another illustration of how profoundly the mathematical speculations of one generation may involve the destinies of another.

Nothing is more certain than that our own violent, bewildered and unhappy age grew and was nourished in the intellectual womb of the peaceful, enlightened and altogether too complacent nineteenth century. That was an age which saw the elevation of natural science into a place of power superior even to that of Nature herself, since it could and did abrogate even her supposedly immutable "natural laws."

There is probably some very good reason why a revolution in mathematics inevitably accompanies a great convulsion of the social order. The break-up of the Middle Ages parallels very closely the collapse of the Ptolemaic universe, which we can regard today with the same wonder and wistfulness that the late Henry Adams experienced in viewing the Cathedral at Chartres.

But our grandfathers, at any rate, had the good fortune to inhabit a universe, which if it lacked the grandeurs and beauties of the Gothic cosmos, nevertheless had a serenity, simplicity and dignity of its own. It much resembled those monuments that Newton's great contemporary, Sir Christopher Wren, erected on the ashes of Gothic London. In this universe something called ether served very nicely as a kind of mortar.

Now the successive meddling of people like James Clerk-Maxwell, Heinrich Hertz and Sir Oliver Lodge with this stuff called ether have had a good deal to do with bringing down the comfortable and orderly Newtonian universe about our ears. Their findings are forcing us to move, whether we will or no, into what seems to be a car on some precipitous cosmic roller coaster.

These three men had a considerable if wholly unwitting share in the technological preparation for the great mass revolutions now sweeping the world. It was they, far more than Marconi, who made it possible for the voice of revolution, and perhaps even the revolution itself, to pursue us to the ends of earth.

Perhaps then, the greatness of Sir Oliver Lodge was not in his discoveries, great as they were, but in the fact that he came in the end to understand what dreadful implications such discoveries might contain.

Helpful Neighbors

The task assigned to the United States-Canadian joint board is largely technical. The two countries have already agreed to cooperate in working out a broad defense program for the northern half of the Western Hemisphere. It remains for the joint board to implement that accord with specific plans to keep any and all hostile forces away from this continent.

For this reason both the United States and Canadian members of the joint board are, for the most part, military and naval experts. However, a diplomatic representative was appointed from each side, and President Roosevelt gave the American delegation additional balance by adding Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York. Mr. LaGuardia has manifested a keen interest in defense problems. The appointment of an outstanding New Yorker was also appropriate because of the close relationship between the State of New York and Canada.

At its first meeting on Monday the board will begin working out plans concerning naval bases, airports, military equipment and personnel for mutual defense of the two countries. That is a step of the utmost importance. It will doubtless mean that Americans and Canadians will be fighting side by side if threats are made against the peace of northern North America.

In the long run the step just taken may also mean much more than a coordination of defense plans. The United States and Canada are drawing closer together. Probably more than ever before they now realize the extent of their joint interests.

Canada has definitely recognized its status as a part of the Western Hemisphere so far as her basic problems of defense are concerned. For its part, the United States is giving more tangible support than it has ever given before to its policy of permitting no hostile invasion of the New World.

Neighbors engaged in a project that so vitally affects their common interests will doubtless find that closer economic and cultural ties are a natural product of their cooperation. Statesmen on both sides of the border have a great responsibility to direct these efforts to the mutual advantage of the two countries.

The Summer's End

Working folk, who for some weeks have watched regretfully while their hard-won vacation tans turned an unattractive yellow, look forward impatiently to the dying summer's end. This feeling of expectant waiting is shared alike by diplomats and taxi drivers, by Congressmen and the cuties who preside over their filing cabinets.

For, come late August, crumpled is the seersucker, and faded the little gingham number which was so alluring in the spring. The cleaner hasn't been able to remove the spot from that $12 Panama, and the starch has gone for good from the frock which billowed so gracefully in June. Sinuses ache from too much sitting on damp evening grass. All those rum drinks by now seem boring, yet it's still too warm to consume an old-fashioned without feeling as though one had been slugged at the base of the skull.

Will winter ever come? For women who await the end of summer we recommend the immediate purchase of an all-black frock and one of those new pompadour hats; men will perhaps find relief in watching those newsreel shots of early football practice.

There are daughters who are such comforts to their mothers, and others who are beautiful.

It ought to be required by law that any recipe for salad be accompanied by instructions as to what should be used as an antidote.

Memo To Mr. Berlitz

From the Peoria Journal-Transcript.

American is the official language of Illinois, although citizens of the State may have overlooked the fact. It was brought out in a Chicago court the other day when an interpreter was being sworn. The clerk read the oath pledging the interpreter to translate faithfully from the Polish into the "American language." An attorney objected, saying that the English language was meant. The clerk produced a yellowed card on which the oath was printed. The word "English" had been crossed out and "American" substituted.

Then the bailiff spoke up. "I did that," he said, "when the General Assembly made 'American' the official language in 1928." So the statute was hunted up and the bailiff's statement verified.

In this connection it is interesting to know that South American school children, asked whether they studied English in their schools, have answered, "Yes, but it is English, not American English."

There are books and dictionaries that note the differences between English as spoken by citizens of Great Britain and citizens of the United States of America, but there might still be difficulties in requiring anyone to speak only "American" in the courtroom.

The Goose Step

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
A citizen of the United States wants to protest against a new dance step that our Government insists upon teaching to the American people! It is called the goose step, and oddly enough it doesn't seem to appeal to any of the young people of my acquaintance.

We are, however, told by our Government that this new step is supposed to protect us from something. It is supposed to protect us from the European goose step, but we young folks can't seem to see the difference between the European and the American versions.

Plainly speaking, the goose step is, of course, our proposed compulsory military training bill. The conclusion seems to be that the United States Government believes in fighting the goose step with the goose step.

It's a funny thing but I can't see why our Government, which seems to do a rushing business in trade with Russia and Japan, cannot see one gleam of hope in trading peacefully with a greater Germany! Neither can I understand why the United States must prepare to flaunt a big stick in Germany's face without at least trying the peaceful way!

Of course I will be called a Fifth Columnist for these views, but I am proud to belong in the category of the peacemakers. I suppose they would call our beloved Jesus Christ a Fifth Columnist were he alive today.

Hatch Act Penalties

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
In The Post of August 14 the Attorney General in his analysis of the Hatch Act describes the following as an illegal act:

The purchasing of any advertising or articles of any kind by anyone where part or all of the proceeds directly or indirectly inure to the benefit of or for any candidate for an elective Federal office or to the benefit of any political party or committee.

Surely this is not only unconstitutional but an absolute absurdity. Under it any honest citizen could be sent to prison for five years for buying a campaign button.

Takes Away Liberty

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Military conscription is against all democratic ideals and ideas. It may make men equal, but it certainly takes away their liberty, which is guaranteed by the Constitution. Without that liberty of choice, the United States would not be a democracy even in name.

Raising a huge army would tend to lead this country into war—which is the last thing on earth most Americans want. It is not logical to think that millions of men can be trained to think, talk, and act war without coming to believe that war is necessary or even desirable.

Conscription of men's bodies is not so dangerous as conscription of their minds. Military conscription would discipline men's minds that they might think with the same obedience that they used in actions. Such obedience means the end of free thinking, responsible citizens who are the foundation of our democracy.

Democracy cannot be defended by resorting to Fascism, even temporarily. Conscription is one of the primary weapons of Fascism and Nazilism, and we cannot use it without losing our democracy and becoming Fascist ourselves.

We cannot defend America by conscripting an army. France had the most highly trained army in the world, but it was no defense. Our most pressing problems are still public health, housing, unemployment and relief. If we can insure a decent standard of living for every person in America, our national unity and defense are assured. Only by doing this can America become a great and real democracy—safe from dangers without and within her borders.

Planning For Traffic

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Don't you think "The Observer," in his letter of July 12 to you, was a little rough on those who have conscientiously tried to offer constructive suggestions for the alleviation of parking congestion in Washington?

Now to attempt to justify the construction of off-street parking facilities through the use of general tax funds. Where is the major source of revenue for the average American city? Some 25 to 40 per cent of the total taxable values are on properties located in the central business district. But those property values are declining—not so much in Washington, where the Federal pay roll contributes much to business enterprise—in some cities as much as 50 per cent during the past ten years. Why?

There are many reasons, but one of the major reasons is inaccessibility. It is becoming increasingly difficult to conduct business in midtown areas, due primarily to traffic congestion and inadequate terminal facilities.

Of course, better transportation facilities can mean, in part, better public carrier facilities, but again let us not kid ourselves. The private passenger automobile has become a fundamental part of the daily lives of thousands of persons, and these persons are not going to give up driving their cars simply to patronize the central business district for the love of the said district. They will go where their cars can be driven—conveniently.

The solution of the parking problem is not as simple as merely extending the meter zone. It is much more deep-rooted and affects the entire economic structure of the city much more than many apparently realize. I will go along with Mr. Observer on the only two definite points he made, namely, (1) to extend the parking meter system, and (2) that when the motoring public is willing to pay the costs of off-street facilities, private enterprise will provide them. But the catch is "when the motoring public is willing to pay" the fees which private enterprise must demand.

Farsighted city planners, and others who are actively interested and engaged in professions which affect city welfare and growth, both physical and economic growth, are bringing into their thoughts more and more the idea that accessibility is a very major factor, and that important highway developments, which are most commendable, must be supplemented by adequate terminal facilities to do the job for which they must be constructed. This may bring about an entire new conception of the function of the central business district of a city, but why not?

The Sumners Resolution

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Recently The Post published an editoral regarding the "holding up" of the Sumners resolution by the House Rules Committee.

There are, as you know, some aspects of this resolution that are the subject of considerable speculation. What would happen in District government if the Congress, in the exercise of its right under the amendment (sought by the resolution), terminated Congressional relationship with the District?

Under the amendment, District Congressional representatives (in either House)—holding office as they would "at the sufferance" of the Congress—would be hardly free agents of their constituents.

Jefferson And The Third Term

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I read with considerable amusement Mr. Richard Franchot's letter appearing in your August 17 issue in which he sought to preempt the Jeffersonian mantle to the New Dealers and third termers. This is just another instance of a New Dealer trying to go several directions at the same time. As often as the effort has been made by Administration supporters, it appears that none of them has yet noticed how really ludicrous the spectacle is.

Practically in one breath Mr. Franchot assures us that dissident Democrats are "purging themselves"; and that they—the Tweedledees and Tweedledums—are being driven from the party by President Roosevelt. The letter poses a constantly recurring question of cause and effect: Does a New Dealer get dizzy from spinning in his tight circle of inconsistencies, or does he just naturally gallop off in all directions because he was born that way?

Mr. Franchot asserts that democracy as it is conceived and practiced in the New Deal parallels the democracy of Jefferson. Most New Dealers by this time must have noticed that there are two schools of thought on that point, however, although supporters of this Administration have stubbornly refused to tolerate any dissenting viewpoint. Witness the vindictive effort to purge the dissenters in 1938.

Mr. Franchot, like most New Dealers, either doesn't know the meaning of democracy, knows and cares very little about Jeffersonian philosophy and the traditions of the Democratic Party, hasn't been reading the papers during the past seven years, or is simply hoping to fool somebody.

When a Democratic national convention, herded under the lash of New Deal bossism, descends to the deplorable business of booing the very name of Jefferson and jeering Carter Glass, one of the noblest Democrats because he had the temerity to insist upon the right to nominate another great Democrat, I don't wonder that real party members by the thousands are disgusted to the point of bolting.

If that is Democracy—if intolerance, derision, ridicule and contempt are to be the common tools of this once-great party—I'm one of the army of ex-Democrats. Before I turn in my suit permit me to toss this one raspberry:

What is going on now in the Democratic Party is scarcely a weeding out of the Tweedledees and Tweedledums. This looks to me much more like a separation of the bolts and the nuts.

The Post Impressionist

'Personality Is All'

"Run, run, Orlando; carve on every tree
The fair, the chaste, and inexpressive she."

"PARDON ME for not getting around to you sooner. I didn't see you, because my mind is on something else, and when your mind is on something else you kind of overlook things, at least that's what I always say!"

Opal twirled her ten bracelets and took, so to speak, a kind of a verbal hitch in the belt as she got down to the subject of her heart.

I said: "I didn't expect to see you here today. I thought you had been promoted."

"That's what I have got my mind on," Opal said. "Another girl got the promotion because she has a nice personality, so the boss says. What I have got on my mind is personality, if you get what I mean."

This is what she then told me, very slightly edited for brevity:

I am thinking about people and about personality. Personality matters more than anything, I guess.

I am thinking about taxi drivers. There are hundreds of them and unless one is different from the others, he is just another taxi driver. But sometimes one has personality. Maybe it is his Harvard accent or a new way of cutting corners, but if he has personality people notice him right away. They think, "I'll wait for him to come by." Pretty soon he has a lot of regular customers and owns his own cab. He is a success.

Then there are file clerks. There are 650 in this building. Then along comes Luetta. She works over in Aisle 10. The first day she comes to work, she brings her guitar with her. The supervisor says, "You can't bring that thing in here," and Luetta says, "This guitar is a part of my personality and if I can't play a tune in my rest time, I don't want the old job because I will not crush the finer things in me for any job!" The supervisor says, "This is a new one," and she calls the boss.

He scratches his head and he says, "It shall never be said that I crushed the finer things in any young and aspiring girl who is making her way in the cruel world, because she will need all those finer things before she gets through." Then he said, "You can play your guitar during your rest period if you think it is restful and if you will play it softly so not to disturb the others."

The red-headed messenger boy began to sing, "Mamma Don't Allow No Guit-aw Playing in Here," and the boss told him to get his money at the cashier's desk. Now Luetta sings "Love is All" continually, accompanying herself upon the guitar. Yesterday she got promoted. You can say what you want to but I say it must be personality; because she is just as apt to file z-i-g under g-i-z as any other place!

Then there is this Mexican that I know about. Mabel, over in the Annex, and I went on a personally conducted tour of Mexico last year, and we saw this Mexican. He looked ragged and sad, as he put up his easel in the patio of the hotel, and began to paint in big splashes. The manager was going to drive him away, but there was a very rich lady staying there and she was passing by and saw the Mexican. He looked at her and smiled gently and made a kind of a swimming motion with his hands, or maybe it was more like a dog putting up his paws to beg; and she saw right away that the Mexican had a nice personality. She asked the manager to let him paint awhile and see what he could do.

So he painted, and everybody that came by stopped to look, and everybody had a different idea about what he was trying to paint. The picture was black and white and red and green with silver stripes. Somebody said that the Mexican was a genius; so the rich lady bought the picture. The Mexican looked surprised, but he began another picture.

People kept on buying his pictures. Nobody knew what they were all about till a fellow came along who knows natives, and he found out that the Mexican was trying to express to himself what he thought about when he saw an ant-eater. It wasn't exactly a picture of the animal, just thoughts about it. The Mexican must have had personality, as the woman said. He was still painting his thoughts about the ant-eater when we left, and getting paid for it.

I think that when you have personality you either do a thing continually or not at all. You either have more dates than anybody, or you don't date at all. Everybody wonders why, and nobody will let you alone to go your way in peace, but everyone tries to date you in order to analyze the kind of personality that makes anyone act that way.

There is a girl I know. She keeps saying, "I simply will not wear black on account of my aunt." It doesn't make much sense, and nobody knows what she means, but everyone thinks she is remarkable and has a marvelous personality because she will not give up this idea, if any, about wearing black.

There are other ways of showing personality, such as being a sweet, wholesome girl who eats spinach and wears low heels and likes to walk like Garbo. And some can work the trick with animals. It is best to have a strange animal like a panda and be photographed with it. Some women go to strange places or raise queer things and write their experiences. I know a woman who is raising goats. She says her personality craves expression. Everyone thinks she is wonderful. But I do not think I could go as far as raising goats, myself.

My horoscope says I should always wear white and emeralds to bring out my personality. But white always looks kind of queer after August, I think. And if I wait for personality until I get emeralds, it's going to be too late for my personality to do me any good.

What did you say you wanted? File ZIX? Okay.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

'The Conscription Of Wealth'

"IF WE are going to conscript men," said Senator Ashurst, "we should conscript wealth." Thereupon he and 22 other Senators voted to have the Senate ignore the constitutional provision that revenue measures must originate in the lower House of Congress and to have it consider the Lee amendment as part of the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Not one of the 23 Senators can have had the slightest doubt that the amendment was out of order because it is unconstitutional to consider such a measure until the House of Representatives has initiated it. Nevertheless they voted to proceed with it. Two or three of the Senators who favor the bill voted as they did because they wish to be on record personally as favoring the "conscription of wealth." The great majority voted as they did because they hope to stigmatize the Burke-Wadsworth bill as a rich man's scheme, and here was an opportunity to make it appear that the Senate was willing to conscript the lives of poor boys, but not the wealth of the rich.

THE FIRST thing to be said about this incitement to class feeling is that the Burke-Wadsworth bill imposes exactly the same obligation on all men whether they are rich or they are poor. All must register. All are legally liable to be called up for military training. None is exempted because his family are rich. In fact the sons of the rich are likely to be called in much greater proportion than any others because very few of them are in the deferred skilled trades and on the whole they do not marry until rather later in life. It is, therefore, grossly and unfairly misleading to talk as if the Burke-Wadsworth bill involved the issue of "men" versus "wealth."

It is even more misleading to give the impression that by enacting the bill the Congress will have conscripted men while leaving the owners of wealth free to volunteer or to refuse to volunteer to contribute to the national defense. For the fact of the matter is that the principle of conscription of income already exists in the form of the power to tax and the power to conscript property exists in the power to commandeer. Congress is still debating whether in time of peace it shall in principle compel men to train themselves for military service. But as to wealth there is no need to debate the principle of compulsion as against volunteering. For there is no slightest question but that the income and the property of the people are already legally liable to be called to the service of the Nation and there is no question whatever of the right or the power of Congress to conscript income or property in any amount and in any degree deemed necessary for the national defense. Taxes are not voluntary contributions. They are compulsory payments. The power to commandeer is an indisputable power in time of war or in time of national emergency. So the principle of the conscription of wealth is established and does not have to be debated or reaffirmed; all that is required is to apply further the principle which is already universally acknowledged.

If we think clearly about these matters, we shall remember that while universal service is the foundation of any adequate national defense, conscription alone and as such will not, of course, produce an invincible Army. For that there is needed not only the necessary equipment but a sound military policy and efficient commanders. The elementary step, conscription, is the hardest to take politically. But the subsequent steps—to plan the Army, invent its tactics and to conceive its strategy—are in fact even more difficult for a nation like our own which has not had, since the great commanders of the Civil War, any impressive military tradition.

Therefore, the less time we waste upon the elementary stages the sooner we shall be able to fix our attention upon the more difficult but absolutely necessary higher advanced stages of military preparedness. But how much time and energy, for example, can the Chief of Staff give to the study and application of the lessons of the European war when he has to spend his days answering the arguments raised in a Congressional debate?

IF WE THINK clearly about the conscription of wealth, we shall not let ourselves be delayed or led up blind alleys. What we need immediately is the production of armaments. The first objective of economic policy must, therefore, be to remove the obstacles to production. Insofar as these obstacles arise from laws which restrict production, the restrictions should be removed; insofar as they arise from private monopolies, the monopolies must be liquidated; insofar as they arise from private commercial interests seeking to avoid war work in order to capture the civilian market while the competitors are working for defense, the power to commandeer should be invoked; insofar as they arise from the effort of private interests to drive hard bargains with the Government, the power to commandeer should also be invoked.

In other words the industrial system should be induced under compulsion to produce arms without hesitation or delay. The problem of indemnifying businessmen for losses which may be incurred and of recapturing excessive profits which may be gained is highly important. But it is secondary. There is time to indemnify men for losses which will not occur for months or years. There is time to tax them for profits which cannot be gained for months or years. But there is no time to wait to produce armaments while a theoretically perfect system of indemnities and taxes is worked out by Congress.

BUSINESSMEN will be very unwise if, after stating their needs and their claims, they delay the acceptance of contracts until they have obtained from Congress signed, sealed and delivered all the financial guaranties that may be necessary. They had better take some things on faith in a time when every human being must accept great risks. They had better act on the assumption that the American people will not deal ungenerously with those who now serve them well.

And by the same token the politicians might well remember that while tax bills can be enacted at any time before next March and can still do anything that is desirable and wise to do, the training of men and the production of arms cannot safely be delayed. Nor need they have any doubt about the enactment of a tax bill to equalize the economic burdens, to prevent war profiteering and obliterate the disgrace of riches acquired out of war. Let the country begin to arm seriously according to the principle of universal service and there will not be left a public man who would dare, even if he wished, to take his stand for war profits as against the national need.

In fact, it is only today, when a minority of the Senators are opposing the substance and spirit of national defense, arguing that there is no emergency, and, therefore, no need to make sacrifices, that men still feel entitled to haggle about whether they will or will not serve their country.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Mop up On Ickes

WHEN HAROLD ICKES goes into one of his political tantrums it takes days and days to pick up after him. We haven't had a man since Huey Long who leaves so much debris of as many kinds.

But willing hands make light work, as the fellow said, and today's doing will just about complete the job of sweeping and tidying after his recent defense of the dignity of the Presidential office.

In the course of that seizure of statesmanship, Mr. Ickes, defending in a negative way the corruption of the Chicago and Jersey City gangs which set the moral and social standard of the recent hoodlums' old-home week in which he participated in Chicago, declared that the New Deal, or Social Democratic Party, was responsible for the reform of Kansas City and the imprisonment of Commendatore Tomaso Pendergast, the honored friend of Benito Mussolini. With that mighty and reckless swipe Mr. Ickes knocked the statute of truth off the family whatnot; for the fact is that the party of humanity, in which Mr. Ickes is proud to collaborate with the hoodlum government of Chicago, avoided the initiative in the proceedings against Mr. Pendergast.

THE PARTY of humanity had knowingly accepted the political benefits of Mr. Pendergast's grafting and vote-stealing machine and did not turn against the commendatore until a staff of first-class newspaper reporters and writers, under the direction of Roy Roberts, of the Kansas City Star, turned up the evidence and compelled the Department of Justice to act.

The prosecution was then conducted by Maurice Milligan, the Federal district attorney, with the good and hearty cooperation of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Department—an ornery and intractable bureau which is hell on facts and evidence and, generally speaking, insensitive to politics. The intelligence unit, because of its political indifference, sometimes comes into conflict with a coy or bashful attitude at the Department of Justice, which has a lively political sense.

Mr. Milligan and Gov. Stark, also Democrats, both contributed to the destruction of the machine which had given valuable help to Mr. Ickes' party, but Mr. Milligan, who actually sent Pendergast and many of his assistant corruptioneers to prison, honestly and openly acknowledged that the credit for the initiative belonged to the Kansas City Star and the staff. They did the spade work and made it necessary for the Government to act.

THE POLITICAL sensitiveness of the Department of Justice was apparent in the celebrated second Louisiana purchase. There the intelligence unit got together evidence on which indictments were returned against some of Huey Long's colleagues, and one crook was sent to prison at a time when Huey was misbehaving. But after Huey was killed and the surviving thieves came out to parley under a flag of truce, Mr. Ickes' party of humanity made a treaty with them, the details of which are not known because it was not an open covenant openly arrived at but a furtive political job. The effects were plain, however. The Department of Justice compromised some of the cases on cash terms and the remaining indictments were dismissed on the ground that there had been a change of atmosphere.

Mr. Ickes' party then made fellowship with the crooks, who now considered that they had received a Federal charter to rob both the Federal and State governments and really went to town. They were thieving away like city slickers at a county fair, with no interference from Mr. Ickes' party until Mr. Jim Crown, the editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, like Mr. Roberts in Kansas City, also assisted by good reporters, caught them so flagrantly and scandalously that again, as in Kansas City, there was nothing to do but prosecute.

THE INITIATIVE here also was left to a newspaper editor and his staff, proceeding without subpena powers or police authority and at considerable personal risk, although the Government has very strong powers for such work and half a dozen detective agencies with police authority.

Mr. Ickes chided Wendell Willkie because Moe Annenberg, one of the master crooks of the age, was a Republican newspaper publisher and sideline politician of no petty influence and boasted, with reasonable pride, that it was the party of humanity which turned him up and sent him to prison.

That is correct, but he forgets to say that the crooked horse-gambling system, of which Annenberg was the national boss, has for years enjoyed a status comparable to that of a necessary public utility in Chicago and Jersey City under the toleration of Mayors Ed Kelly and Frank Hague, whose political collaboration Mr. Ickes enjoyed in bringing off with such illustrious success, hoodlums, old-home week, or party convention, in Chicago.

SENATOR JOSH LEE

Mr. Lippmann points out that the Senator's draft-the-wealth amendment (defeated yesterday) was gratuitous since Congress, by virtue of its power to tax and to commandeer, already possesses power to conscript wealth

No 'Pussyfooting'

By Mark Sullivan

President's Strong Stand On Draft

AT THIS PRESS conference, President Roosevelt went the whole way—came out squarely and forcefully for conscription. To the newspapermen it was, to some degree, a surprise. For, during some eight weeks past, Mr. Roosevelt has seemed to "pussyfoot" a little, about all aspects of the war, as if he feared to seem too aggressive. But today he put himself squarely behind conscription.

At first, we did not think he would. He began by saying the only news he had for us was about his signing a bill to regulate investment companies. Since the bill had passed both houses of Congress unanimously, there was no great news in his signing it.

After that one announcement, Mr. Roosevelt said there was no news. Three times, in differing words, he repeated that there was absolutely no news. He seemed to have a kind of truculently defensive manner—as if he anticipated what was going to happen, and had no hearty stomach for it, but was going to go through with it all the same.

FROM SOMEONE came the expected question—what was Mr. Roosevelt's attitude about the conscription bill pending in Congress? His reply was instant and strong. He wanted the bill, and he was absolutely opposed to further delay. The bill had been introduced June 20. Today (August 23) there had been no action in either house. Mr. Roosevelt wanted action now.

He expanded on the need. He said he had with him a memorandum from Secretary of War Stimson, about the necessity for conscription, and conscription promptly. This memorandum, Mr. Roosevelt referred to frequently. But he did not refer to it with the manner of a man reciting somebody else's argument. Nor did he do it with an air of passing the responsibility to the Secretary of War. He made the points as his own, took the responsibility himself. True, he had throughout the half-hour or so, the same manner of defensive truculence, as if he knew he was doing something daring, but was going to go through with it.

HE MET the various objections to conscription. And met also those objections which say that even if conscription may be necessary later, there is no immediate urgency for it right now. To the objection that we do not yet have the equipment for an immense number of soldiers, Mr. Roosevelt replied, convincingly, that we have, or can readily assemble, as much equipment as will suffice for the early period of training. Of rifles we have plenty. As to clothing, he, with his gift for the familiar and concrete, used as an illustration B. V. D's. Maybe there are not actually in the army stores an immense supply of B. V. D's. But there are plenty in the haberdashery shops and in manufacturers' stocks, until the regular flow of Army orders gets under way. Again, with his unfailing gift for the colloquial, he said there is need for training just for the sake of training. Everybody has soft muscles, the newspapermen before him have soft muscles, he himself has soft muscles. The conscripted trainees would have soft muscles. They will need weeks of training, just to make them equal to a march of 30 miles a day, which is the requirement created by modern war.

There is need for time, he said, to familiarize recruits with the many kinds of intricate new special equipment the Army uses—"walkie-talkies," the portable field radio sets, carried on the backs of soldiers; and "detectors" of the sound of enemy airplanes. Training in cooperation, between air troops and land troops, will take time. In all this sort of thing, Mr. Roosevelt said, and emphasized, America is rudimentary. Again he used a familiar illustration. When Rockne was football trainer at Notre Dame, he had to have at the beginning of the season far more than enough men for one football eleven, he had to have as many as 44 from whom to select 11.

THIS STRONG urging of prompt conscription by Mr. Roosevelt is a change after weeks of equivocal hesitation. Perhaps there has been inner conflict between the two personalities into which Mr. Roosevelt is now divided—Mr. Roosevelt the President, and Mr. Roosevelt the candidate for a third term. Between those two many a conflict must go on these days in the intimacy of Mr. Roosevelt's study. On this occasion, Mr. Roosevelt the President seems to have won, for the time being at least. He is for conscription, prompt conscription, and he stakes his political fortunes on that.

The bill needs Mr. Roosevelt's urging. In the Senate, there may possibly be a majority for it, though not certainly. In the House, informed persons say, there is a majority opposed to it. Some of the opposition is to conscription. Some is to conscription under Mr. Roosevelt as President. There is apprehension about what he might do with it, about what might follow it. There are men who would have voted for conscription readily under Woodrow Wilson, but hesitate under Franklin Roosevelt. There are men, including Democrats, who would be more reconciled to conscription if they knew that the President of the United States after next January would be Wendell Willkie.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Excusable Nostalgia

I

What a restful place this planet
In the recent yesterday,
When the mikes were free from screechers
And the radios were gay!
When a whole world cheered for freedom
And kept cities lighted nights—
And nobody thought of hatred
As the way to human rights.

II

When the world seemed light and happy,
Save in isolated spots,
And nobody thought a picnic
Was a place for hatching plots;
When most rulers seemed quite civil,
And behaved as if quite sane—
And whole nations never acted
As if born without a brain.

III

When a neighbor wasn't hated
If he'd money in the bank,
And a man could like traditions
Without being called "that crank!"
When a parachutist falling
In your garden from the air
Was a harmless young balloonist
From some nearby country fair.

IV

When the headlines in the papers
Didn't stand your hair on end
And the issue most momentous
Was "Is this straight or a blend?"—
When Babe Ruth to plate approaching
Was the only blitzkrieg here,
And America's one problem
Was the one of home-made beer.

V

When the world was scrapping navies
And all stocks were ten times par,
And a "raid" was merely something
On an upstairs club or bar;
When a third term was forbidden,
And a President who'd tried
For eight years to serve his country
Was content and satisfied.

VI

When a budget was a budget
And the thrifty knew no jeers—
When the word "That guy's in business"
Brought no swift and ready sneers;
When an airplane seemed an airplane—
Not an instrument of death—
And the deeds of man each minute
Didn't take away your breath.

VII

When a man could find a country
And, if patient, maybe two,
Where the killings weren't wholesale
And the methods weren't new;
When a military leader
Wouldn't bomb the refugees—
And the issue that upset us
Was "Should women show their knees?"

VIII

When the gangsters were just gangsters
And not leaders of the State,
And a yeggman was a yeggman,
Not a headlined potentate;
When the old ways were the best ways,
And we liked the proven trails,
When the bugs were in the bughouse—
And the bandits were in jails.

SOLIDARITY

Bathrobe workers have just won a pay raise. Had it been refused, the slipper, pajama and shaving cream workers were to have walked out in sympathy. The support of the song writers might, as a matter of fact, gone to them, too.

Wendell Willkie is to be shown in a second "Information Please" movie during the Presidential campaign. The program officials say this picture was taken before Mr. Willkie's nomination. Just the same we think that, if Wendell is elected, he will have to come out for a "quizziness administration."

And he may even have to name John Kieran, F. P. A. or Oscar Lavant to his brain trust.

ECHOES

This peace is hardly bearable today,
When the sun rises brightly, and one feels
In all the streets the steady throb of wheels
That bear men forth to daily work or play.
There is a strange new meaning in the sight
Of friendly faces, of a bird or flower,
In all the simple pleasures of each hour,
And in the deep tranquillity of night,
Ever and ever, to my listening ears,
The echo of the guns on other earth
Than this, robs life of sweetness and of worth,
And leaves it but an empty shell of fears.
And when I think of him who bears that pain,
Sunshine grows black, and flowers are dead again.
—Dr. Catherine Ruth Smith.

Nice Going

Edward and Wallie,
Edward and Wallie,
They're doing fine
In a tough world, by golly!

Hotsy Totsy III, a boat scorned by the experts and picked up by its driver, Sid Allen, a skating rink proprietor, for a thousand dollars a few hours before, won the famous Gold Cup speedboat race, and if second-hand boats have any feelings they must be having a hearty chuckle today. Speedboats costing vast sums were in the race, but were put out by mechanical troubles. Old Hotsy Totsy, far below them in actual speed, won because she kept going and didn't give out or unravel at any time. Allen didn't even have a monkey wrench with him. Maybe that's what won the race for him.

Willkie Statement

Candidate's Charge Against WPA

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 23.—Wendell L. Willkie issued the following statement today after a press conference at which he discussed the size of WPA rolls:

In 1933, a nonelection year, the WPA relief rolls of the country as a whole declined 15.4 per cent from the month of June through October, although during these same months the index of industrial production reflected an employment decline of 16.6 per cent.

In the succeeding year, 1934, an election year, the WPA relief rolls for the country as a whole increased 11.6 per cent from June through October.

Up 19 Per Cent in 1938

In 1935, another nonelection year, the WPA relief rolls showed a decline of 9.6 per cent from June through October. But in 1936, a Presidential election year, they increased 14.4 per cent, although unemployment declined 13 per cent during those same months. Again in 1937, a nonelection year, the WPA rolls for the country showed a decline of 16.9 per cent from June through October, despite the fact that the index of industrial production declined 10.5 per cent in that period.

However, in 1938, an election year, the WPA rolls increased 19.2 per cent, although unemployment declined 9 per cent for these months from June to October. And again in 1939, when there was no election, the number on relief rolls declined 25.5 per cent for the months from June to October.

Since war broke out last September, there has been a steady increase in industrial activity and reemployment in this country. There is no justification for an increase in WPA relief rolls as a consequence of this increase in activity and reemployment.

Rolls Increase in July

In fact, the trend was for reduction of the relief rolls until recently. As the election approaches, however, there is already definite proof that the Roosevelt Administration is planning again to pack the rolls, especially in those States which are politically doubtful. During the month of July of this year, the relief rolls have increased by nearly 90,000 for the country as a whole over the month of June, despite increased industrial activity, increased employment and the fact the summer naturally would tend to reduce relief funds.

It is generally conceded that one person placed on relief may affect as many as four votes. Consequently, the addition of 90,000 during the month of July could mean a switch of 360,000 votes from the Republican to the Democratic column.

Hatch Act Cited

The Hatch Act, passed over the vigorous protest of Administration spokesmen and finally approved by the President on August 2, 1939, includes the following section:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to promise any employment, position, work compensation or any other benefit, provided for or made possible in whole or in part by any act of Congress, to any person as consideration, favor or reward for any political activity or for support of or opposition to any candidate or any political party in any election."

Soviets Affirm Nazi Pact on Anniversary

Russia Says Treaty Stands Unshakable; Facts Hint Otherwise

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 23.—One year old, the Soviet-German partnership was declared today by the official organ of the Russian government to stand with "unshakable firmness" in the face of efforts to break it which continue "up to this day."

An editorial in the newspaper Izvestia, on the anniversary of the German-Soviet non-aggression pact, likewise related how the corollary trade agreement between the two countries has, in the past year, given Germany "the raw materials she especially needs . . . because of the blockade organized by Brittain, at first against Germany alone and now, already, against the whole of Europe."

Benefits to Reich Are Held Illusory

By Edward E. Bomar,
Associated Press Staff Writer

On the first anniversary of the Russo-German partnership in power politics, Adolf Hitler must feel a little grim over the deal.

His fellow dictator, Stalin, has cashed dividend after dividend in territory, power and prestige. Germany thus far has collected only immunity from attack in the east. This may have been of great benefit to the Nazis by permitting them to concentrate on their whirlwind campaign in the West, but for it the Nazis paid a price which only the future can measure.

What the Reich has obtained in raw materials to offset the Allied blockade is a small fraction of the totals pictured in glowing predictions of both Berlin and Moscow.

The evidence is so strong that the Nazis have been disappointed in the trade returns that diplomats must smile cynically when reading the anniversary statements of the official Soviet press.

Unless some of the best informed American economists are badly fooled, the commercial exchange has actually increased only negligibly. Far from being the biggest year in two decades, it may have been no more than a tenth of the total of 1931, two years before Hitler's accession to power. It probably remains smaller than the trade between Russia and the distant United States.

The 10-year non-aggression treaty pledged Russia and Germany to refrain from any act of force or support of warlike acts against the other. It was signed under dramatic circumstances last August 24. The trade agreement came three days earlier.

The text of the latter was not published and the quantities of raw materials that Russia was to supply were not publicly specified, but Nazi publications subsequently mentioned a billion marks as an objective for the first year's turnover. The mutual trade had exceeded that figure in 1931 but dwindled to less than 100 million marks ($40,000,000) in 1938.

From Russia, the Reich hoped to obtain great quantities of grain, oil, wood, cotton, phosphates, flax, platinum and manganese—all vital war materials. The best evidence is that the expectations were realized only in foodstuffs for hogs and cattle. Russia furnished about a million tons whereas Germany the year before the war imported two and a half times this much.

Actual counts of railway and Black Sea steamer shipments reported to official Washington have indicated no material increase in oil shipments to Germany. The Nazis received considerable amounts of manganese at first but this flow appears to have halted this year.

One of the most serious of German shortages was in fats of all kinds, but there is no evidence that the deficiency has been remedied from Russia. There was talk of big shipments of soy beans across Siberia from Manchuria, but an estimate of railway facilities quickly showed them to be impracticable.

Meanwhile, with hardly a bow in the direction of Berlin, Stalin has absorbed three states that give Russia control of the eastern Baltic, has regained Bessarabia from Rumania, and has wrested territory from Finland, as well as taken his slice of Poland.

'Death Angel' Plans New Nazi Weapons

Erich Mueller Said To Have Secrets Only Hitler May Share

By the United Press

Berlin, Aug. 23.—A shy little man who has been nicknamed "the Angel of Death" knows more of the secrets of the Nazi war machine than probably any other man except Adolf Hitler, but few of the German people know him or have even heard his name.

Erich Mueller, a small and unassuming man of about 50 who won't tell you his age, is as obscure as his methods and the secrets he holds.

Mueller, friend and confident of the Fuehrer, recently confided to a colleague that he has developed several sensational "secret weapons" which Hitler has decided to hold in reserve until the final phase of the war.

He is the production manager at the great Krupp Armaments Works and is described by high Nazis as one of Hitler's favorite engineers. It was the workers at Krupp who gave him the nickname "Angel of Death" because of his destructive inventions.

It was Erich Mueller, according to an authorized German spokesman, who supervised the production of a great part of the German mechanized war machine which swept across Poland in 18 days and smashed France in 38 days.

During a visit to Essen early in August to congratulate the German armaments king, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen Undhalbach, on the latter's seventieth birthday, Hitler is said to have spent nearly three hours conferring with Mueller.

They talked about the building of Germany's "newest weapons" as yet unrevealed to the enemy, according to Nazi spokesmen.

After their talk Mueller conducted the Fuehrer and Reich Minister of Armaments Fritz Todt on a tour through four secret workshops of the Krupp plant.

Hitler wouldn't even allow his bodyguard to accompany him, it was said.

The workers in these four laboratory shops are watched constantly by German secret police, and high-ranking Nazis would find themselves turned away if they tried to enter the place.

So far as is known no member of the German cabinet except Hitler, Todt and Marshal Goering has any inkling of what is going on in those shops.

Mueller won't talk about himself, has few real friends and his name doesn't appear in the latest edition of "Wer Ists," the German Who's Who, or any other reference book.

A bachelor, he lives with his sister in a small and insignificant house in Essen. He is short, heavy-set and has dark hair and a prominent forehead.

The man behind Germany's mechanized war machine is more or less a self-made man. He did heavy manual labor in his youth to earn the money to attend college and later he spent many years in laboratories in Berlin working on stratosphere research.

German industrialists credit him with inventing a so-called "caliberless cannon," a gigantic gun without the usual rifling which uses a secret device to give the shell nearly twice the ordinary velocity.

But it is impossible to confirm the existence of such a gun, let alone the fact that Mueller is its inventor.

In 1934 on Hitler's orders Mueller was appointed production manager of the Krupp Works in Essen.

He is ruler of a secret works at Essen, set apart from the main Krupp buildings and known as "T-ST-15."

Within this heavily guarded place three highly skilled men are at work under Mueller's orders. One is the father of a family, but the other two are bachelors like the "Angel of Death" himself.

The three men have been laboring there since last February 13, when the workshop was opened and, according to well-informed Nazi sources, they have taken a pledge not to leave the premises of "T-ST-15" until released by Mueller.

Since early in August many of Mueller's staff have been absent on trips to the French Channel coast, to southwest France and to Scandinavia, apparently to supervise the mounting of heavy artillery such as the long-range guns that went into action yesterday.

'Death Watch' on Draft Bill Continues Outside Senate

The black-veiled members of the Congress of American Mothers yesterday continued their vigil outside the door of the Senate chamber, trying to prevent the passage of the Administration's draft bill.

"We're definitely for defense of this country," several of them asserted. "We're not pacifists, but we won't send our sons to fight another nation's war."

Some of them wore little American flag pins. Most of them had graying hair, and all were mothers of sons old enough for military service. One or two were the wives of World War veterans.

Their organization is not a front for any other group, the women say. They are paying their own expenses here and chipping in to pay those of their secretary, Mrs. Rosa M. Farber, of Detroit. They do not believe this country faces an emergency and take the stand that when it does there will be time enough to prepare for it.

Among them is Mrs. C. P. Baldwin, of New York, widely known for her "patriotic charts," issued as literature of the Defenders of the Constitution of the United States.

Mrs. Baldwin discounts Nazi propaganda and declared the Carnegie Endowment for World Peace and the Rockefeller Fund have been used for pro-British propaganda. Back of the movement for conscription and "the whole New Deal program," she sees a plan for a "British Commonwealth of the World." This, she asserts, would have Jerusalem as its capital and the Duke of Windsor for King. The Anglo-Saxon Federation of America, she said, was the center of "subversive" British activities.

The German invasion of Czecho-Slokakia and Poland and the betryal of Norway and other democratic states she blamed on England.

"It's too bad we women have to leave our homes and come here to make the Government behave itself," said Mrs. Grace Rylander, of Baltimore, president of the Silver Star Mothers, as she threw back her mourning veil. Mrs. Mary A. Decker, of Detroit, president of the Mothers of the United States, also was there. The various groups were formed last fall to oppose the repeal of the arms embargo, she said, and merged against conscription.

Headquarters for the group is the Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. Baldwin is the guest of Mrs. William D. Leetch, 1697 Thirty-first street, who was recently removed from the chairmanship of the national defense committee of the District D. A. R. for criticism of the policies of that organization.

She conferred yesterday with George E. Sullivan, local attorney, but declined to say whether the conference had any bearing on the activities of the mothers' group at the Capitol.

Seal Will Be Counsel Of 2-State Milk Group

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal will become general counsel of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association when he resigns November 1, it was learned yesterday.

Seal, whose resignation was first mentioned during the House milk inquiry more than a year ago, declined to reveal when he would step out of office. He said he hadn't given much thought to it recently "because of unsettled conditions."

Marvin McIntyre To Return Today

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, who has been in Asheville for the last 18 months recuperating from an illness, left Asheville late today with Mrs. McIntyre to return to Washington. They are due to arrive in Washington early tomorrow.

More than a score of friends went to the station with them. McIntyre is greatly improved.

Postcards Relate Vacation Stories

From Santa Barbara, Bailey's Beach, Havana and Cape Cod Come Society Jottings of Washingtonians at Play

EPISTLES BY POSTCARD:

From the reverse side of a chromo-tinted view of the Santa Ynez range in Santa Barbara:

"The colony out here this summer is a queer mixture of people as far removed as Emil Ludwig and Brenda Frazier. Mixture is not perhaps the right word, as the two groups never see each other. The glamour girl of 1939 came here for the annual Fiesta, which is timed every summer for a full moon. Everybody dresses up in old Spanish costumes and stays out on the town for days.

"The Albert Deweys have a house here and are active in the local doings, which center around the magnificent lemon-yellow, blue and white Coral Casino. As you know, Mr. Dewey and his bride, the former Felicia Fiske, have leased Mrs. J. Borden Harriman's Washington home for the winter.

"Paul Flato, the famous jewel designer, who numbers Helen Hayes and other celebrities among his clients, is also here. Walter White just flew back to Washington after a vacation with Mrs. White—both were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. Adolph Spreckels. Mrs. Spreckels is the former Baroness von Romberg and has frequently visited Washington."

FROM BAILEY'S BEACH:

"I am completely exhausted after my vacation in Newport and look forward to getting back to Washington to rest. I have to stay up till almost dawn, and then, just as I sink into the slumber of exhaustion, my hosts drag me forcibly off to the beach.

"Pretty Ethel Wright is here to visit Joan Leidy, and Eleanor Meem stepped off the train a day or so ago. Washington's two glamour girls, Peggy Townsend and Eleanor Flood, have departed after making a colossal hit with the local swains. Peggy is in New York and Eleanor went on to the Berkshire festival.

"James Parks is back in Washington again after a visit with Arthur Bradley Campbell and the Meuser girls. Mr. Campbell and his household of young ladies expect to move out of Chetwode September 9, when the John Jacob Astors move in. They may go to Hot Springs, but their plans are a bit indefinite, even for next winter. The trio is debating spending the coming season in Chicago, where Marjorie and Isabelle Meuser had an apartment last winter.

"Groggily yours, Peter."

FROM THE HOTEL NACIONAL, Havana:

"By the time you get this, Mrs. George S. Messersmith, wife of the American envoy to Cuba, will be in New York. She has just sailed on the new liner America, which stopped here during a 12-day maiden voyage to the West Indies. Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper, of Florida, was among those on the cruise."

LINES DASHED OFF in a cramped position beneath a stunted Cape Cod pine:

"The summer residents in Duxbury are picking up all sorts of odd information, such as the fact that spinach came originally from Persia. These nuggets of knowledge were acquired at a unique "Information Please" party held here with Mrs. Charles Bittinger acting as mistress of ceremonies."

Elise Ekengen Goes North

Miss Elise Ekengren, who has been visiting Rehoboth with Miss Diana Rowland, has continued north to Lake George. From there she will go to Southampton to visit Miss Laura Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who are at Dormie, their summer home there.

Miss Rowland has returned to Washington, but is planning a brief trip over Labor Day—destination not yet decided on. She and her mother, Mrs. Henry C. Rowland, are moving shortly, but only next door. Their present home at 2332 Massachusetts avenue has been leased to Senator and Mrs. Josiah W. Bailey, who, oddly enough, now live only one door below that.

As soon as painting and papering on her new house are completed, Mrs. Rowland hopes to get away for a vacation. But she expects to be here until October 1.

Mrs. Cumming, Jr., To Visit Mother In California

Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming, jr., left yesterday for California for a vacation with her mother, Mrs. Frank West. She will return in about two weeks.

Mrs. Cumming has spent the summer in Washington where her husband, who heads the Scandinavian desk at the State Department, has been kept busy by his duties.

Another vacationer is Mrs. Emmons Smith, who has returned to Hot Springs, Va., until after Labor Day. Mrs. Smith has been there off and on for most of the summer, but came back to Washington last week. She has been occupying the apartment on Bancroft place of Mrs. Pearsons Rust, who is now in Essex, Conn., visiting Mrs. Benjamin Thaw.

Daughter Born To W. M. Yaters

Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Mason Yater announce the birth of a daughter on Sunday at Georgetown University Hospital.

The child has been named Camille Frances. Mrs. Yater is the former Ruth Millicent Becker.

Colin Macrae Bridal Usher

Dr. Colin MaCrae, of Alexandria, will be among the ushers at the wedding August 31 of Miss Anne Tooker, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norman Brown Tooker, of Princeton, N. J., to Dr. Henry Andrews Cotton, jr., son of Mrs. Cotton and the late Dr. Cotton, of Trenton and Princeton, N. J. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock at Thorvale Farm, the Williamstown, Mass., summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Tooker.

Miss Tooker has chosen her sister, Mrs. Trowbridge Callaway, of New York, as her matron of honor and only attendant. Dr. Cotton's best man will be Dr. Earl Taylor, of New York, and, besides Dr. Macrae, the ushers include Trowbridge Callaway, jr., and Joseph Wright, 2d., of New York; Archer Alexander, of Stamford, Conn., and Dr. R. Carmichael Tilghman, of Baltimore.

Tribbys to Visit Daughter, Husband In Beverley Hills

Col. and Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby will leave this afternoon for California, where they will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Halliday in Beverley Hills.

Mrs. Halliday, Mrs. Tribby's daughter, visits here frequently. Mr. Halliday, the stage and screen actor, is now working in the film, "The Philadelphia Story," in which Katharine Hepburn has the leading role.

The Hallidays, who formerly owned a large home in Los Angeles, sold it some time ago when they moved to Honolulu. They recently took an apartment in Beverley Hills. After completing his work in the current film, Mr. Halliday, his wife and their son, John, jr., will return to Hawaii.

Col. and Mrs. Tribby expect to be back in Washington the latter part of September.

Dorothy Graves Becomes Bride Of Sen. and Mrs. Barkley's Son

MR. AND MRS. DAVID MURRELL BARKLEY

National City Christian Church Is Scene Of Quiet Ceremony; Couple Leave by Motor For Paducah, Where Reception Will Be Held

In a quiet ceremony at National City Christian Church yesterday afternoon, Miss Dorothy Girardeau Graves, daughter of Mrs. Ashton Winter Graves and the late Mr. Graves, became the bride of David Murrell Barkley, son of Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Mrs. Barkley. The Rev. Ivan Dugan officiated at the 4:30 ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a flesh pink marquisette frock, fashioned with a fitted bodice and full flowing skirt. Her picture hat of matching horsehair was trimmed with velvet ribbon, and she carried an old-fashioned colonial nosegay of fleshspink posies.

Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, the former Miss Marian Barkley, sister of the bride was the matron of honor and the only bridal attendant. She was gowned in blue taffeta and carried sweetheart roses. Mr. Truitt was the best man and there were no ushers.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left by motor for Paducah, Ky., where the bridegroom's parents will give a reception in their honor for 300 hundred guests. For traveling the bride wore a turquoise suit with dark blue accessories and a corsage of orchids. On their return they will make their home here on Cleveland avenue.

The bride was educated at St. Mary's Cathedral in New York and at the Packer Collegiate Institute on Brooklyn Heights. Mr. Barkley attended the University of Virginia.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Frank H. Nygren, aunt of the bride, and the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Wright Coolidge Palmer, of Detroit, Mich., and Guy Tobler, of Hackensack, N. J.

Mrs. Simpson Here With Daughter For Short Visit

Mrs. Kenneth Simpson and her daughter, Miss Anne Simpson, have arrived here from New York and are staying at the Wardman Park for a day or two.

Miss Simpson is a talented dancer who appeared as featured soloist with the Junior League here a year or so ago. She has done extensive studying abroad and has appeared many times in New York. Miss Simpson is now doing research work and is looking up data on old costumes at the Library of Congress.

Mary McNally, Alexandrian Wed

Capt. and Mrs. William McNally, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Agnes, to Thomas Anderson Sommers, jr., of Alexandria, Va., on August 14.

The wedding took place in Warrenton, Va., with the Rev. John C. Ryan officiating. Mr. Sommers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Sommers live in Alexandria. The couple will make their home here at 1127 Allison street.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Return Here From Cape Cod

Mr. and Mrs. William S. B. Lacy have returned from Cape Cod, where they were entertained by the Second Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Redgar Opie, and Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard.

The Stoddards, who have been at West Dennis most of the summer, will return to Washington next month. Mrs. Stoddard was in charge of the tea table at the Allied Charities fete given at West Dennis yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. John Cox, a friend of the Stoddards, who has lived in Paris for ten years and was there when the Germans occupied the city, will tell of her experiences, including her harrowing escape to Lisbon. She arrived in this country by freighter a few days ago.

Mrs. Dunbar Guest Of Huron Lawsons

Dr. and Mrs. Huron W. Lawson have as their guest at Bear Den Lodge, Bluemont, Va., Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Dunbar will return to Washington next Tuesday.

Wanderbirds Hiking Club More Than Doubles Its Membership

THE WANDERBIRDS HIKING CLUB has more than doubled its membership since spring. It now has 438 on the mailing list for its announcements, 236 having been added within the last six months.

Tomorrow, the members will go from Fair Haven, Va., to Pohick Station, leaving the National Theater here at 9 a. m. From Back Lick road they will go by way of Deep Cut Branch, Barkers Crossroads and the upland trail to Mermaid Pool for swimming, then out to Pohick Station. The distance is 6 miles in open woods. The following Sunday, the group will go to Great Falls, Md., and, on Labor Day, will spend the day at Chapel Point, Md.

The summer schedule has included a wide variety of interesting trips, taking the members to beautiful places June 23, rhododendron was the highlight and there were more than 50 in the party of hikers. The next week roses were in full bloom. July 4 a party of 19 went to the Adirondacks and climbed all the best mountains, including Marcy, the highest.

On a trip to Centerville, Md., July 21, the group stopped to look at Wye Oak, 400 years old. On August 4 wild blackberries were gathered.

The fall schedule will include four mountain hikes, the semi-annual meeting September 16, the third annual photographic exhibit, a hiking, swimming and corn-roasting trip by moonlight, on September 18, and the annual Halloween dance.

There are about 25 in the bicycle group that meets at the Tidal Basin on Thursday nights at 6:30. The riders go to the point where they watch the sunset. The trips will soon be discontinued as the days are getting shorter.

PLAN FOR SPRING—Members of the garden section of the Takoma Park Women's Club are preparing to do their fall planting of spring bulbs. With the tulip supply from Holland cut off by the war, they are waiting news as to whether bulbs from English gardens will be sent to this country in large quantities.

Should there not be tulip bulbs available, the women are discussing what to plant in their place. Narcissus, early iris and snowdrops are among the flowers that have been decided on.

Mrs. Ivan Richmond is chairman of the section and her sister, Mrs. George E. Davis, chairman of program.

The garden section meets during the summer months instead of during the regular club season, as this is the period when gardens are at their best. In July a picnic was held and, at this month's meeting, at the home of Mrs. John Ross, a motion picture on flower arrangement was shown. The meeting was to have been in her garden on Silver Spring avenue, but rain sent the members inside.

The third Monday in September will be the date of the next session, and on that occasion, movies taken by one of the members on a Western trip will be shown.

BURNSIDE CORPS—Burnside Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, will meet Tuesday night at the Grafton Hotel. It is hoped that the president, Mrs. Nettie Gray, after an absence of about two months on account of serious illness and who has now recovered, will preside.

Miss Steadhowder, a candidate for membership, is to be initiated.

The following delegates from the corps will attend the fifty-eighth annual convention to be held September 8-13 in Springfield, Ill: Mrs. Delia L. O'Brien, Mrs. Bertha B. Brown, Mrs. Rosalie McKee Shelton and Miss Mary L. Howarth, from Lincoln Corps; the deparument president, Miss Mary G. Pinnock, Mrs. Moree Buckels McElroy, Miss Fields, president of Lincoln Corps, and Mrs. Fredericka Thomas; from Kit Carson Corps, Mrs. Sophie Bergner, and from Phil Sheridan Corps, Mrs. Cordelia Pollard.

PLANS CONVENTION — Mrs. Pauline L. Rhors, State manager of the Woodmen Circle for Maryland and the District, is in Baltimore, where she is assisting in preparations for the National Fraternal Congress, to be held there next week.

She has just returned from a two weeks' vacation at Lake George, Saratoga, Albany and New York.

Miss Chaffee To Be Wed To F. H. Brooke

Ceremony to Be Held At Narragansett Next Saturday

Of much interest here is the news that Miss Carolyn St. John Chaffee, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Everitte St. John Chaffee, of Providence and Wakefield, R. I., has completed plans for her wedding to Frederick H. Brooke, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, of Washington and Nonquitt, Mass.

The ceremony will take place next Saturday afternoon at St. Peter's by the Sea, Narragansett, R. I. The Rev. Thom Williamson, the rector, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. H. Martin Davidson, chaplain of St. George's School in Newport. A reception will follow at Pommelpocket in South County, summer home of the bride- lect.

Mrs. John Blakemore, sister of Mrs. Chaffee, will be matron of honor, and Miss Carolyn Metcalf, of Providence, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids include Mrs. Charles P. Stone, of New York, sister of Mr. Brooke; Mrs. Mason F. Cocroft, jr., of Providence; Mrs. Clive DuVal, of Darien, Conn.; Mrs. Frank T. Griswold, jr., of Radnor, Pa.; Mrs. E. Coe Kerr, jr., of New York; Mrs. David Wilder, of Cambridge, Mass.; Miss Anne B. Jackson and Miss Meredith Marshall, of Providence, R. I.

Mr. Brooke will be best man for his son, and the ushers will include E. Bates McKee, of Mount Kisco, N. Y.; Stuart Chaffee and John B. Chaffee, of Providence, the bride's brothers; John Alsop, E. Coe Kerr, jr., Charles P. Stone and Arnold B. Chase 3d, of New York; A. Watson Cocroft, of Providence; Potter Stewart, of Cincinnati; Louis Stone, jr., of Bronxville, and Gleed Thompson, of Corning, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, of Washington, will give a dinner Friday at the Clambake Club in Newport for the couple and Mrs. Murray S. Danforth will entertain at a luncheon at her home in Exeter, R. I., on Saturday, just before the wedding.

Indian Beach Masque Held

One didn't have to be an artist to enjoy the Artists' 'Bal Masque at the Rehoboth-Indian Beach Club last evening. The most important affair of the summer season, it climaxed a series of gayeties at the resort and was attended by many Washingtonians.

Mrs. James H. Hughes, wife of the Senator from Delaware, was a member of the receiving line. Patrons and patronesses from Washington included Gen. and Mrs. Samuel T. Ansell, Sir Owen and Lady Chalkley, Gen. and Mrs. Charles B. Drake, Col. and Mrs. F. Granville Munson, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Prew Savoy, daughter of Senator John G. Townsend, jr., and Col. and Mrs. George S. Arrowsmith.

Prizes for outstanding costumes were awarded by Mrs. Jesse Gundry, of Baltimore; Mrs. Wallace W. Chiswell and Dr. George Atkinson, of Washington, and W. S. Corkran, of Rehoboth Beach.

Mrs. Buchanan Visits Actress Daughter in N. Y.

Mrs. Richard B. Buchanan is dividing a vacation of several weeks between New York and Newport, and will not return here until after Labor Day.

New York may not sound very alluring in the summer, but Mrs. Buchanan chose it with a purpose —to see her talented daughter, Aleen, one of the dancers in the show, "Louisiana Purchase." Miss Buchanan has been making her home in New York with her aunt, Mrs. Vivian Linke, who has just been divorced from Lieut. Comdr. Linke. Mrs. Linke left Washington several years ago for Manhattan, and has made an outstanding success there as a photographers' model.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

Admiral and Mrs. Harold Bowen were guests of honor at a cocktail party the other day at Rehoboth Beach. The hosts of this very pleasant gathering were Commander and Mrs. Frederick Kaufmann, who have recently taken a house in Washington. Commander Kaufmann is stationed at the Navy Department, his last post having been Philadelphia.

The Kaufmanns have a charming cottage at Rehoboth on Henlopen avenue. They have built it to suit their own tastes, adding to it year by year as the spirit moves them. A dining-room paneled in wood, a huge open fireplace, and a screened porch open to all the breezes make it a perfect all-weather summer residence.

• • • •

About 60 persons dropped by to meet the Bowens during the late afternoon, a number of them being Washingtonians. Besides the guests of honor, who live on Woodley road, there were Judge and Mrs. Edgar Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Parker—the Parkers have a lovely cottage right on the beach up Indian Beach way—Mr. and Mrs. Turner Catledge, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Van Devanter, Senator and Mrs. James H. Hughes—he is junior Senator from Delaware—and T. J. Burton.

Other guests, not living in the Capital but well known there, were Dr. and Mrs. James Beebe—he has soothed the sunburn and more serious ailments of scores of Washingtonians vacationing at Rehoboth—and Mr. and Mrs. Marquis James.

The Kaufmann's small daughter Anne, helped her parents receive and trotted from dining-room to porch and back again seeing that everyone had the particular food and drink desired. Anne is an interested student at the Rehoboth Art League and will have some of her work in the league's exhibition which will be open to the public and is scheduled for next week. At home she amuses herself drawing cartoons and is amazingly good at it.

DISCUSSING THE war with Mrs. Kaufmann, I learned that she had just received a letter from a relative who has been driving an ambulance in France—a young man who since writing the letter, has been a prisoner of the Germans. He has now been exchanged and is in England waiting for transportation home.

I found the letter very touching and begged, and received, permission to quote part of it. Those kind people who have sent help to the unfortunates in Europe may not realize how much it has been appreciated. This letter tells the story.

• • • •

"As I wrote you before, I was not sure the French actually needed us and our ambulances. This doubt exists no longer. They have needed us badly and I honestly believe that we have accomplished a tremendous amount of good. I feel we—the United States ambulance drivers—have saved the lives of many who would have died had we not been here, and I am certain that my action in coming over here has been fully justified.

"The French treat us all like kings. From soldiers (second class) to generals, they are all marvelous to us. Here is an example of the way they feel about our efforts at helping them. I hope it won't seem too obvious 'sounding' on my part.

"The other day I went out as a stretcher-bearer — the regiment was short of stretcher-bearers—and we picked up a young lieutenant aged 22, whose leg had been shot away. A quick tourniquet kept him from bleeding to death. We didn't exchange a word till we got to the car, which had the American flag on it. He then asked in slow, perfect English, 'Are you an American?' I said yes and he replied simply, 'Thank you so much that you cold. I have just read the above are here." And then passed out and it doesn't sound so impressive but, believe me, it impressed me terribly at the time and under the circumstances.

"I wish I knew what America is thinking now. I have had no news since leaving our base. I supose all stories from this side are labeled propaganda, but there are two simple facts for which I can vouch because I was there.

"One: The Germans frequently and obviously fire on the Red Cross when there is no chance of mistaking it. Every one of us has had many proofs of that, and we have all begged the directors in Paris to let us take the Red Cross off our cars as well as the American flag. They have agreed to our camouflaging the top and removing the Red Cross there, but they want it kept on the sides—I think from a public standpoint.

"Two: The French treat German prisoners who are wounded with the greatest care in the world. If I bring in four wounded—two French and two Germans—they are treated in the order of the seriousness of the wounds — and no favoritism shown. I have had Germans wounded who spoke English who told me that they couldn't understand it.

"I pass along the above two facts because I am absolutely certain of them. I was there.

"Charlie."

Countess Returns To New York

The Countess of Abingdon has returned to New York after a whirlwind trip to Washington which included a visit with the Polish Ambassador, Count Potocki, and a call at "Dumbarton Oaks" to see Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss.

The countess is active in the group known as "Refugees of England." She is a friend of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and has been in this country for several months.

Mrs. Deutschbein Has House Guest

Mrs. Belle Deutschbein has as her guest in her apartment at the Cordova Miss Betty Nichols, of New York City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Nichols.

Tomorrow they will leave for Rehoboth Beach, where Mrs. Deutschbein has a cottage. They plan to remain for a week or ten days before returning to Washington, when they will leave for New York City.

Mrs. Samuel Gibson Visiting in Long Island

Mrs. Samuel H. Gibson and Miss Nancy Gibson, of Washington, are visiting Miss Agnes Franklin Keyes at Fair Oaks, her home in the Art Village of Southampton, Long Island.

Miss Keyes gave a tea on Thursday afternoon in honor of Miss Zella de Milhau, whose exhibition of etchings was held there throughout the day. Miss Gibson and Mrs. Joseph DuVivier assisted at the tea table.

Burkes to Fete Gen. Azcarate In October

Mexican Ambassador To Reich Will Visit Here En Route Home

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke will have as their guest some time in October Gen. Juan Azcarate, Mexican Ambassador to Germany, who is planning a trip to his homeland.

Gen. Azcarate will find the Burkes in a new home on Forty-fourth place which they recently bought. Mr. Burke is chief of the Division of International Communications for the State Department. They are particularly delighted with the small garden, complete with fountain, in the rear of the house.

Upon arriving in New York, Gen. Azcarate, who is well known in Washington, where he served as Military Attache, will visit several members of the Del Pulgar family now in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taquey and Mr. and Mrs. Juan Strunk make their home in Manhattan. Senora de Azcarate, one of the best-known Del Pulgar sisters, was unable to join her husband in Berlin and has remained in Mexico City with her children. Gen. Azcarate's visit to Washington will be brief, for he will be "just passing through" en route to Mexico.

Pamela Stonor Is Engaged

The international set is much interested in the engagement of the Hon. Pamela Sophia Nadine Stonor, daughter of Lord and Lady Camoys, of Stonor Park, Oxfordshire, England, to Capt. Charles Donald Leslie Pepys, eldest son of Mrs. Gerald Pepys, of Hurlingham Gardens, London, and Pontefract, Yorkshire, England, and the late Col. Pepys. The news has been made known by Lady Camoys, who is summering with her daughter in Newport.

The prospective bride was educated in England and presented at the Court of St. James in 1934. On her mother's side she is a granddaughter of Mrs. Watts Sherman, of New York and Newport, and the late Mr. Sherman. She is a great-granddaughter of John Carter Brown and through him is descended from one of the oldest Rhode Island families. She is a sister of the Hon. Noreen Stonor and the Hon. Sherman Stonor, a lieutenant in the Buckingham and Oxfordshire Light Infantry.

On her father's side, she is a great-granddaughter of Sir Robert Peel and a granddaughter of the fourth baron of Camoys, and a grandniece of the late Sir Harry Stonor. Miss Stonor has been most active in the interest of the British War Relief Society. Her father is a member of the Home Defense Corps in England.

Capt. Pepys, an officer of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, is temporarily attached to the Somaliland Camel Corps. He is a grandnephew of the second Earl of Cottenham.

Because of the war no definite plans have been made for the wedding.

Ruth Alexander, Bradish Smith 2d Are Betrothed

Of interest to Washington is the announcement made by Col. and Mrs. Roger Gorden Alexander, of West Point, N. Y., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Alexander, to Cadet Bradish Johnson Smith II.

Cadet Smith is the son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George L. Smith. Col Smith was the former P. M. S. and T. at the University. Cadet Smith is of the class of '41 at the United States Military Academy and was graduated from Shattuck Military Academy in 1935.

The prospective bride was graduated from the Shipley School in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and is a senior at the Child Education Foundation in New York City. Cadet Smith and Miss Alexander plan to be married in June.

Nancy Rheem Visits New York

Miss Nancy Rheem, who was a bridesmaid at the recent wedding of Grant Boss and the former Miss Beatrice Evelyn Fischer, is spending several days in New York.

Early next week she will return to her home in Dauphin, Pa. She is the daughter of Mrs. George Milholland, wife of Maj. Milholland.

Famous Siren Influences New Coiffures

The pompadour above is a direct descendant of those of the French court of Louis XV and also of those of the gay 90's. It inspired the modern pompadour hat worn with it.

The woman who doesn't look well in an off-the-face pompadour may choose a variation of this style in the form of bangs. The halo type of pompadour hat is worn above.

'Pompadour's Romantic Past Lives Again

Style Originating In French Court Gains Popularity

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

YOU may not approve the way furs have of rippling around coat borders this fall; you may not fancy the new straight, slim dress, but one thing you'll agree on is the wearability of the pompadour—both the coiffure and hat. The pompadour is the one style established for fall that has wide indorsement. Even men admire pompadours, consider them graceful and feminine.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Both the millinery and coiffure pompadours have had such far-reaching effects during the last month that they have virtually done away with competitive styles. Actually, there's nothing new about either pompadour hats or hair. According to Emile Beauvais, Washington beauty authority and student of his native French history, the pompadour started in the early 18th century French court before the Marquise de Pompadour ever had the style named after her. Being Louis XV's current mistress, Madam Pompadour got all the credit for the elaborate headdress which, this season, in softened form, has influenced every hairdresser and milliner in the country.

New Style Differs From Original

What precisely is this fall's pompadour? According to M. Beauvais, the modern pompadour is quite different from its French original, when the "hair was drawn straight back from the forehead and elevated with a roll." It is a deeply waved coiffure which might have a roll waved out away from the forehead or curled high back from the brow. Always there is hair height. "Probably it is the most flexible hairdress of all time," says Beauvais, "since the pompadour can be achieved by bangs, curls, fringes or very deep waves. It is also flexible from the standpoint of being adaptable to both day and evening dress."

Whom does the pompadour become? The enthusiastic Emile is not alone in considering this style flattering to virtually every woman, from the very young girl, who terminates her pompadour in shoulder-length curls tied with a peruke, to the gray-haired matron who affects a deftly shingled back or a soft back roll with her front waves. The pompadour gives a lift, both physical and psychological, to most faces, a fact not easily ignored except by angular or very slender-faced women who do not require an uplift of features.

And the pompadour hats? The term "pompadour hat" includes such diverse headgear that it now takes in anything from the skull cap with hair framing for it on all sides to the swooping profile hat which shows the hair roll at one side, covers the features on the other.

The real trend for pompadour hats started a year ago but gained full speed ahead last month. Last January the popular turned-back brim with grosgrain head-band was the forerunner of the Lillian Russell hat designed along varying lines by any and every milliner for spring and early summer

Scientific Care Would Lower Child Mortality

Most Diseases of The Young Curable Or Preventable

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The physician who is dealing with children has a great advantage because he has youth—young, resilient, plastic material. The best hope of preventive medicine is in attacking the great diseases of childhood. I have just had my attention called to some figures which show how much progress is being made along this line.

Three-fourths of the quarter-million annual deaths of American children can be prevented; 21 per cent of these deaths are due to curable diseases, while 56 per cent are due to preventable conditions. "The public," declares Dr. Wilburt C. Davison, "should be educated to utilize facilities now available."

The infant mortality rate in New York City in 1900 was 160 per thousand living births. In the past few years this has reached about 50.

Prenatal Care

Prenatal care can cut down the number of infant deaths in the first three months from 178 (per thousand) to 15.

The conditions listed which are preventable by care of the prospective mother or scientific care of the child during the first days and weeks of life are: prematurity, birth injuries, stillbirths, impetigo and syphilis. Deaths due to prematurity are from chilling, injury during resuscitation, and the improper use of too much analgesia during the last stages of labor.

Birth injuries are the next commonest cause of infant death in the first ten days of life. Most of these deaths would be prevented if before delivery the mother is measured for the diagonal conjugate diameter of the pelvis; if this is below 9.5 cm. she should be delivered in a hospital.

All Preventable

Diseases of the older child—representing 30 per cent of all infant deaths—which are preventable are accidents, anemia, dietary deficiencies (scurvy, rickets, tetany, pellagra), diphtheria, infantile diarrhoea, malaria, malnutrition, measles, mumps, whooping cough, poisoning, smallpox, lockjaw, infection of the skin (from accidental penetration of sharp objects or bruises, tuberculosis, undulant fever, typhoid, paratyphoid fever.

A WOMAN'S WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Barney Neighborhood House Now Teaches Americanism to Americans

BARNEY NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE is a hotbed of Americanism these days, according to Margaret Merrill, director of the settlement. The recent summer school program centered around American songs and folk dances, and "God Bless America" topped the hit parade. All this is as it should be, for roughly 99.4 per cent of the youngsters who gather at the house are of eighth and ninth generation American stock. The surnames sound like a roll call of the FFV.

Margaret Merrill

Miss Merrill took pains to see that all of the vacation school's 200-odd pupils understood as well as memorized the words to patriotic songs. Recently she heard one of her small charges, seated in front of one of the southwest section's typical row houses, singing to her baby sister about "alabaster cities . . . undimmed by human tears."

Before coming to Neighborhood House four and a half years ago, Miss Merrill had served as principal at two fashionable girls' boarding schools. She says there isn't as much difference between the administration of a settlement house and that of a finishing school as one would imagine. She feels a quiet satisfaction as she walks along N street southwest and every few steps hears a yell of "Hi, Miss Murl!"

Most carefully manicured lawn in town is that of the Federal Reserve building. The odd two-man parade you may have seen performing there lately is engaged in spreading tobacco dust on the grass. One man leads the way with a trough-shaped wagon from which the dust dribbles; his partner follows, dragging what appears to be a weighted cloth which insures even distribution.

SHOPPING AROUND—A matron of considerably more wealth than good manners asked a salesgirl to show her some blouses suitable for her daughter to wear for horseback riding. The girl produced three blouses. As the customer seemed unable to make up her mind, she pointed to one and said, "This is the kind I usually wear." The woman drew herself up and sputtered, "YOU! You've never SEEN a horse!"

Dy-Dee Wash, as everyone knows, caters only to baby's most intimate garments. Frequently, however, a mother will accidentally send off a shirt or blanket with the diapers. Because such articles are not marked it is often impossible to identify them and return them to their owner. About once a month the company bundles up the unclaimed infant accountrements, all neatly laundered, and turns them over to the Central Union Mission. The garments ultimately help make up layettes for expectant mothers served by the mission.

TIPS ON MARKETING
From the D. C. Department of Weights and Measures.

To estimate the weight of a piece of ice, measure the length, breadth and thickness in inches, multiply the three numbers together and divide the product by thirty. The result is a reasonably correct approximation of the weight in pounds. Well-frozen ice weighs about 56 pounds per cubic foot. The weights and measures law provides, however, that ice shall be weighed at the time of delivery, and housewives should insist upon that being done.

Fashion Experts Stress Neatness In College Attire

New York (AP).—The dean's office is in luck this year. New college clothes, developed to please the girls who'll wear them, probably will please faculty advisers, too. They're that neat and right and well-bred.

Maybe they won't even have to post the usual bulletins begging students, for the sake of visitors, to try to look a little less sloppy, as did a large Eastern girls' school last year. The faculty, almost tearful, asked, "Won't you please stop wearing campus costumes which are insulting to visitors?" Blue jeans and rubber boots were called especially offensive. (Students went right on wearing jeans.)

Careless clothes are a college tradition, and even co-ed institutions have their troubles with students who think it's smart to be messy.

But this year the cause of neatness is looking up. Fashion and beauty magizines are full of lectures on good taste in clothes.

Stores are trying their hand at reformation. They suggest well-tailored slacks or short pleated skirts instead of jeans. They make their suggestions in such attractive form—red corduroy, gray flannel, plaid wool—that students listen.

Film Beauties May Require More Curves

Why? Producers Look To New Market In South America

By Ida Jean Kain

NOW THAT our American movie makers are looking southward for their market, we can expect to see a change in the screenlined figure. The Latins like 'em with curves—not grossly—not grossly overweight, you understand, but definitely with the feminine figure!

And from the New York reception given Carmen Miranda, the Brazilian songbird, last season, it appears we like them that way ourselves. Miss Miranda is a dazzling bundle of vivacity who tips the scales in the 120's for her height of 5 feet 3 inches, and she has a gorgeous figure.

Her style offers quite a contrast to the beauty of some of our American stars — take Loretta Young, Anita Louise, Katharine Hepburn, ad infinitum! Or British Vivian Leigh and Gertrude Lawrence, or French Danielle Darrieux! Or Scandinavian Vera Zorina! Having interviewed these girls, I can tell you that, lovely as they are, they would be even more attractive for 10 more pounds. This holds true for a good percentage of the movie stars. They are just a shade too thin.

Miss Goddard Has Ideal Figure

Signs of the coming change are already apparent. It seems that every time a group of connoisseurs gets together to nominate the leading American beauty she turns out to be Paulette Goddard. Just recently six outstanding American artists added their approbation by naming Miss Goddard as the girl with the ideal face and figure for the films. I have given you the statistics on Miss Goddard before—I picked her myself some time back when asked to make my selection of the movie star with the most beautiful figure.

Miss Goddard is neither too thin nor fat. Here are her specifications: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 24½ inches; hips, 34 inches; thigh, 19 inches; calf, 13 inches; ankle, 7½ inches. She never lets her weight go below 112 pounds, which is about normal for her height and structure.

Healthy Example For Women

Miss Goddard is an excellent representative of the ideal American girl. She's the outdoor type. She loves sports of all kinds. She drinks a quart of milk a day, but eats no sweets or pastries.

With the South American fans agitating for more curvesome figures, it's highly probable that our screen stars will allow themselves a bit more margin in the matter of weight, and they will set a healthier example for the rest of the feminine world!

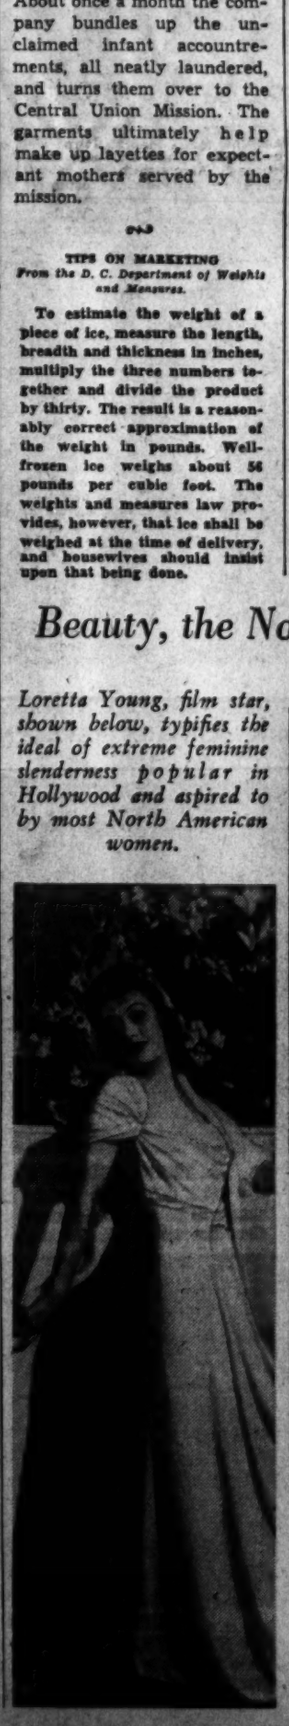
Beauty, the North and South American Ways

Loretta Young, film star, shown below, typifies the ideal of extreme feminine slenderness popular in Hollywood and aspired to by most North American women.



Carmen Miranda, Brazilian singer, shown above, typifies the South American standard of curvesome beauty—an ideal that Ida Jean Kain predicts will gain followers in Hollywood now that movie producers are looking toward South American markets. This means that Hollywood beauties will go in for a little less rigorous slimming regimes. Carmen Miranda is 5 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs around 120 pounds. She is the epitome of health and vivacity.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Deserted by Second Husband, After Conflict Over His Young Daughter, Woman Fights Melancholia

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As I am 44 years old, I suppose I ought to be ashamed to write you about such a problem as this. I was married at 16, and had three children. My marriage went on the rocks when I was 21. I went to work and supported the children. They grew up and got married. Then I married again.

My second husband was just my age and he had two daughters. One was 7 and the other 11 at the time we married. I had a business and my husband worked with me. For a time we got along nicely. But his older daughter didn't like me and I didn't like her. She was impossible to get along with. Her father didn't correct her in any way and she just wouldn't show me any respect.

Well, to make a long story short, my husband proved very selfish. He didn't care for me. He worked for himself, took all he could get his hands on, and left. Now I am so miserable I don't know what to do. I am succumbing to melancholy. I am so depressed in mind and spirit that I can't eat, sleep or work. All I can do is cry.

I know I am doing wrong. I am too old to act like a lovesick girl. But my young life was so miserable that I had hoped I would find happiness at last. Why did he give me up for his daughter? I gave him a good home and a good business and yet he left me. I cannot bear it. I have no will power. Why should any human being have to endure such anguish?

I feel sorry for my three wonderful children. I reared them without a father's help. I worked so hard for them; never knowing what happiness meant. And they never gave me a moment's trouble. Yet now they must see how I suffer. Please tell me what to do in this bitter trial that has come upon me. E. B. S.

Her Lack of Compassion Brought Her Unhappiness

DEAR E. B. S.: It is strange that you should have reared three children successfully, without developing greater philosophical inner strength with which to meet sorrows and deprivations. Indeed, if you had given more thought to growing in spiritual stature—and less to purely worldly preoccupations—it is likely you would have found blessings attaching themselves to you, instead of taking wing.

Granted that your second husband may have been unworthy of your trust—still, one feels that you failed miserably in your responsibility toward his difficult 11-year-old daughter. In so doing, no doubt you betrayed his trust in you, also, and left him without any sound reason for wanting to live with you. I expect he married you more in the hope that you would be a good mother to his children, and help him in giving them economic security, than because he was boyishly or deeply in love with you.

Your statements that you "didn't like her," and that "she just wouldn't show you any respect," gives one reason to sympathize with the child (whatever her faults), and it is to the father's credit that he allied himself with her, against you, if an absolute choice had to be made. And I assume that you forced such a choice by your attitude.

You were—as the phrase goes—"as bad as the child," in behaving so sulkily toward her. It was your problem to establish reciprocal friendship with her, after which she would have given you respect as a matter of course. If you had realized the gravity, the spiritual importance, of your foster-maternal obligation to her—or even if you had loved your husband with unselfish tenderness—you would have been far more concerned with disarming her prejudice and healing her bitterness than with trying to recapture a second youth for yourself.

You would have given her love and understanding sufficient to her needs—not necessarily because she was a likable or attractive child (which she may not have been), but because she stood so obviously in need of this type of attention.

At the age of 44, you should not need to be told that love generously given is simply the outflowing of a rich and tender personality; that we love in accordance with our capacity to love, and not in proportion to the recipient's deserts, nor with any tense expectancy of being repaid, in kind. Yet it is this large, impersonal kind of loving which irresistibly attracts devotion in return. And I suspect that your "tit-for-tat" type of emotional bargaining, in your second marriage, with both husband and stepdaughter, is what finally left you empty handed.

Not only your attitude toward the child, but also your latter day hysteria, clearly indicate that you have a real job of growing to do—mentally and emotionally—before you can claim the spiritual serenity which will constitute your passport to lasting happiness. There is, of course, the additional possibility that your chaotic misery stems partially from a physical condition, to-wit: the menopause. While this phenomenon of middle age doesn't always induce melancholia, the tendency is there; and an acute emotional upset is apt to provoke it in its most forbidding guise.

The best advice I can give you, therefore, is to procure first-class medical care immediately. Nearly all good doctors nowadays provide almost miraculously effective medical remedies for "blue moods." Their growing knowledge of the cause and cure of "functional" disorders—including those related to the menopause—is spelling the difference between misery and happiness for thousands of enterprising women.

Ivy and Sumac Poisoning Treatment

During the vacation months, people who go on hikes or such will face the dangers of poison ivy and sumac. As a prophylactic measure for those who may be exposed to these injurious plants, this solution may be used as a protective application for exposed parts of the body:

Glycerine	½ pint
Water	½ pint
Iron chloride	¾ oz.

Let this mixture dry on the skin.

If exposed, the following solution may be used to relieve the poison ivy dermatosis:

Ferric chloride	2.5 gm.
Sodium chloride	2.5 gm.
Glycerine	23.0 cc.
Distilled water, to make	100.0 cc.

Witty Phrases A Social Aid

IT OUGHT to be a thrill to sit out a dance with the best-looking young man at the party. But so often a dash of cold water seems to descend on your head as you leave the crowd. You can't think what to say!

That wouldn't happen if you knew a lot of bright phrases, colorful word combinations. From the very first second, you charm with your clever repartee, gay conversation.

To his "what bright eyes you have" you reply, "The better to see you with, my dear." And lightly you ripple on, speak of the "artful, witching moon," the "garden of enchantment" around you.

You greet your hostess charmingly with "It was so sweet of you to ask me." To the man who's thanked you for a dance, you murmur, "I enjoyed it, too." On being introduced, you start a conversation rolling with "Isn't this music divine?" You tell the friend who's done you a favor, "I'll never forget your kindness."

And in your more weighty moments, what a help expressive word combinations can be. Giving a book review at your club, you speak of the author's "graphic descriptions," praise his "talent and originality." At a job interview, you impress your prospective employer when you say that you are "capable and experienced" and "keenly appreciative" of his interest.

SALLY DIXON AND GILLIAN LEAVER, BOTH 5, GET FIRST LOOK AT WASHINGTON

Refugees Reach Haven

By Edward T. Folliard

Fifteen English children, ranging in age from 5 months to 15 years, arrived at Clover Croft, Fauquier County, Va., yesterday afternoon, fugitives from the wrath of Adolf Hitler.

The 3,000-mile trip from their beleaguered homeland was arranged by the United States Committee for the Care of European Children, of which Marshall Field, of New York, is president.

The little refugees came into Union Station on a Montreal train at 12:35 p. m. and were met by Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, and Mrs. Meyer, who are to be their hosts in this country "for the duration."

Anthony Shepherd, a blue-eyed infant of 5 months, arrived in what the English call a "carry-cart," a basket affair with handles on either side. Next youngest was Angela Kristin, a flaxen-haired little beauty of 2 years. Farthest removed from their parents, perhaps, were Bryan Barter, aged 4, whose father is a district commissioner in the African Soudan, and Sally Dixon, 5, and Valerie Dixon, 10, whose father is a major in the Indian army.

The arrival of the youngsters caused quite a stir at Union Station. Grimy-faced engineers, conductors and Red Caps smiled benignly and waved as the boys and girls trooped through the train shed on their way to a waiting bus. Perhaps, too, they gave some thought to the conqueror who had driven them here.

Leaving Union Station, the refugees rode past the Capitol and up Pennsylvania avenue toward the White House, the same route that their King and Queen had traversed on a happier day in the summer of 1939.

The omnipresent Goodyear Blimp, loafing along over the downtown section, attracted the attention of Miss Laila Dewidar, the kindergarten teacher who came along with the children.

"Oh," she said, "is that a balloon barrage?"

She was assured that Washington, unlike London, had not yet reached that stage of preparedness against marauding bombers.

Later on Peter Hyland, 7, wanted to know whether Washington had the "blackout" such as he had experienced in London while waiting for sailing orders. When told that Washington did not, Peter seemed surprised and relieved.

The children had luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, on Crescent place, and then again piled into the bus for a trip to Clover Croft, the 200-acre estate in the Virginia horse country which Mr. Meyer had leased for them.

Nine weeks ago, these children—or most of them—were in a nursery school in Sussex, on the east coast of England, about 6 miles from the Channel. On the day that France capitulated, thus assuring the Nazis of air bases all along the French channel coast, the school was moved to Devonshire in the English west country.

But that site was scarcely any safer. Unknown to the teachers, the Royal Air Force was building an airfield not far away from the school, and the German bombers set out to destroy it.

While Miss Margaret Leechman, head of the nursery school, was busy rounding up the children, Miss Barbara Ravenscroft, a teacher, told what happened in Devonshire.

"The German planes came over day and night," Miss Ravenscroft said. "There were air raid warnings all the time. One day I went out shopping. The planes came over so suddenly that there was no siren to warn us.

"I saw two bombs leaving an airplane, and I dived into a nearby house. The bombs fell about a quarter of a mile from our school. Then it was that we made up our minds that the only thing to do was to accept this wonderful offer to come to America."

After a great many delays, the group sailed a fortnight ago from a northern British port. The 20,000-ton liner was crowded with children, some 1,600 of them in all. In the convoy were six liners, escorted part of the way by cruisers and destroyers and all the way to Canada by one cruiser.

"We had goodish weather, except for about a day and a half," Miss Ravenscroft said, adding that the day and a half was enough to lay most of the children low with sea sickness.

Miss Ravenscroft was asked about conditions in England. From the outset, she said, few Englishmen dreamed that the war would reach the stage it has. Their attitude was, she said, that it could happen to other countries, but never to England.

"Now that it has come," she said, "England has the truly British outlook. It is this: 'Let Hitler come, and the sooner he comes, the sooner we will finish him off.'"

Miss Ravenscroft said that reports of the British fliers knocking down three or four German planes to every one they lose were not exaggerated.

"The best explanation is that our fliers have more initiative than the Germans," she said. "The Germans are all right as long as they are told what to do, but that is about all you can say for them. The British, on the other hand, are at their best when they are on their own—when they are called on for initiative."

Miss Ravenscroft was confident of ultimate victory for Britain, but she said everybody over there realized there was going to be "tremendous" damage before it was all over.

Other children in addition to those mentioned, were Robin Lee, 5, Brendon Hyland, 6, Peter Hyland, 7, Jeremy Lord, 2½, Christopher Leaver, 3, Gillian Leaver, 5, David Shaw, 6, Jane Duke, 7, Aida Dewidar, 12, and Elizabeth Picot, 15.

D. C. Bomb Blamed on Love Affair

Suspect Says He Mailed It to Woman Who Attempted to Spoil Romance

Rufus E. Cannon, 26-year-old colored orderly, mailed a bomb to Lillian Grymez, also colored, of 1508 S street northwest, "just to frighten her," he told United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

He pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of "sending explosives through the mail," and was held for action of the grand jury under $5,000 bail. Assistant District Attorney John Fihelly said a second charge of damaging a United States mail pouch would be heard by the grand jury.

Cannon was arrested Wednesday afternoon, about 12 hours after the bomb exploded at a postoffice branch at 1423 U street northwest, injuring two employes. He appeared before the commissioner in custody of two postoffice inspectors, who said they obtained a seven-page confession from him Thursday evening.

Tried to Square Triangle

Inspector George E. Bleakley explained to Commissioner Turnage that Cannon was going with another man's wife. "Another woman tried to break it up," he declared, "and the defendant became incensed and mailed the bomb."

Apparently unruffled by the accusation, Cannon volunteered a more complete story.

The bomb, he said, he "figured out" by himself in his room at the Soldiers Home Hospital, where he worked and lived. After its completion, he dropped it into a street-corner mail box at Seventh street and Maine avenue southwest.

"Why did you want to kill this woman?" Commissioner Turnage asked the man.

"I didn't want to kill her," the defendant exclaimed. "I just wanted to frighten her so she wouldn't testify against me."

(Bleakley explained that Cannon "was going with" a woman named Nellie Dorsey whose husband is suing her for divorce and that Mrs. Grymez, with whom the Dorsey couple lived about a year ago, was supposed to testify at the trial.)

Postoffice agents said the fact the bomb was in a paper container, instead of a wooden box, probably saved Mrs. Grymez's life. Had it been in a sturdier carton, they said, it would not have exploded prematurely.

Sack Saved Victims

The bomb went off on a rear platform of the postoffice branch when two employes unloaded it from a truck. It was in a sack with other mail and when the sack was dropped from the truck, agents said, the paper container collapsed, causing the mechanism to operate as if the box had been opened.

Inspector Bleakley said the mail pouch saved Hyman Ritzenberg, 32, of 223 O street southwest, and Harry Hess, 58, of Falls Church, Va., from serious injury. They received minor lacerations, but the mail pouch smothered the blast.

Cannon was described as being unusually intelligent and a "wizard with electricity."

He had several radios in his room, Bleakley said, a quantity of tools and material sufficient to make several more bombs of the same type. Several firecrackers and a dynamite cap, also were found, it was said.

Cannon attended an electrical engineering school at night, agents said.

PUC Accepts Cut in D. C. Gas Rates

New Schedule Effective Sept. 1; Will Save User A Nickel Monthly

A new rate schedule for gas consumers providing the average domestic customer with a five-cent reduction on his monthly bill was ordered yesterday b ythe Public Utilities Commission. The new rates will go into effect September 1.

A total of $706,892, based on last year's net earnings of the Washington Gas Light Co., will be turned back to all customers in rate reductions.

The domestic consumer will receive the largest share of the total reduction. PUC ordered that this group receive a total reduction of $70,810, as reflected in the new schedule "A" of the company. Commercial and industrial service consumers will receive a total reduction of $30,780 under a new schedule "C," and users of schedule "F," wholesale apartment house service, will net a total saving of $1,592.

New schedule "A," which reflects the savings to domestic consumers follows: First 800 cubic feet or less per month, 75 cents; next 1,000 cubic feet 8 cents per 100 cf.; next 3,500 cubic feet per month, 7 cents per cf.; and all in excess of 6,000 cubic feet per month, 6.1 cents per 100 cf. These rates are net rates and are applicable to bills paid before the end of the discount date.

New schedule "C," for commercial and industrial service: First 900 cubic feet or less per month, 75 month,cents; next 4,100 cubic feet per month, 7.9 cents per 100 cf.; next 95,000 cubic feet per month, 6 cents per 100 cf.; next 900,000 cubic feet per month, 5 cents per 100 cf., and all in excess of 1,000,000 cf. per month, 4.5 cents each 100 cf.

At the rate hearings Wednesday company officials said that last year there were 53 firms using in excess of 1,000,000 cubic feet a month. They would save about $18 a month.

Th new schedule "F," which applies to wholesale apartment house service follows: First 5,000 cubic feet per month, 8 cents per 100 cf.; next 5,000 cf. per month, 7 cents per cf.; next 190,000 cf. per month, 6 cents per 100 cf., and excess over 200,000 cf. per month, 5 cents per 100 cf.

Shafer Backs Proposed ABC Rule Changes

Board Postpones Hearings on Plan Until Next Month

Rerepresentative Shafer (Republican), of Wisconsin, yesterday expressed approval of the action of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in proposing revision of its regulations and amendment of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act.

Coincidentally, the ABC board postponed until next month a hearing on the proposals, previously scheduled to begin Monday. The change was made because of a conflict with the commissioners' budget hearings. No new date was set.

"The board is on the right track," Representative Shafer said, "I have always contended that the board has more authority than it has exercised to correct many of the evils."

Shafer, who is a member of the Eberharter subcommittee, said he had not had an opportunity to study the recommendations of the ABC Board, but he added that he would be glad to bring before the subcommittee any legislation that may be sought after the hearings.

Chairman Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, was out of the city.

The 17 proposals for strengthening liquor control are partly an outgrowth of the Eberharter subcommittee's recommendations and partly an adaptation of proposals of the beverage industry committee, a group of liquor dealers.

One of the proposed new regulations conforms with provisions of a bill introduced by Representative Shafer and reported favorably by the House District Committee. It provides for the filing of contracts between wholesale and retail dealers with the ABC Board and in effect gives the board authority to prevent price-cutting below fixed minimum prices.

Y.W.C.A. Active in Refugee Aid Abroad, New Arrival Says

Marianne Mills, Here to Establish Branch Of World Organization, Declares 'Y' Works With England's Auxiliary Forces

An enormous work is being done by the Y. W. C. A. in England, according to Miss M. Marianne Mills, of Portsmouth, who arrived here yesterday to establish a branch of the World Y. W. C. A. in Washington. Miss Mills has been a member of the headquarters staff in Geneva, Switzerland. Accompanied by Miss Pearl Carruthers, also of the Geneva staff, she landed in New York ten days ago aboard the Excalibur. Miss Carruthers will come to the Capital later.

Miss Mills spent March and April in England, where she has two brothers aiding in defense, one of them in the R. A. F. The government has called on the Y. W. C. A. to work with the women in the auxiliary forces. "Men behind the guns, women behind the men, the Y. W. C. A. behind the women" is the slogan, she says.

Hostels have been established for women working in agriculture and in the new munitions plants, and huts are maintained for those with the military units.

Other hostels have been opened for refugees from Holland and Belgium.

The Geneva headquarters will now function only as a point of contact in Europe. Miss Ruth Smallwood, an American, who is general secretary, is at present in unoccupied France assisting Mrs. Evelyn Fox, also an American, in work with Belgian refugees and French evacuees. The Y. W. is endeavoring to provide sewing rooms and some kind of recreational activities for women and girls in the camps into which they have been concentrated. Countess Helene Goeblet D'Alviella, herself a Belgian refugee in France, is head of work for the Belgian group. She is well known in Washington, having visited here on several occasions.

Assisted by Miss Marcia Dunham, of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., Miss Mills is now looking for offices for the Washington branch of the world organization. They will probably be maintained here "for the duration."

Citizens Request Name Change for Swastika Road

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Aug. 23.—Swastika road has been a Frederick thoroughfare for the last 20 years, but something's got to be done about the name.

City officials said today they have been besieged with requests for a change, because the swastika is emblematic of Nazi Germany.

Mayor Lloyd C. Culler said there's a possibility Swastika road can be renamed Lakemont road, but he intends drawing the line when it comes to acceding to demands that the city change the name of Lindbergh avenue.

Roberts Asks 110% Rise In Budget

Farmers Facilities Poor, Head of Weights, Measures Declares

George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets, yesterday asked the Commissioners to increase his present budget by 110 per cent.

He requested a total appropriation of $142,055, which is $74,420 more than the current sum. Of this increase $60,000 would be used to provide additional shelter and other improvements to the farmers' market at Eleventh and F streets southwest.

Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parkings, also submitted his 1942 budget estimates, which total $151,960, an increase of $15,000 over current appropriations. Lanham said the extra money is needed to replace 2,000 trees which die each year and to continue systematic trimming of trees.

In requesting $60,000 for the produce market, Roberts stated Washington's facilities for the farmer are much poorer than in many other cities.

A sum of $9,600 was asked by Roberts to dredge the space between the piers at the Fish Wharf and Market. He said the space is filled up to such an extent it is now difficult to dock boats of any size.

Retired Vicar Sees Christian Virtues in Military Service

It's Good for Man's Body and Soul, Is Belief of 80-Year-Old English Cleric and Draft Enthusiast

Because it embodies many Christian virtues, a taste of military life is good for a man's body and soul, believes the Rev. Alexander Sharpe, 80-year-old retired vicar of an English church and conscription enthusiast.

REV. SHARPE

"It stiffens a man's backbone, teaches him obedience, and makes a man of him," said the militant cleric, guest at the home of his niece and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes C. Turley, 1316 Floral street northwest. Even St. Paul and St. John believed in the virtues of the soldier, he added.

Scottish-born Mr. Sharpe, who will be guest preacher tomorrow morning at Trinity Episcopal Church, Piney Branch road and Dahlia street northwest, recently retired after 35 years as vicar of St. Batholomew's Episcopal Church, Plymouth, England, whose great arsenal is one of the Nazi bombers' targets.

The vicar enjoys recalling his interest in service men and described how he recently was privileged to review His Majesty's troops when visiting India.

Mr. Sharpe left England last October on a world tour which has carried him to India, Australia, New Zealand and other places. He is a member of the Navy League of Plymouth and author of many religious and historical articles.

He has a nephew in the Royal Air Force, two sisters in Plymouth and two brothers in America. One, John, he recently visited in Pittsburgh. The other, William B. Sharpe, a New Yorker, and father of Mrs. Turley, is here to spend the week-end at his daughter's home.

The cleric is no stranger to these parts. Sixty years ago he attended school in West Chester, Pa., and Pottsville, Pa., and several days ago paid a visit to the son of his old schoolmaster in the latter place.

Mention of The Washington Post reminded him that Sousa's famous "Washington Post March" was very popular throughout the British Empire. However, it was not until a short time ago that he discovered the march was associated with a newspaper. He expects to be in Washington for several weeks.

Alexandria Police Hunt For Burglar

Alexandria police last night were seeking a well-dressed burglar believed responsible for the theft of property valued at more than $800 in a series of housebreakings reported in the past two days.

The thief, said Lieut. Edgar Sims, makes a practice of ringing the doorbells of prospective victims to determine if the coast is clear. In the event a resident answers his ring, he usually inquires for some fictitious person and leaves. If he finds no one home, he gains entrance and ransacks the house.

Recent victims of the burglar have been J. W. Drowns, 312 King street road, who reported the theft of a lady's platinum pin and a wrist watch, valued at $460; Mrs. Francis G. Duhay, 105 West Maple street, who lost two diamond rings and a pronged jewel setting, valued at $325, and W. H. Thomas, 22 Cedar street, who reported the loss of $52 in cash. The thief also made an unsuccessful effort to enter a home at 304 Washington avenue, police said.

The burglar is described as being about 25 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighing about 135 pounds.

Van Dykes Here From Hollywood

While many a Washingtonian can think of no better place to spend that two-weeks' vacation than Hollywood, filmland's noted are "that way" about our town. Latest of the film colony's great to arrive for a visit are Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Van Dyke 2d., the picture director, and his vivacious wife.

For his first vacation since 1937, "Woody" Van Dyke chose Washington as a holiday town because he has so many old friends here, people he'd like to pass the time of day with, if only he could remember their phone numbers and addresses. The couple arrived by train yesterday and it wasn't long before their Mayflower phone was ringing. They'll spend several days, rangy Col. Van Dyke explained, adding that while the studio owes him 16-weeks' vacation, they won't be here that long.

Colonel? Yes, he's an honorary colonel in a dozen States, but a major in his own right, in the Marine Reserves, and most of his private life friends are military people.

Mary Walcott Funeral to Be Held in Capital

Widow of Former Smithsonian Head Dies in Canada at 80

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Vaux Walcott, 80, painter and writer, and widow of the former head of the Smithsonian Institution, Dr. Charles D. Walcott, will be held in Washington following the arrival of the body here today.

Mrs. Walcott died in her sleep at 10 p. m. Thursday, while visiting friends at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, Canada. She was stricken with a heart attack 10 days ago. Funeral plans have not been completed.

Mrs. Walcott was well known as the author and illustrator of "North American Wild Flowers," a five-volume work published by the Smithsonian. Traveling widely with her husband during the 20 years he headed the museum, Mrs. Walcott, at the age of 40, became the first woman to climb Mount Stephen, in British Columbia.

Her home was at 1743 Twenty-second street northwest. Surviving are a stepson, Sidney S. Walcott, of Buffalo, N. Y., and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Cole Younger, of Fairfield, Conn.

In 1927 Mrs. Walcott was appointed a member of the Board of Indian Commissioners. She also was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, the Association of Women Geographers, the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, the Colonial Dames of Pennsylvania and belonged to the American Alpine and Canadian Alpine Clubs.

School Officials Conspire to Fix Day, Sept. 23

90,000 Expected To Go Into Mourning Then for Vacations

The 1940 vacation for Washington school youngsters will be rung out by school bells at 9:30 a. m., September 23.

Ninety thousand are expected to answer the summons to school.

Here is information for parents:

New pupils who are 5 years of age or older by November 1 will be admitted to kindergartens and to the first grades, 6 years of age or older by November 1. Birth and vaccination certificates are required. The Health Department vaccination clinics will be held on Saturday mornings at 9:30 o'clock at 16 D street northwest.

Pupils for junior high schools should apply to such schools nearest their home addresses. The last report card, and birth and vaccination certificates should be presented.

Those wanting to enroll in any one of the five vocational schools should apply to the Franklin Administration Building. Birth and vaccination certificates are required.

Those wanting to enroll in senior high schools likewise should inquire at such school nearest their homes. Proper credentials from the school last attended, birth and vaccination certificates are required.

All public evening schools will open at 6:30 p. m. September 23. Registrations will be accepted on that date.

New nonresidents should make inquiry of the Franklin Administration Building, telephone National 1300, concerning the schools students should attend.

Chester W. Holmes, acting superintendent of schools, yesterday urged prompt securing of the birth certificates. The chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics has advised school officials that a rush is occurring for certificates because of the national defense program. Unless parents act speedily, the schools may open before they have obtained certificates for their children, it was said.

Pennsylvanian Accepts D. C. Call

The Rev. George E. Condit, assistant rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Frankford, Philadelphia, has accepted a call to the pulpit of Esther Memorial Church, Congress Heights, and will assume charge tomorrow.

Twenty-four years old and single, he is the son of a Congregational minister of Jersey City, and has served in his present post a year. He was guest preacher at Esther Memorial Church on three Sundays during July. He will reside in the newly built parsonage at 541 Mellon street southeast.

The Rev. Mr. Condit succeeds the Rev. Roy E. Le Moine, who resigned last April to accept an appointment as acting chaplain in the United States Army, with a rank of lieutenant, junior grade.

Christian Science Topic to Be 'Mind'

"Mind" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend the church services, including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

The Golden Text is from Daniel 2:20,21: "Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever; for wisdom and might are his: . . He giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens." (Proverbs 3:19.)

20-Month-Old Baby Among 3 Hurt in Traffic

A 20-months-old baby, a boy, seven, and a woman, 50, were injured yesterday in District traffic.

The baby, Joan M. Breslin, of 656 B street southeast, was struck down in front of her home by a car which police said was operated by Louis Gritz, 47, of 634 Eighth street northwest. She was treated at Casualty Hospital for severe head injuries.

Knocked from his scooter by an auto near his home at 3602 T street northwest, seven-year-old Billy Davis, suffered cuts and bruises. He was treated at Walter Reed Hospital and sent home. The driver, according to police, was Clarence Wharton, 21, of 2715 P street northwest.

Mrs. Jesse R. West, 50, of 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, was struck as she stood on a street car loading platform at Seventeenth and H streets northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for leg injuries. Hyman T. Miller, of Baltimore, was charged with reckless driving in connection with the accident.

N. Y. Labor Editor Here

Leo Huberman, labor editor of the New York newspaper PM, will be guest of honor at a garden party at 8:30 p. m. today at the home of Mary Ware Goldman, 720 Twenty-first street northwest. The affair is sponsored by The Bookshop.

U. S. Aides Going To Pa. Road Rites

Federal officials will take part in ceremonies Monday opening the Pennsylvania Turnpike, 160-mile super-highway from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh.

The State and Federal officials will follow the highway by motorcade from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh, where they will be greeted by Chairman Walter Jones, of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

Among those expected to attend the ceremonies are Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, and William S. Knudsen and Ralph Budd, of the National Defense Advisory Committee.

Williamsburg to Start Police Training Course

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 23 (AP).—A comprehensive training program will be started next Thursday by Williamsburg police and members of the department of public safety of the Williamsburg Restoration, in collaboration with State and Federal police specialists.

Employes of the College of William and Mary assigned to police duties will also participate in the eight weeks' program.

Meat Market Found Guilty Of Short Weight

The Square Deal Market Co., Inc., trading under the name of the Table Stores, was convicted by a Police Court jury yesterday on 13 counts of short weight. Judge Hobart Newman set September 13 as the date for passing sentence.

District weight inspectors testified that in 13 buys they found a total shortage of 11 pounds.

Attorneys for the company argued that the agents received a better grade of meat than they thought they had purchased, and therefore the price was higher. The inspectors testified, however, that in each case they selected the meat before hand, inquired the prices and obtained the meat asked for.

Lieut. Fondahl Sets Marksmanship Record

Lieut. John E. Fondahl, of the Traffic Bureau of the Metropolitan Police force, now commanding Companion D of the Fifth Battalion, Marine Corps Reserves, at Lakehurst, N. J., yesterday broke the range record for Reserve troops at the post, firing for record with a .30-caliber rifle.

Fondahl scored 243 of a possible 250, it was learned here last night. His home is at 2204 Evarts street northeast.

100 Join Fifth Baptist Training Union

One hundred people have joined the Baptist Training Union of Fifth Baptist Church since it was organized four weeks ago.

The organization embraces activities for all age groups. Mrs. J. Herrick Hall directs the story hour, Mrs. Cora Farrall the Junior Union, and Jerry Hodges the Intermediates. The Young People's unit is limited to the 17 to 25-year-old group.

Miss Hellyn Bellott, of New Orleans, La., recently was named church secretary. A new position at Fifth Baptist, it is in line with the advanced church program begun by J. Herrick Hall, new junior minister of the church. Dr. John E. Briggs is pastor. Mr. Hall will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "A Modern Pastor's Program." Nats Nose Out White Sox in 13th Inning, 3-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"Dear Mr. Povich," writes our old friend A. Fan, of Arlington, Va., "please take a crack at the Cleveland ball club. Manager Oscar Vitt is giving us a rotten run-around by refusing to pitch Bob Feller in Washington this year. Washington fans haven't seen Feller yet this season and now Vitt is keeping him out of this last series in Washington. Isn't Washington in the American League? Shame on, Vitt."

POVICH

Dear Mr. A. Fan: We have virtually run out of cracks at the Cleveland ball club. Anyway, the Crybaby A. C. seems to thrive on 'em since running to Owner Alva Bradley and squealing on Vitt. Criticism simply bounces off their thick hides. They must be pretty good ball players, reluctant as we are to admit it.

Vitt can always say that it is mere accident that Feller hasn't pitched a game in Washington this season. He can say that Feller's routine didn't call for it and that will be pretty well at that. He can say his obligation to Cleveland fans who expect him to win a pennant is greater than his obligation to Washington fans, and you can't quarrel with him on that point. Vitt has an easy out.

In fact, one of the reasons the Indians are leading the league is that Feller this year no longer is a "Sunday pitcher" in the interest of big Sabbath gates, but is taking a regular turn every fourth day. His 23 wins which have kept the Indians up there attest to the wisdom of Vitt's pitching plans for him. Winning the pennant, not parading Feller for the benefit of the fans and the gate, is still the big idea with Vitt, who is battling for a renewal of his managerial contract.

This week Vitt turned down a formal request by Clark Griffith that Feller be the Cleveland pitcher at Griffith Stadium on Sunday. The Nats' owner pointed out that Feller had not started a game in Washington this season and that he was a 1940 myth as far as Griffith Stadium fans were concerned. But Vitt was adamant. Feller's regular turn to pitch fell today at Yankee Stadium. There wouldn't be any exception.

Of course Griffith may not have been entirely altruistic in his desire to present Feller to Washington fans in the Sunday game which will open the series with the Indians here. The canny owner of the Nats had planned to make it a Sid Hudson-Bob Feller affair—presenting the league's leading pitcher against the rookie darling of Washington fans. He visioned a capacity crowd of customers in those circumstances. It would have been very nice for the club treasury.

Some day, of course, the situation may be reversed. The day may come when the Cleveland club is down in the race and the Indians' front office may petition Griffith to put in with them on staging a Sunday pitching attraction at Cleveland. Griffith used to do that when Walter Johnson was in his prime. But if the time comes he may be disposed to remember the lack of cooperation he is getting this week.

In fact, there is already a suspicion that Griffith feels a bit mean toward the Indians and is ready to contribute anything he can to knock the Indians out of the lead. It may not any coincidence that for the three-game series starting Sunday, the Nats' owner has reserved for the Indians his three best pitchers—Hudson, Dutch Leonard and Ken Chase. If he could bump off the Indians three straight it would be a favor to his son-in-law, Joe Cronin, among other things.

The Indians reserved Feller out of their last series in Washington, you remember, and what happened? The Nats licked the Cleveland club in three straight games and knocked them out of the lead. Vitt attempted to beat the Nats with some of his lesser lights and left town with a three-game headache.

If there are any persons in the house who don't like Vitt they can be comforted by the fact that if the Indians win the pennant they will have won it despite Vitt. He has about as much control over the Crybaby A. C. as your Aunt Katherine. Ever since the revolt he has been little more than a figure-head manager. Matters became so strained at one point that Vitt was forced to appoint Hal Trosky as captain of the team so there would be a liaison man between players and manager.

We can't think of any other cracks at the Cleveland club. Suppose we just blast 'em right out of the lead by predicting that they'll breeze in to the pennant. That ought to put the whammy on 'em good.

Bees Again Jinx Reds, Win by 7-2

Derringer Defeated 5th Straight Time; Jim Tobin Is Victor With Heady Effort

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 22.—Old man nemesis—Casey Stengel and his Boston Bees—put a hand on the Cincinnati Reds today and the National League leaders dropped another ball game, 7 to 2. It was Paul Derringer's fifth straight defeat.

The seventh-place Bees brought the season's record with the Reds even again at nine victories apiece. With Jim Tobin pitching like a clock and Derringer and Milburn Shoffner a trifle generous with home-run balls to Max West and Chet Ross, the Reds didn't have a chance against their toughest opposition of 1940.

The Bees get started in a hurry. With two out in the first Bama Rowell doubled and West and Chet Ross singled for one run. In the third West's second homer in as many days and fifth of the year sewed the game up. Johnny Cooney and Rowell were on the bags.

Ernie Lombardi hit his thirteenth 1940 homer in the fourth to make the Reds fans think there was some hope but the fine old Cincinnati practice of leaving men stranded on the bases already had made the fact of the day apparent.

After the Bees had picked up two more runs on three singles and a double in the sixth, Ival Goodman doubled and Mike McCormick singled for the Reds' last score. In the ninth they loaded the bases, but Bill Werber, whose ninth-inning homer yesterday made him a hero of victory, popped up a little fly to put a stop to it all.

Almost as dismaying was the Reds' performance in the first, when Werber and Frank McCormick singled but Ernie Lombardi dribbled into a double play. In the eighth Werber doubled with none away, got to third on Lonnie Frey's grounder, but was stranded.

Bloodworth Drives In Crucial Run

Homer by Early Ties Score in 12th After Chicago Takes Lead; Chase Wins

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

A thirteenth-inning run, scored to the accompaniment of 8,000 shrieking ladies' day guests, lifted the Nats and Ken Chase to a 3-2 victory over Chicago yesterday in a suspense-choked ball game.

An inning before, when Chase appeared doomed to defeat in a spectacular pitching duel with Bill Dietrich, bespectacled right-hander of the White Sox, Jake Early, reprieved the Nats with a home run over the righfield fense to tie the score at 2-2.

With the umpires gesturing that the game would be called at the end of the thirteenth inning on account of approaching dusk, the Nats went out and got the winning run.

Dietrich, who had not issued a walk in nine innings, invited disaster when he passed Johnny Welaj to start the thirteenth inning. With Manager Bucky Harris disdaining the conventional sacrifice, Cecil Travis got the hit sign and translated it literally. He drove a hard smash off the glove of Second Baseman Jackie Hayes and Welaj moved to third base.

Jimmy Bloodworth then delivered the ball game to the Nats. To the applause of the hostile Washington fans, Dietrich walked from the mound as Clint Brown moved into the box as a relief pitcher. His first pitch to Bloodworth never crossed the plate. The Nats' first basemen swatted it for a long single against the bleacher wall and the ball game was over.

Laurels to Chase

The unchallenged hero of the thirteen-inning proceedings, though, was Chase. The big left-hander was superb from the outset, and failed to score a 1-0 victory in the regulation nine innings only because of an error by Buddy Myer. He struck out 12 White Sox and pitched himself out of a succession of threatening situations.

The White Sox moved ahead in the twelfth inning on a perfectly executed squeeze play after Larry Rosenthal opened the inning with a single to centerfield. He was sacrificed to second by Appling and moved to third on Taft Wright's infield out. With two out, Catcher Mike Tresh caught Cecil Travis unawares with a perfect bunt down the third-base lien and beat it out as Rosenthal crossed the plate to put Chicago in a 2-1 lead.

Chase, paradoxically, was at his best in the inning in which he lost his bid for a 1-to-0 shutout. That was the eighth, when the White Sox tied the score. He struck out Dietrich to start the inning, and then saw Hayes safe at first when Myer fumbled his ground ball. Kreevich flied out for the second out, and Chase then issued a walk to Kuhel. Jimmy Pofahl saved a run at this point when he moved behind Travis to scoop up Solters' grounder and hold it to an infield single that filled the bases.

Double for Buddy

The Chicago run scored on a close play at first base when Appling beat out a hit to Bloodworth. Chase's laxity in covering the bag forced Bloodworth to delay a throw. With Taft Wright at bat, there were moans among the 8,000 when Chase pitched three wide balls to him and threatened to force home a second run, but the left-hander reformed suddenly and blazed the next three balls across the middle to fan Wright.

Twice in the early innings, the Nats had runs cut off at the plate. George Case, who opened the game with a walk, stole second and went to third on Tresh's wild throw. With two out, he tried to steal home with Dietrich holding the ball, and was out when the pitcher roused himself and got off a perfect throw to Tresh.

In the third inning, Buddy Lewis was on third with one out and the bases filled when he tried to steal home while Tresh was attempting

Cubs Defeat Brooks, 5-4, on Error in 11th

Rookie Shortstop Reiser's Wild Throw Lets in Decisive Run

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 23.—The Brooklyn Dodgers' shortstop woes gave the Chicago Cubs an 11-inning ball game today.

With Peewee Reese out with a broken foot and Manager Leo Durocher on the sidelines with ailing legs, the Brooklyns put Rookie Pete Reiser in the short field. In the eleventh frame, with the bags loaded, Reiser picked up Hank Leiber's easy grounder and threw badly to the plate, letting in the run that brought the Cubs a 5-4 victory.

This was the Dodgers' fifth straight loss and was a tough setback for Luke Hamlin, who went the distance for the Brooklyns.

After the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead, the Cubs tied up in the sixth on Rip Russell's single with the bags loaded. Al Todd's homer in the eighth put the Cubs in the lead and Babe Phelps' four-bagger in the ninth, off Claude Passeau, who had replaced Larry French, knotted the score again. Stan Hack's triple and a pair of walks paved the way for Reiser's decisive fumble. The win was Passeau's fourth in nine days.

Sundra Hurls Yankees To Victory Over Tribe

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 23.—Steve Sundra gave the New York Yankees a 5-3 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians today, the Yankees' fifth straight triumph over the American League's top two teams.

That left the world champions just three games out of second place and only seven astern of the Indians, whose lead over second-place Detroit was cut to four games.

Sundra, in chalking up his third victory of the campaign, allowed Cleveland six hits, and delivered the pay-off punch in the seventh inning when he singled to score Babe Dahlgren and Frankie Crosetti and break up a 2-2 tie.

The Yanks scored their first run in the first inning on singles by Joe Gordon and Red Rolfe and a sacrifice fly, and picked up another run in the fourth when Joe DiMaggio powered his twenty-seventh homer into the lower leftfield stands.

The Indians went ahead in their half of the same inning on Hal Trosky's single and Jeff Heath's eleventh homer.

After Sundra broke up the tie, the Yanks scored again in the eighth on a walk and singles by DiMaggio and George Selkirk. The Indians tried to make it up in their half of the ninth but succeeded in getting only one more run on Roy Weatherly's homer.

The Yanks got nine hits in all, seven of them off Lefty Al Smith who started, and the other two off Johnny Allen who pitched the last inning.

Caster's 3-Inning Relief Work Paces Philadelphia Triumph

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—George Caster turned in a brilliant three-inning relief trick today as the Athletics came from behind to beat the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 4.

Caster replaced Rookie Southpaw Porter Vaughan at the start of the seventh and pitched three hitless innings. Vaughan previously had given up six hits and four runs, all four being knocked in by Chet Laabs.

The A's won by scoring three runs in the fifth on singles by Vaughan, Dick Siebert and Frank Hayes coupled with two walks and Wilson Dee Miles' long fly.

Legion Victory To Little Rock

Rock Hill, S. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—Little Rock, Ark., eliminated Sumter from the Southeastern Sectional American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament today, 6-3.

The victory put Little Rock in the finals tomorrow with St. Louis. Since two defeats are necessary to eliminate, game time has been set at 1:30 p. m. (EST) because a double-header might be necessary.

St. Louis is undefeated in the series. Little Rock lost Monday to St. Louis.

Cards Win 8th in Row, Jump Into Third Place

Rampant St. Louis Beats Philadelphia, 5-2; Now Only 4½ Games Out of Second and 11 Behind Reds; Mize Stars With Two Doubles

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 23.—The rampant St. Louis Cardinals sliced another game off the Cincinnati Reds' first place advantage today as they won their eighth in a row, beating Philadelphia 5 to 2, while the Reds lost to Boston.

St. Louis also jumped into undisputed possession of third in the National League as Pittsburgh won from New York. They trail Cincinnati by 11 games and second place Brooklyn by only 4½ since the Cubs beat the Dodgers.

A walk to Merrill May, consecutive singles by Joe Marty and Johnny Rizzo and Bennie Warren's outfield fly brought the Phillies two runs in the third.

This Philadelphia advantage was erased by the Cards' three-run fourth inning. Terry Moore's double to right-center was the first hit off Kirby Higbie. Enos Slaugter walked and the first of Johnny Mize's two doubles scored Moore and moved Slaughter to third. Ernie Koy's single sent Slaughter home and Mize to third, from where he scored on Don Padgett's long fly.

Golfer Voigt Hurt, Can't Qualify For National Play

Baltimore, Aug. 23 (AP).—Injuries received in an automobile accident will prevent George J. Voigt, of New York, former Walker Cup golfer, from playing in Tuesday's qualifying round for the national golf championship, his wife said today.

Voigt, formerly of Baltimore, is recovering at Mercy Hospital here, but will not be discharged for several days. He suffered a head injury and his wife received superficial lacerations and head bruises.

The accident occurred two days ago in a downtown street while the couple was en route from Staten Island, N. Y., to Washington, where Voigt's father is ill.

Voigt, now a bond salesman, won the Middle Atlantic golf championship in 1927, reached the semifinals of the National Amateur in the 1928 and the quarter-finals in 1929.

Enderlin Loses

Veteran Takes Upset In Park Tennis

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 23.—Helen Germaine, of New York, an unseeded veteran of nearly 10 years on the public courts, battled her way into the finals of the women's singles today at the National Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

She will meet Marceina Weiss Parker, of St. Louis, seeded second, for the crown.

Miss Germaine, who has never been able to win the title in all her years of trying, upset top-seeded Maria Barnett Andrade, of Jacksonville, Fla., in the semi-finals. The score was 10—8, 6—2.

Mrs. Parker got a bad start but came through to beat 17-year-old Robin Briscoe, of Los Angeles, 1—6, 6—4, 6—2.

The men's doubles competition will be between Willis Anderson and Jerry Crowthers, of Los Angeles, and Allen Carvell and Ward Parker, of St. Louis.

Anderson and Crowthers downed Swetina and Hobart Wrobbdel, of Detroit, 6—4, 6—4, 6—2, while Carvell and Parker beat Joe Turski and Lou Schaeffer, of Buffalo, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2.

Edgewood Wins In Softball Play

With Ben Harrell spinning a three-hit masterpiece, Edgewood Playground blanked Langdon Playground, 5-0, yesterday to gain the finals of the District of Columbia Recreation city-wide softball championships. It was the second straight tournament shutout for Edgewood, which will meet Columbia for the title tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Jimmy Hassett, making two of the seven hits credited to his team, was the batting star for Edgewood.

14-Year-Old Wins Women's Bait Casting Crown

St. Louis, Aug. 23 (AP).—A 14-year-old high school freshman, Miss Eunalee Crusey, of Sidney, Ohio, won the women's three-eighths-ounce accuracy bait-casting championship today at the National Casting Association's annual tournament.

In winning the title, the schoolgirl defeated the veteran Mrs. Ernest Liotta, of Cleveland, whose husband and son also are competing in the tournament. The son, Ernest Liotta, jr., was all-around casting champion in 1937 and 1938.

Third place went to Mrs. C. W. Marshall, of East Liverpool, Ohio, whose husband yesterday became champion of the distance bait casters by winning the five-eighths-ounce title with a long toss of 400 feet and an average of 386 feet for his three best casts.

The scores: Miss Crusey, 95 points; Mrs. Liotta, 93; Mrs. Marshall, 92, and Mrs. Clarence Anthes, Waukesha, Wis., fourth, 90.

Chevy Chase Takes Playground Softball

Chevy Chase Playground defeated Gordon Playground, 8-1, yesterday in a Western Division game of the Playground Baseball League. Bill Blamire pitched a three-hit game for the winners who were led at the bat by Bill Marshall's trio of hits.

Greyhound Victor In Final Trot Race

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP).—Greyhound won the $1,500 open trotting event that featured the final day of harness racing at the Illinois State Fair today.

The gray gelding, owned by E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., took his sixth straight stake of the year without being pressed by his stablemate, Sister Mary, who finished second in both heats.

The 6-year-old Greyhound stepped the first mile in 1:59¼ and the second in 2:01½. The biggest crowd of the five-day meeting, approximately 15,000, attended.

Vitt Suspends Heath and Settles For Apology in Latest Discord

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 23.—Another discordant incident between Manager Oscar Vitt and one of his Cleveland players was revealed today.

VITT

Vitt threatened to suspend Jeff Heath in Cleveland last Saturday, when the league leaders were playing St. Louis, but settled for an apology the next day on advice of C. C. Slapnicka, Indians' vice president, the latter confirmed today.

An exchange of words between Vitt and Heath after the outfielder struck out as a pinchhitter caused the clash.

"Jeff thought the matter over carefully and considered himself in the wrong," said Slapnicka, who described it as "just an ordinary outburst of temper—the kind you have on a team that is fighting for the pennant."

Vitt was the target of a player rebellion two months ago. A dozen Indians went to President Alva Bradley and demanded his discharge, declaring he made them "jittery" with intemperate remarks, but took it back after another meeting with Bradley.

Reds Get Ripple For Waiver Price

Cincinnati, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds today obtained Outfielder Jimmy Ripple, former New York Giant and Brooklyn Dodger, from Montreal of the International League and released Lee Gamble outright to their Birmingham farm club in the Southern Association.

The Dodgers, after asking waivers on Ripple, sent him to Montreal on option. Red officials said the Dodgers sought to withdraw the waivers but could not do so on an optioned player under baseball law. He comes to the Reds at the waiver price of $7,500.

Ripple, 31 years old, has been batting .320 for Montreal. Gamble has been used mainly as a pinch hitter and pinch runner.

Landis Cracks Down on Club Intimidation of Officials

Michigan State Loop Fined $500 for Firing Umpire Williams

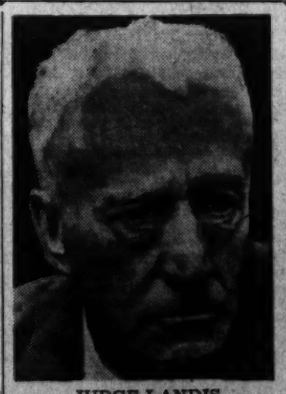
By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, cracked down hard today on club owners control or intimidation of umpires as a situation he termed "saturated with evil and peril to baseball's welfare."

Bluntly warning that "such misconduct hereafter will result in ineligibility of every club or league official participating therein," Landis fined the Michigan State League $500 for dismissing Umpire Bob Williams after a July 7 controversy between Williams and Burleigh Grimes, manager of the Grand Rapids Club.

The altercation, in which Grimes was accused of spitting tobacco juice in the arbiter's face, was followed by Grimes being fined $50 and suspended five days by T. J. Halligan, league president. Judge William Bramham, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, ruled the punishment inadequate and Grimes, subsequently, was suspended for a year.

Landis said the Grand Rapids Club, at a league meeting July 29, moved that Williams be discharged for "inefficiency," even tough no complaint of inefficiency or of any other nature had been made against the umpire. The commissioner said the real reason for William's discharge was the fact he had reported the Grimes incident to Judge Bramham, an action generally resented by club owners as "bad publicity" for the league.



JUDGE LANDIS

Action Outgrowth Of Grimes' Alleged Spitting at Official

Ordering the league to pay Williams to the end of the season and also pay him through any league play-off which may develop, the commissioner said:

"Baseball requires absolutely honest umpiring. Most emphatically, that demands that umpires be entirely free of any sort of intimidation, control, domination or influence by officials of clubs affected by their decisions. . . .

"Who would or could expect honest decisions on the ball field from an umpire intimidated by fear that his calling a play as he sees it may cost him his job. Or from an umpire obliged before rendering a decision to consider which of the two clubs competing in the game is more powerful in the league's politics or more apt to bring about his retention or discharge? . . . It is insufferable that any club or combination of clubs should procure, or threaten to seek to procure, the discharge of an umpire in revenge for a decision or for action his duties required him to take, as in this case."

Pepco Evens Government Play-off, Beats Naval Air, 4-3

Power Nine Bunches Six Hits to Win

Losers Register Nine Safeties; Final Game To Be Played Today

Pepco's clutch-hitting sandlotters evened the playoff series with Naval Air Station for the U. S. Government League title yesterday when they scored all their runs in the first two innings and held on for a 4-3 victory.

Hostilities will be resumed today, either on the Ellipse or at the Air Station, depending upon the outcome of a conference of team heads this morning.

Yesterday's loss, after a narrow victory in the opening clash, was doubly bitter for Naval Air in that it outhit the winners, 9-8. Meads went the distance for the losers, allowed two bases on balls and fanned exactly that number. He also contributed the only extra-base blow of the game, a triple in the fourth inning. Nobody was on base, however, and his mates were unable to bring Meads home.

Starting off with a single run in the first inning, Pepco saw the Airmen jump into a 2-1 lead in their half of the opening stanza. Three more Pepco tallies in the second, however, voided a half-hearted Air rally in the fifth. The victory was credited to Garvey.

Nats Nose Out White Sox In 13th, 3 to 2

Chase Is Winner As Bloodworth Singles Welaj Home

to pick Travis off first base. A fast relay, Kuhel to Tresh, nipped Lewis at the plate.

Buddy Myer was the moving spirit in the run that set the Nats up in the 1-0 lead they held until the eighth inning. After Travis drew a walk in the second, Myer doubled to right with one out, moving Travis to third. Jimmy Pofahl delivered a long fly to Kreevich that fetched Travis home.

The Nats made one hit per inning from the second through the eighth, but Dietrich was at his best in the clutches.

Chase was in trouble in the tenth inning when Kreevich led off with a single. He struck out Kuhel and forced Rosenthal to line to Lewis, and then issued an intentional pass to the dangerous Appling. Jimmy Bloodworth then messed up a third-out grounder off Wright's bat for an error and the bases were full of White Sox. Chase negotiated the third out by causing Tresh to hit into a force play.

Johnny Welaj saved the Nats from defeat in the eleventh with a brilliant bit of fielding. Racing to the leftfield foul line, he held Hayes' hard drive to a single, and Kreevich's single that followed merely moved Hayes to second. Kuhel grounded to Bloodworth for the third out. In the twelfth, with the Nats trailing, 2-1, Early went to bat and everything was jake when his homer tied the score. Three hours and five minutes after the ball game started, Bloodworth won it with his thirteenth inning hit.

Twin Bill Today As Jack Sanford Makes Debut Here

Jack Sanford, slugging first baseman from Charlotte, will make his major league debut today for the Nats in a doubleheader with the White Sox, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Sanford will play at least one of the games, and perhaps both.

Clark Griffith has unofficially designated today as "Joe Krakauskas Day." He pointed out that Krakauskas has yet to win a game this season and "we won't let any of our pitchers finish with that kind of a record. We're giving him another chance to start a ball game and another chance for the fans to see him win one."

Walter Masterson will pitch the second game for the Nats.

Seeking Unlimited Foe

Frank's baseball team would like to arrange a game for tomorrow with an unlimited club. Call Manager Errigo at Woodley 8084.

Bucky Harris Greets Fleet Rookie From Florida State League

Larry Womack, fresh from Ocala in the Florida State League, the same circuit which produced Sid Hudson for the Nats, donned a Washington uniform for the first time yesterday and was greeted by Bucky Harris in the dugout. He is a second baseman and will break into the Nats' line-up next week. He is 22 years old. Born and raised in Dallas, Tex. Started in organized ball last season with Palatka in the Florida League. Hailed this year as the best second baseman in the circuit. Batted .315 and stole 35 bases. Described by his admirers as "fast as George Case." Stands 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 160 pounds. Clark Griffith suspects that he is at least "a year away" from the majors. Says his name is pronounced as if spelled "Warmack." He's of English descent

Rain Halts Net Doubles Semifinals

McNeill and Parker To Meet Schroeder, Jack Kramer Today

By International News Service

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 23.—The semifinal round in the fifty-ninth annual National Tennis Doubles Tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club today was postponed until tomorrow because of rain.

In the men's division top-seeded Don McNeill, Oklahoma City, and Frank Parker, Beverly Hills, Calif., will make a belated start against Jack Kramer, Montebello, Calif., and Ted Schroeder, Los Angeles, third seeded.

In the other bracket, an unseeded pair of Southerners—Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, and Frank Guernsey, Orlando, Fla.—who entered the semifinals by upsetting the No. 2 team of Bobby Riggs, national champion, and Welby Van Horn, Los Angeles, in the quarter-finals, will play the fourth-seeded combination of Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle.

Alice Marble, Beverly Hills, and Sarah Palfrey, Reno, Nev., the leading women's tandem, will meet Patricia Canning, Los Angeles, and Virginia Wolfenden, San Francisco, in the feminine semifinals. In the other match the top-seeded foreign pair of Valerie Scott and Mary Hardwick, England, will battle the unseeded team of Dorothy Bundy, Santa Monica, Calif., and Mrs. John Van Ryn, Austin, Tex.

West Virginia Auditor Wins Trapshoot Title

By the Associated Press

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 23.—West Virginia boasted its first grand American handicap trapshoot winner today, as E. H. Wolfe, 38-year-old Charleston auditor, broke 98 of 100 over the windswept traps here to take the big finale of the Forty-first Annual Clay Target Carnival.

The feminine laurels went to Mrs. Lela Hall, of Strasburg, Mo., who cracked 95 of 100. Wolfe fired from 23 yards, and Mrs. Hall from 22, as they bested the field of 827, second largest entry in the last decade.

The usual drama of the "roaring grand" was missing because the winners hung up their scores early and the marks stood up the remainder of the day as a heavy wind caused the flying clays to do tricks.

G. H. Oswald, of Columbus, Ohio, won the professional championship with 97 of 100 from 22 yards, while four hotshots tied with 97 for second place behind Wolfe in the amateur race. They were Paul Hiestand, of Hillsboro, Ohio, brother of the famous Joe; Fred Waldock, of Sandusky, Ohio; J. T. Platts, of Scenery Hill, Pa., and O. Lindberg, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

In the shoot-off, Platts won second place; Waldock, third; Lindberg, fourth, and Hiestand, fifth.

The victory was worth about $2,100 to Wolfe.

Roy Miller, of Grove City, Minn., who broke 100 straight to win the preliminary handicap yesterday, blew up today by missing nine of the first 25 and winding up with an 81.

H. L. Cheek, of Clinton, Ind., son of the 1936 Grand American winner, emerged as all-around amateur champion of the 1940 classic. He wound up the week's shooting with a score of 1,131 of 1,200 on 500 targets at 16 yards, 450 at handicaps, and 250 at doubles. One behind was Vic Reinders, of Waukesha, Wis., college instructor, while Frank Troeh, of Portland, Oreg., and young Stanley Meadows, of Grimes, Iowa, tied for third with 1,129.

C. C. Mitchell, of Minneapolis, topped the entire list by winning the professional all-around championship with a score of 1,137 of 1,200, although he failed to win a single event of the 11 on the week's program.

Mrs. George Cameron, of Houston, Tex., and Evansville, Ind., finished second in the women's race with 94, one target behind Mrs. Hall, the North American clay target queen five of the last six years. Third was Mrs. Mary E. Lassen, of Goddard, Kans., with 92, while 17-year-old Sheverly Nusen, of Quincy, Oreg., was fourth with 91.

Dr. Leitner To Enter Cup Sail Races

Perth Amboy Dentist Will Be Favored In Comet Sloop Class

The famous sailing dentist from Perth Amboy, N. J., Dr. Anthony J. Leitner, will compete with his comet sloop in the sailing races of the President's Cup Regatta September 14-15, it was announced yesterday by Arthur H. Clephane, chairman.

Dr. Leitner will sail his comet Bellaire, the boat which finished second in the midwinter regatta in Puerto Rico.

With the largest fleet in history predicted, Clephane announced that the girl skipper from the Capital Yacht Club here, Nora O'Neil, had entered her comet Arcoiris in the three-race series. She took part in the races last February in San Juan.

Chairman Clephane is in New York over the week-end to confer with Commodore Luis Santaellos, well-known Puerto Rican sportsman. Out of the conference he hopes to procure the entry of the commodore's son, Luis Antonio Santaello, who, with his party of island yachtsmen will participate September 6-8 in the comet class nationals on Long Island Sound. Santaello raced his Puerto Rico II last year in the regatta here.

A record-breaking fleet of little penguin dinghies is expected. The penguin class will be competing two days before the President's Cup Regatta at Alexandria, and from 20 to 25 are due to stay over for the big show here.

Classes have been scheduled for 20-footers, divisions I and II; Hampton one-designs, lightnings, snipes, Class B canoes, handicap A, handicap B and moths.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Ken Chase takes over the lead from Sid Hudson in the race for Man of the Month honors for August following his impressive triumph over the White Sox yesterday.

To Chase, 20 points, because he pitched sensationally to win, 3-2, in 13 innings, because he struck out 12 batters and because with better support he would have had a 1-0 victory in nine innings.

To Jake Early, 8 points, because his home run rescued the Nats from defeat in the twelfth inning.

To Cecil Travis, 6 points, because he made two hits, the second of which figured in the winning run.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, 5 points, because his thirteenth inning hit drove in the winning run.

To Jimmy Pofahl, 5 points, because he drove in a run and played a brilliant game in the field.

To George Case, 5 points, because he made three hits, and cut off at least two runs with brilliant plays in the outfield.

To Johnny Welaj, 3 points, because he held Jackie Hayes' eleventh inning hit to a single and thus cut off a run in the eleventh.

Giants Bow To Bucs, 13-10, In Slugfest

New York Drops To Fourth Place; Nine Pitchers Used

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 23.—The Pirates and New York Giants put on nine innings of what was supposed to be major league baseball today, and, at the finish, the Bucs came up with a 13-to-10 victory. The defeat dropped the Giants into fourth place in the National League standings.

Nine pitchers were used—four by Pittsburgh—and the winner was Lefty Ken Heintzelman, who was called in to put out the fire when the Giants threatened to close a seven-run gap in the eighth. King Carl Hubbell had none of his stuff, was whacked for four runs in the first inning and was charged with the loss.

Altogether, there were 33 base hits, 18 by the Pirates. One of these was Elbie Fletcher's homer with a mate aboard in the second inning. Arkie Vaughan and Vince DiMaggio each collected three hits and Frank Gustine and Spud Davis each drove in three runs for the winners.

Tenth Annual Motor Sweeps Starts Today

Regatta at Red Bank Attracks 6 Gold Cup Boats in Strong Field

By the Associated Press

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 23.—The thunder of speedboat motors will shatter the quiet tomorrow and Sunday as drivers compete for the many awards of the tenth annual National Sweepstakes Regatta.

The national sweepstages event, which has attracted six gold cup boats and as many 225-cubic-inch hydroplanes, heads the 18 classes on the competition.

The first of the sweepstakes series will be held tomorrow afternoon and the remaining two races, Sunday afternoon. Each will be over a 15-mile course.

S. Mortimer Auerbach, of Atlantic City, is the defending titlist with his 225-cubic-inch Emancipator VIII. Gold cup boats entered include Hotsy Totsy, owned by Champion Sidney Allen, Hampton Bays, N. Y.; Miss Syndicate, Horace E. Dodge, Detroit; Notre Dame, Herbert A. Mendelsohn, Detroit; So Long, Louis Aageol, Los Angeles; My Sin, Zalmon G. Simons, jr., Greenwich, Conn., and Tinker Toy, Gar Wood, jr., Algonac, Mich.

Other hydroplanes are Tops III, Jack Cooper, Kansas City, Mo.; Busskee (Cap Second S), Walter A. Buskee, Succasuna; Blue Glide IV, Julius Mangor, Pelham, N. Y.; Zoom III, Edwin E. Ritter, Philadelphia, and Grissie II, George F. Schrafft, Newton, Mass.

A fleet of 23 will vie for 225-cubic-inch hydroplane honors, while 12 will compete in the 135-cubic-inch races, in which Edison Hedges, of Atlantic City, is defending champion. Twelve have entered the 91-cubic-inch hydroplane division.

A Pacific Coast one design title will be decided as part of the regatta for the first time. The rest of the competition will be spread among various inboard and outboard runabouts.

Two D. C. Golfers Win in Negro Meet

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—Dr. Remus Robinson, of Detroit, today won the National Amateur Championship of the Negro United Golfers Association, defeating Tut Holmes, of Atlanta, Ga., 4 and 2, at the Palos Park Course. Dr. Robinson, winner of the crown in 1938 and runner-up last year, took a lead at the fourth hole and held an advantage to the finish of the scheduled 36-hole match.

Mrs. Geneva Wilson, of Chicago, captured the women's title with a 9-and-7 victory over Mrs. Lucy Williams, Indianapolis.

The National Open crown was won yesterday by Hugh Smith, of Thomaston, Ga., with a total of 295 strokes for 72 holes. The defending champion, Cliff Strickland, finished seventeenth. Second low scorer in the open was Clyde Martin, of Washington, D. C., with a 297 aggregate, while another Washington entry, Dr. A. R. Harris, won the first-flight consolation title.

Disbursement Wins Title

The Disbursement ten of the Treasury Softball League trounced the Coast Guard, 12 to 4, yesterday in winning the league title.

Girls' Softball League Play At Semifinals

Langdon, Virginia Ave. And Palisades Advance In Playground League

Langdon, Palisades and Virginia Avenue Playgrounds advanced to the semifinals of the girls' softball league in games played yesterday. Langdon trounced Georgetown, 15-12; Palisades defeated McMillan, 11-2, and Virginia Avenue beat Takoma in an extra-inning game, 10-5, by scoring nine runs in the tenth frame.

The third round of play will start Monday at 10 a. m. with Palisades meeting Langdon, and Virginia Avenue playing the winner of the above game. The final game will be played on Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the West Potomac diamonds.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 23.—Bald old Nate Lewis, 40 years in the fight game, was detected on Jacobs Beach today, preserving his inch-deep pallor under Mike's awning. We asked him if he had seen in the papers where Jack Dempsey said that Joe Louis ruined the heavyweight division by fighting too often. Lewis said he had seen it, and that he agreed, with certain reservations.

CONSIDINE

"I think Joe Louis shouldn't fight more than twice a year," the veteran manager and promoter said, soberly regarding his panatella. "Four times are too many. When he fights that often he's stopping all competition among the challengers."

We asked him to explain that.

"It's simple enough," Lewis said. "A heavyweight comes along today and wins a good fight. So the manager sits back and demands a fight with Louis. The manager knows Louis likes to fight a lot, so he figures 'why fight somebody else and take a chance on getting knocked off? Why not take the licking from Louis and clean up?' So the manager puts his half-baked fighter on the shelf and waits for Louis. Take Lee Savold, for instance. He came in here and beat a fellow you never heard of, in a spectacular way, and, by gosh, he came within an inch of getting a fight with Louis—just on that, and regardless of what his previous record was.

"My point is this: If Louis fought less, no more than twice a year, and not even that much if there was no worthwhile fellow around for him to fight, a lot of these managers with heavyweights would be forced to sign to fight among themselves. I mean the Manns, Thomases, Paycheks, and so on, wouldn't be fighting Louis. They'd be fighting each other. And out of that kind of competition every now and then would come an outstanding fighter, with a lot of good fights under his belt, and a real claim to the role of challenger.

Lewis blames Schmeling for Louis' superactivity.

"When Max knocked out Joe he put a lot of heart into the heavyweights, and their managers. Max demonstrated that Joe could be beaten, and that brought about a lot of bravery in the ranks and also a great desire to get in there against the champ. Maybe if Schmeling had never won that fight, things might have straightened themselves out differently. I know fewer fighters would have wanted to get in there with Joe before they were dry behind the ears, and the managers certainly would have authorized a lot more fighting among contenders than they do today.

"You can't blame the promoters for putting Louis on. Joe's one of the two or three greatest heavyweights of all time—never doubt that—a fighter with more real heart than most any fighter you could name. The Schmeling fight proved that. Schmeling had 50-some clean shots for his jaw, and Louis kept coming back for more. They put him on, against this or that stuff, because the stiff won a fight and went into cold storage waiting his turn to be knocked out by Louis.

"But, as I was saying, Louis could solve the whole thing by cutting down on his fighting. That would make the challengers fight among each other, in order to eat, and when one of them did poke his head above the others—as the best of the lot—it would bring back those big gates."

Lewis disagrees with those who think Billy Conn will only slow himself down by taking on more weight before he continues his assault on the heavyweight division. "It's amazing what 5 or 10 pounds can mean to a fighter," Lewis recalled. "Charley White couldn't break an egg until he picked up 5 pounds well after his career started. Kid McCoy was the same, and Jack O'Brien and Sam Langford. Extra weight gave them a punch to go with their great boxing skill. I have an idea that that would be true of Conn. I look upon him as a fighter, rather than a boxer. I know he's a great boxer, great, but I've liked him best in that toe-to-toe stuff he's shown when he gets mad and really swings. With a little more meat behind those swings he'd be doing an awful lot of

Bellthorn Wins Belair Stud Purse at Marlboro by 5 Lengths

Six-Year-Old Heads Field All the Way

Squabble, Favorite, Noses Out Lucky Light for 2d; Victor Pays $13.90 Mutuel

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 23.—In motion at the first tingle of the starting bell, E. K. Hillman's Bellthorn made every post a winning one in the Belair Stud Purse, featuring the Friday program at this turf point. Always having daylight between him and his rivals, the 6-year old son of Boatswain came to the finish line in the grip of Jockey Bob Bernhardt and the winner by five lengths. H. Florentine's Squabble was second, a neck in advance of Phillip Needles' Lucky Light. Five others were forced in the "also ran" department in the test of a mile and a sixteenth.

The crowd of 6,000 installed Squabble the favorite and Bellthorn was only lukewarm in the betting ring with a $13.90 mutuel being displayed. The busy winner made it five victories in 20 startes this year and won for the first time since Hagerstown.

Lucky Light attempted to keep up with Bellthorn in the opening stages but Bernhardt pulled the gelding away. From that point to the wire it was a question of only how long would be his lead at the finish line. Squabble was sluggish in the early running and rallied mildly after saving ground entering the stretch. The favorite got up to force Lucky Light into third money in the closing 20 yards.

The No. 2 post position, so prominent yesterday, fell into discard for the most part today while No. 7 proved the lucky number. Bellthorn had that saddle cloth as did both winners in the daily double combination. Kittiwake, a $4.30 favorite, came out of that gate to win the first race by three lengths. Sun Sweep, No. 7 in the second event, came home under good handling by Jockey A. F. Martinez to pay $20.80. Those who coupled Kittiwake and Sun Sweep in the double collected $48.60.

J. E. Hughes' Misty Eye proved a worthy favorite in the third race. The daughter of Dunlin turned back seven juveniles and paid $4.70. Lady Andy was second and Miss Soot was third in the dash of 5½ furlongs.

A New York invader, Woodville, headed out Gennaro in a thrilling fourth race which found Sistaur a close third. Woodville was excellently handled by Jockey Freddie Faust, a Washington boy, and paid $7.40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN SWEEP, $20.60, $6.30, $3.60; PUSHKIN (Dulaney entry), $2.90, $2.40; BLIND TALK, $3.50.

SUN SWEEP, going in best form and rated while in thick of contention, responded when shaken up to dispose of PUSHKIN and was drawing out at end. PUSHKIN was in thick of contention, got to front, but could not resist winner while under pressure. BLIND TALK, in trouble early, closed willingly. ANYA was not serious factor. WILD IRISH could not reach contention.

Daily Double, KITTIWAKE and SUN SWEEP, Paid $48.60

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 2-year-olds Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:09. Off 3:11. Winner, John Hughes' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISTY EYE, $4.70, $4.10, $3.00; LADY ANDY, $10.60, $6.50; MISS SOOT, $4.30.

MISTY EYE was hustled to front on outside, saved ground while setting good pace and won with speed in reserve. LADY ANDY was hard ridden while close up and showed good effort. MISS SOOT improved position on inside and closed willingly. GLITTER GIRL faltered from hard early usage.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:43. Off 3:44. Winner, R. L. Hall's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WOODVILLE, $7.40, $5.30, $4.50; GENNARO, $5.70, $4.40; SISTAUR, $3.70.

WOODVILLE saved ground while racing in front with SISTAUR and GENNARO and responded to vigorous handling to hold sway through stretch. SISTAUR was in thick of contention from start, was forced, wide at first turn and closed with good energy. HAPPY HOSTESS was carried out at first turn, recovered to save ground and showed excellent effort. ROYAL DOT stopped.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:18. Off 4:19. Winner, E. K. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELLTHORN, $13.90, $4.60, $3.30; SQUABBLE, $3.80, $3.40; LUCKY LIGHT, $3.70.

BELLTHORN, off on top, was steadied while setting pace, drew out on LUCKY LIGHT and won easily while opening gap. SQUABBLE, sluggish in early stages, came to inside entering stretch and closed gamely. LUCKY LIGHT was closest to pace to stretch and had no excuse. WORTHOWNING was held safe.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:55. Off 4:56. Winner, F. M. McDonald's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CURVES, $9.60, $4.00, $3.30; LADY SOLACE, $4.30, $3.10; ELSIE J., $7.40.

CURVES came through on inside of LADY SOLACE to get to front and was kept to pressure to end. LADY SOLACE, hard urged to get to front, was kept off rail and came again under punishment in closing stages. ELSIE J. was well placed to stretch and faltered. REGAL FROLIC was rushed while setting pace and tired. BLOX was shut off along rail early and failed to rally.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:28. Off 5:29. Winner, C. A. Celentis's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AMERICA FIRST, $7.80, $3.80, $2.80; BUBBLEWORTH, $6.20, $4.70; DACOTAH, $3.00.

AMERICA FIRST, rated while within striking distance during opening half, came wide and responded to drive to win going away. BUBBLEWORTH set good pace and held on with excellent courage. DACOTAH was well placed from start, took command in stretch and then faltered. MAETAKE moved up menacingly after opening quarter and faltered.

Whiskolo Wins Feature at Rockingham

Favorite Comes From Rear Under Shrewd Ride by George Moore

By the Associated Press

Salem, N. H., Aug. 23.—Saving ground on the rail of a sloppy track, Whiskolo, an 8-year-old veteran, defeated Malinda B. and Ugin today in the featured six-furlong dash of an all-claiming card at Rockingham Park race track.

The Metcalf and Carr favorite was brought up from the rear under shrewd handling by Jockey George Moore, while Malinda B. was setting the pace by a wide margin at the halfway mark.

The leader swung wide coming into the stretch with Mahdi on her heels. Whiskolo hung on the rail and sprinted through the mud to win by a length in 1:14—fast time for the slippery footing. Ugin also came up fast to gain third place.

Whiskolo paid $5.40, $3 and $2.60, Malinda B. returned $5.60 and $3.60, and Ugin paid $3.80 to show.

Selections at Marlboro.

Dear Al:

Jockey Willie Dufford left last night for Wheeling to ride out the meeting there. Sammy Palumbo canceled his mounts yesterday and went to his New York home where his son is ill. He plans to get back into action today. The week-end program is a good one, topped by the Marlboro Hotel Handicap, a sprint of 6½ furlongs. Oodles of speed in the line-up. Royal Business, Sure Touch, Red Wrack, Butterman and Mowmart lend plenty of class to the test. Royal Business will carry, top weight of 120 pounds. Limit fields are assured in the other six events. Jockey Noble Godfrey left for Wheeling. Barraca will have to brush up on post manners after being placed on Starter Welter's schooling list. Wagering here continues to average over the $100,000 mark and it looks like the first million dollar meeting held here. J. Donald Hay is the man who has charge of the mutuel department. By the way, somebody stepped up and bet $200 across the board on Curves just before the windows closed yesterday. Wasn't a bad investment. Wallace Gibson, once the popular handyman in the card room at the Columbia Country Club, has retired to his farm near here. Wallace is helping Bob Hall with the concessions. He wants to be remembered to his Washington friends. It looks like three winners a day is the column's limit but, with a price like that one on Sun Sweep, three isn't a bad average. Four No. 7 horses won yesterday. Jockey Kelly worked Sure Touch after the last race in preparation for today's feature. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—On The Beam has had a good rest and will be favored by the route of the opening sprint. Needs only a share of the racing luck in a rather open race. Miss Neptune has a fine record. She had all the best of the breaks in two Cumberland races. Rippling On has speed and should be close.

Second race—The soft going here should be right up Frederick's alley. The veteran is sharp now and will do a lot of running. Counora has speed and will be hard to beat if sent to the top. Spout Run ran well at the other town and should like this track.

Third race—Westing has worked well and promises to show speed in a field of this sort. Gets in with feather weight, and I see no reason for mistakes. Gemwick always has liked this oval and could awake with a bang. Chief Cherokee's ancient legs may be helped by the soft going.

Fourth race—Sure Touch was a champion at Cumberland and should resume his winning ways here. Royal Business has some class and should be prominent. Mowmart comes back after a rest and may take it all.

Fifth race—Lena Girl closed like the wind at the other track. She is fit as hands make horses and may come from behind to collar the speed horses in the stretch. Flag Eita folded after setting the pace last out and is a threat. Ace of Trumps and Scarlet O are possibilities.

Sixth race—Yankee Lad, if Palumbo rides, deserves the call in this field. That last was a sparkling effort. Best Policy was kidding the public last out and is dangerous. Blue Cyclone could be close at the weights.

Seventh race—Clyeme deserves attention in this field. Gets in with only 108 pounds, and I'm going to string along. Goodwine is the one to beat. Pencader returns to a track he likes and should be prominent.

Best bet—Westing

Capital Transit Profit in July Rises Sharply

No Provision, However, Made for Effect of Excess Profit Tax

Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported net income in July totaled $48,833, a 168 per cent increase as compared with net income of $18,954 in the same 1939 month.

In filing its report with the Public Utilities Commission, the transit firm called attention to the fact that its operating statement for July and the first seven months did not contain any provision for additional taxes expected to result from the passage of the excess profits tax now being considered by Congress. A letter accompanying the reports states:

"While the effect of the new taxes to be imposed by Congress cannot be accurately estimated at this writing, there is every reason to believe that the taxes of the company applicable to the first seven months of 1940 will be substantially increased thereby."

July Revenues Spurt

Operating revenues for July, 1940, were $1,048,280 as against $950,864 last year. Operating expenses were $750,650 as compared with $667,275. The increased investment in new street cars and buses had the effect of increasing depreciation to $112,877 as compared with $103,831. Interest charges were $59,867 as compared with $62,684 in July, 1939.

Taxes in July, 1940, were $82,555. The taxes for July of 1939, $101,123, included provision for District of Columbia income tax for the first seven months of that year in the amount of $27,278. Excluding the effect of this adjustment, taxes showed an increase in the current month as compared with last year, without any provision for the effect of the new excess profits taxes.

The accrual for injuries and damages included in operating expenses was $10,853 less in July, 1940, than in the same month last year. While net income of $48,833 showed an apparent improvement as compared with $18,954 a year ago, this change was the result of the adjustments in provision for taxes and injuries and damages.

Seven-Month Comparison

	1940	1939
Operating revenues	$7,410,316	$6,922,821
Operating expenses	5,137,182	4,753,700
Taxes	639,159	656,833
Depreciation	795,622	780,642
Total operating expenses and depreciations	6,571,964	6,191,176
Operating income	838,352	731,645
Nonoperating income	26,933	31,015
Gross income (less operating expenses, taxes and depreciation)	865,286	762,661
Deduction from gross income	423,188	429,014
Net income	442,100	333,646

Coal Industry Maps Fight on New Pipeline

Pittsburgh, Aug. 23 (AP).—Coal producers and miners have joined in mapping a fight against a proposed $80,000,000 pipeline to link Texas natural gas fields with Eastern markets, branding as "pure hypocrisy" claims the project would further the national defense program.

Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers, said last night:

"More than sufficient solid fuel (hard and soft coal) is available in the Eastern States to provide energy for the national defense program."

Kennedy said thousands of coal miners now are working two and three days a week and that production could be stepped up quickly by increasing their working time.

Byron H. Canon, executive secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association declared the 'pipline, proposed by the Reserve Gas Pipe Line Co. of Dallas, Tex., was "unnecessary."

Both men said their organizations would oppose the Dallas company's application to the Federal Power Commission for a certificate of "public convenience and necessity" authorizing construction and operation of the pipeline.

July Air Traffic Sets New Record

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—Air lines of the United States flew 101,881,075 revenue passenger miles in July—an all-time high—the Air Transport Association of America reported today.

In June, the previous record month, the figure was 101,172,222 revenue passenger miles. The July total was 54.32 per cent higher than in July, 1939, and the total for the first seven months of 1940 was 61.15 per cent above the same period last year.

British Purchase Entire South Africa Wool Clip

Pretoria, Union of South America, Aug. 23 (AP).—Great Britain was reliably reported today to have bought the entire wool clip of the Union of South America at 10¾ pence (about 18 cents) a pound.

(The New York wool top market turned strong after a weak opening following the British contract. Buying and covering took place immediately, shoving prices up as much as .4 to .8 of a cent a pound above yesterday's close.)

New York Dry Goods

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Trading in the Worth street gray goods market today followed a session in which 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 yards of print cloth and related items were purchased by large converters and printers.

The buying rush was touched off yesterday by the prospect of Government orders. Private buyers went into the market, concentrating their business in a few houses with plentiful stocks.

Most of the orders were placed for near delivery, although some named September and October.

Full prices were reported paid with 38½-inch 5.35-yard prints moving at 6¾ cents a yard and 39-inch 80x80 4.00-yard at 4¾ cents, although late in the day quotations on the latter construction were announced ¼ cent a yard.

Government Remedies Deal With Symptoms Not Causes

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
International News Service Economic Commentator.

A nation is weakened by the delusion that the way to salvation is to pass a law. Living standards, which measure the material well-being of the people, are not created by legislative fiats.

On the contrary, tangible economic progress is made through the achievements of the creative mind in the realm of science and invention, as organized by industry.

Mr. Rukeyser

At best, legislative rules can only allocate the distribution of the fruits of thrift and industry.

Governmental activity constitutes an overhead cost for the productive side of a nation, and when politicians sneer at businessmen they are tending to bite the hand that feeds them.

In his chosen role of debunker, Wendell L. Willkie, who is a businessman on sabbatical leave, pointed out that liberalism includes the ability to make things.

That was a plea for the return of the creative spirit, and an effort to revive the American dream.

In the dismal decade of depression, there has been a vast inflation in the United States of the concept of Government.

This was exemplified not only in prodigious governmental spending and unprecedentedly high peacetime rates of taxation, but also in a tendency to believe that the after the Wall Street panic, former be substituted for the thrift and initiative of individual citizens.

There is to some degree bipartisan responsibility for the great expansion of the activity of Government.

The seeds for the new deal were curiously enough sown in the Hoover Administration. Shortly after the Wall street panic, former President Hoover called a White House conference of industrial and labor leaders, and sought himself to direct the curves on the chart of future business. Instead of permitting nature to take its course, he tried to use the prestige of high office to effect a truce between capital and labor against wage readjustments, on the one hand, and he exacted a plea from management, on the other, to keep up capital expenditures on a normal basis irrespective of the economic storm signals in the Wall Street panic.

Out of this concept that somehow Government leadership could straighten out the economic maladjustments came the Reconstruction Finance Corporation under Hoover. Mr. Hoover's successor carried out these tentative efforts to the nth degree.

From an economic standpoint, these remedies were largely ineffectual because they dealt with symptoms rather than causes. They tried to peg values without fundamentally correcting the existing maladjustments and disparities, such as inequality between industry and agriculture.

If out of the experience comes a new appreciation that there is no substitute for thrift and industry, then long-term progress will have been made. The exposure of the futility of monetary and other manipulative panaceas has a definite educational value. The material strength of a nation in peace and in war is related to its capacity to make things, not by its mere glibness in coining phrases and in playing with theories.

Business has much to contribute to popular understanding through creating the habit of looking at national affairs through the impartial eyes of social bookkeeping in double entry form. The science of numbers accurately measures realities and helps to dispel fantasies.

British Paper Money Floods N. Y. Market

U. S. Holders Dump Bank Notes in Fear If Import Ban

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 23.—Holders of British currency stampeded the foreign money market today to get rid of their bank notes before an August 27 deadline set by the British treasury.

The treasury banned the import of bank notes after August 27 on the theory Germany had seized quantities of currency in France and other German-dominated nations.

A veteran dealer in overseas paper money and coins said today's turnover in cash sterling was the largest in his 26 years in the business. He estimated about £75,000 to £100,000 changed hands.

Price for the actual currency was strong to around $3.50 for one pound. Immediately after the announcement from London on Wednesday, the price dropped to nearly $3 but recovered when it was learned holders had until August 27 to dispose of such money.

Dealers pointed out there is no connection between actual currency and the "free" or "official" price for sterling, both around $4.

Temperature Drop Broadens Interest In Autumn Goods

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Business shows "a few signs of moderate quickening," Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today in its weekly trade review.

"Retailers," said the mercantile agency, "reported a broader interest in new fall merchandise accompanying the drop in temperatures.

"There were some expansions in wholesale quarters for finished goods, although no noticeable change in merchants' cautious attitude toward future commitments. . . .

"With the quickening of retail turnover, reorders on ready-to-wear lines took the spotlight. Calls from stores in the heavy-industry areas were said to be especially numerous. . . . Orders on bridal and bridesmaids' apparel were reported to be in larger volume than usual at this season. . . .

Concerning retail trade, the survey reported "Increases in sales volume over the 1939 level were reported by all major regions of the country this week and the average gain for all was estimated at between 8 and 11 per cent."

Sperry Corp. Earnings Leap To $2,469,576

Army-Navy Supplier Nets $2 a Share In Six Months

By the Associated Press

The Sperry Corporation yesterday reported a profit of $4,028,294, equal to $2 a share of capital stock for the six months ended June 30, against $2,469,576, to $1.23 a share for the same period last year.

The company, a manufacturer of gun-fire controls, Gyro compasses and other equipment which has its major outlet in the Army and Navy, the aviation industry and the merchant marine, said that financial statements of its British subsidiary were not included in its semiannual report.

Heavy British taxes, said the report, have reduced net income of the foreign subsidiary to "a comparatively small amount."

Erie Railroad

Erie Railroad reported net railway operating income of $1,070,501 for July compared with $568,700 in the same month last year. July operating revenues were $7,199,690 against $6,278,600 in 1939. Net operating income for the seven months ending July 31 was $6,208,611 compared with $4,768,392 in 1939.

American Bosch Corporation

American Bosch Corporation reported net profit in the June quarter of $212,900, equal to 31 cents a share, compared with $170,751, or 24 cents a share, in the preceding quarter and net loss of $15,752 in the June quarter last year.

Reading Co.

The Reading Co. reported net railway operating income for July of $1,142,302, an increase of $334,083 for the same month in 1939. For the seven months ended July 31 net operating income was listed as $7,025,424, an increase of $1,203,350 for the comparable period a year ago.

Int. Hydro-Electric System

International Hydro-Electric System for the June quarter showed net income of $175,035, against $296,750 in the comparable 1939 quarter.

American Power & Light Co.

American Power & Light Co. and subsidiaries reported June quarter net income of $2,612,628, equal to 6 cents on common after preferred dividend requirements, compared with $2,004,017, or $1.24 on $6 preferred and $1.04 on $5 preferred, in the June quarter last year. The company is part of the Electric Bond & Share System.

Hayes Manufacturing Co.

Hayes Manufacturing Corporation and subsidiary showed net loss of $58,162 in the June quarter, against net loss of $66,788 in the comparable 1939 period. The company makes automobile bodies.

Ingersoll-Rand Co.

Ingersoll-Rand Co. estimated net profit for the first half year at $3,130,661 after provision of $1,616,525 for possible losses on European investments, equal to $3.13 a common share after preferred dividends. No comparison was available because this was the first half-yearly statement issued by the company.

Pepperell Manufacturing Co.

Pepperell Manufacturing Co., textile makers, earned net income of $1,121,505 in the fiscal year ended June 30, equal to $11.50 a capital share, compared with $871,432, or $8.71 a share, in the preceding year. Mills are in Maine, Alabama, Georgia and Massachusetts.

Illinois Central System

The Illinois Central System reported net railway operating income for July of $523,706, a decrease of $489,096 from the same month a year ago. Net railway operating income for the seven months ended July 31 totaled $6,433,915, a decrease of $407,758 from the corresponding 1939 period.

Penn.-Central Airlines

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines reported net profit for July was $43,987 as compared to $13,111 during July, 1939. Net profit for the first seven months was $166,484 after provision for Federal and State income taxes of $45,500.00, compared with a net profit of $18,444.66 for the same period last year.

Profit Taking Sidetracks Bull Movement; Pivotal Issues Back Up 1 to 3 Points

New York, Aug. 23.—The bull movement which some had believed was under way in security markets became sidetracked today as the professional crowd took profits accumulated over the rising levels in the five preceding sessions. While the list steadied late in the day, losses of 1 to 3 points were well distributed at the close. Some of the bonds which have been going up briskly in the wake of equities also backed up, with rails the weakest in the domestic corporate section. Canadian bonds gave up some of their recent gains.

Aircraft Shares Softer

Aircrafts, which were featured in the overnight news as the most blooming of industries, planning new expansions and new superplanes as well as being in receipt of fabulous contracts, were among the softest stocks in the entire list. But the descent of shares on good news was a common experience. For example, the motor division met little or no support, although Ward's reported a further gain in assemblies as more manufacturers opened production of the 1941 models; merchandising stocks faded in the face of generally favorably sales reports, and steels sank, although observers agreed the companies are making money, will step up production further after Labor Day and are in for a long period of activity.

In the direction of either international or national events the news could be considered encouraging to business and the financial outlook.

Canada List Firm

Canadian mining issues which had featured the rise of the previous day were an exception to the run of stocks, being steady to higher. This, it was assumed, reflected Canadian buying, either in New York or north of the border. International Nickel was an example, being the second most active issue of the day, ending 1¼ points up at 27¾ on sales of 9,700 shares. Nash-Kelvinator was the day's leader with a gain of ⅝, an important rise for such a low priced stock.

Newmont Mining, which has large blocks of Canadian mining issues in its investment portfolio, made a new high before it receded. American Can firmed a point while Telephone, Cocony-Vacuum and Union Pacific added fractions.

Among pivotals which were among the most active shares, General Motors lost 1¼, Chrysler 2¾, Bethlehem Steel, 2¼; Steel common 1¼ International Paper & Power preferred, 1; New York Central Anaconda, down half a point each. Others to lost a point or more included American Smelting, duPont, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide and Westinghouse Electric.

Retail Trade Better

Among the business news were items estimating retail trade 8 to 11 per cent ahead of a year ago with the likelihood of further gains in the fall when defense spending gathers momentum; and an estimate by the Department of Agriculture that farm income for the calendar year will be sharply higher than for 1939 and at the best level since 1937.

At the close the 100 stocks were down 0.42 point net on sales of 294,460 shares in 563 issues, of which 304 declined, 113 advanced and 146 were unchanged.

Bonds Also Weaken

Declining prices were the rule in the listed bond market, but a few issues resisted the tendency. Some profit-taking probably developed in the speculative rails and the Canadian issues, which recently enjoyed a sizable advance. United States Treasury obligations were down by smallest fractions, and best rated corporate bonds also held close to previous levels. Trading in all bonds amounted to $3,080,000 par value.

Fresh activity developed in Canadian securities, owing to the indications of close political cooperation. After a fairly firm start, Canadian government bonds drifted lower, and closed 1 to 3 points off for the day. This still leaves them sharply higher for the week. Australian bonds were soft, while movements were small in German and Italian securities and the issues of the German-occupied countries. Argentine bonds dipped on the political tangle there, while other Latin Americaps idled.

Speculative rails of our domestic corporate list were inclined to lose a little of their recent gains, but the losses seldom exceeded a point and there were a few contrary moves. The holding company groups were dull, and share privilege issues receded modestly. Communications bonds were better.

Washington Area Store Sales Lead Nation in Climb

With an increase of 17 per cent over last year, department store sales in the Richmond district showed the sharpest advance in the Nation during the week ended August 17. Washington is in the Richmond district.

For the Nation, the Federal Reserve Board estimated yesterday that store sales in the week ended August 17 were 7 per cent larger than in the corresponding week last year.

In the week ended August 10, sales had been 8 per cent more than a year ago, and for the four weeks ended August 17, they averaged 6 per cent more than in the similar portion of 1939.

Increases over a year ago by the Federal Reserve districts for the one week ended August 17 were:

Boston, 4; New York, 7; Philadelphia, 16; Cleveland, 11; Richmond, 17; Atlanta, 7; Chicago, 7; St. Louis, 8; Kansas City, 2; Dallas, 6, and San Francisco, 1 per cent.

In the Minneapolis area, sales were 1 per cent under a year ago.

Army in Market, Boston Wool Prices Advance Sharply

Boston, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The wool trade came smartly up on its toes Thursday, with the announcement from Philadelphia that the Army would open bids on September 3 for an additional 7,840,000 yards of Army overcoatings, serges and flannels. Prices immediately were advanced in many shops and some sales were effected at 2 to 5 cents, clean basis, above last week but chiefly on wools that might be termed specialties. The market, however, is generally stronger and hopeful that civilian business may now improve.

"Western operations have been few and far between this week with prices hardly changed as compared with a week ago. Growers aware of the Government orders, however, are very firm in their asking prices."

Customers' Men Ask Professional Status on Work

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Customer brokers—once known about Wall street as customers' men—want to be classified as professional men under the Federal law fixing wage and hour standards.

"Our work cannot be restricted in well-defined channels nor limited to certain hours any more than the work of a doctor, lawyer or other professional man," said Allyn C. Donaldson, chairman of the legal committee of the Association of Customers' Brokers.

The executive committee of the association drafted a petition asking the administrator of the law to exempt customers' brokers as engaged in work "of a professional nature."

Grains, Cotton Depressed on Profit Taking

Wheat Hardest Hit, Dropping ¾ to 1½ Cents a Bushel

By the Associated Press

The major trend in commodity futures markets yesterday was downward but a few staples, affected by special circumstances, improved.

At Chicago wheat dropped ¾ to 1½ cents a bushel. Main depressants were profit-taking and liquidation of September contracts, which are deliverable in about a week. Corn dipped ⅛ to ½ cent.

Copper lost nearly 1-10 cent a pound and smaller recessions showed for cocoa, cottonseed oil and Santos coffee.

Wool tops improved after news Britain would buy all the Australian wool crop "for the duration" and a year afterward. Sugar responded to hopes Washington might do something to relieve the present overburdened market. Hides also moved up moderately. Rubber and silk shifted unevenly.

The Associated Press Index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, advanced to 69.54 from 69.49 Thursday.

Building Trade Could Handle Vast Expansion

Local Survey Indicates Extent of Unplumbed Productive Capacity

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Fifty architects and 55 general contracting firms of Washington can perform more than $145,000,000 worth of work in a year, according to a survey just completed by Washington Building Congress. It was undertaken for the purpose of estimating resources of the constructing industry in metropolitan Washington, in men and productive capacity, and its possibilities for expansion if required by the national defense program.

In announcing results, Henry A. Johns, chairman of the congress' industry survey committee, reminds it should be understood that data represents approximate figures, based in many cases, upon opinions of chairmen representing respective sections of the building industry.

Purpose in assembling the data, he explains, was to obtain a general picture of the local situation and to set up machinery for getting more specific information about any branch of the construction industry which Government agencies connected with the defense program may find necessary.

Mr. Johns says that care was exercised in choosing sub-chairmen who were familiar with the local building situation through many years of experience in their particular field and in whose judgment, the organization had confidence.

Reporting for architects, Sub-Chairman Irwin S. Porter lists 50, explaining that while there are 228 architects registered in the District (174 being from Washington and vicinity), many of these work for Government agencies or are draftsmen in offices of architectural firms and could be of no assistance in government defense work. Probably about a dozen of the 50 could handle any type of emergency work and the entire 50 could do $75,000,000 work in a year.

Sub-Chairman Victor R. Beauchamp reporting for the general contractors, states there are 55 organized, equipped to conduct and familiar with Government work. Twenty of these could perform annually work ranging in value from $50,000 to $200,000; ten, $200,000 to $500,000; ten, $500,000 to $1,000,000; ten, $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 and five, more than $5,000,000 worth of work a year.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Greyhound Terminal of Washington, Inc., 1110 New York avenue northwest, Washington, D. C., Plaintiff, vs. The Unknown heirs of Edward Fox, Jr., et al., defendants. Civil Action No. 6417. Order of publication. The object of this suit is to obtain a decree establishing of record plaintiff's title by adverse possession to a parcel of land situate in the District of Columbia and known as lot 26 in L. H. Schneider's subdivision in square 316 as per plat recorded in Book 12 at page 160 of the records of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, and part of Lot Eye in William Bulat's subdivision of land in square 316, as per plat recorded in Book N. K. page 266 of the records of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, being the south 4 inches front on Twelfth street by the depth of lot lettered Eye. Upon motion of the plaintiff it is by the court this 7th day of August, 1940, ordered that the defendants, the unknown heirs of Edward Fox, Jr., Martha Ann Ewing, Helen R. Turner, Hattie T. Ashlum, Louisa J. Foote, Helen G. Ross, Lavinia L. Murphy, Leonard H. Lyne, or their unknown heirs, and the unknown heirs of William Mayne cause their appearance to be entered herein on or before the first rule day occurring after the expiration of the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, from the date of the first publication hereof, otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in the case of default. Provided a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day, other and longer publication being dispensed with for satisfactory cause shown by the plaintiff. JAS. M. MORRIS, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By ELEANOR E. JOSE, Assistant Clerk. 10.17.24

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

"This is getting awfully monotonous—I wish I could hear one divorce case that didn't start because of a joint checking account!"

Listen! with Glynn

Wars may envelop two-thirds of the world. Such weighty matters of public moment as the conscription bill, new taxes, the national defense, may engage most of our attention. But people still go to the movies.

And while C. B. S.'s "People's Platform," heard over WJSV at 6 p. m. each Saturday, has devoted its share of attention to the heavy problems of the day, who's to say that the discussion subject chosen for tonight isn't important, too.

It concerns the serious matter of our pleasure. And it's a matter that calls forth about as much rancor, pro and con, as any you can well imagine. It's been the subject of a Gallup Poll. In short, it's the double feature.

Heading the list of debaters on the subject is Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, known throughout the world for his "Goldwynisms," who discussed the matter at some length in the Saturday Evening Post a few weeks ago. He's against double features. The other participants are an exhibitor, two independent producers, a housewife and a member of the motion picture division of the Parent-Teacher Association. The group is evenly divided for and against the double feature idea.

The program is to come from Hollywood, if you haven't guessed that already. But we've been promised that there isn't a "yes man" in the crowd.

MICKEY FINN — The Man of the Hour! — BY LANK LEONARD

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—YOU DIDN'T KNOW THE CITY WANTED THAT LAND FOR A PARK! OF COURSE YOU DIDN'T!— BUT MUFF DID! SO HE BOUGHT IT CHEAP AND THEN SOLD IT TO THE CITY FOR $100,000 OF THE TAXPAYERS' MONEY!
AND HERE'S ANOTHER THING THAT PROVES WHAT A CHISELER HE IS—SOMETHING'S GONE WRONG, BOSS—THE BOYS SHOULD'VE STARTED THROWIN' STUFF BEFORE THIS!
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT!
THAT MUST BE WHAT WE'VE BEEN WAITIN' FOR, BOSS!
SHUT UP, YOU FOOL! HE'S FINISHED—AND THAT'S CHEERING WE HEAR!!
ROAR!
YOOOO-OW WHOOPEE!
'RAY FOR FINN!
ATTA BOY PHIL--YOU TOLD HIM!

DIXIE DUGAN — Manners — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOUR MANNERS?!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Reinforcements — BY FRANK V. MARTINEK

SCENE-A FAMILIAR INTERIOR IN CALCUTTA-THE OFFICE OF WINSLOW'S OLD BUDDY, CHO SAN.
A CABLE FROM LOS ANGELES? BUT WHAT—?
TASMIA! DON'T YOU RECOGNIZE THIS STRANGE CODE? AT LAST WE HAVE A MESSAGE FROM THE SCORPION!
SHADES OF THE PROPHET! TRANSLATED IT READS, "I'M PREPARING TO SMASH AMERICA'S DEFENSE PROGRAM!"
AND THAT'S NOT ALL! HE ORDERS US TO JOIN HIM IMMEDIATELY. WE'RE TO HELP WITH HIS CAMPAIGN OF DESTRUCTION!
WHILE IN THE WORKSHOP OF THE ZENITH AIRPLANE COMPANY—
NEW TYPE BOMBERS FOR THE U.S. NAVY! HA! HA! IF MY PLAN WORKS THEY'LL TURN INTO DEATH TRAPS!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

HERE ARE THE KASBAR OIL CONTRACTS FOR YOUR GOVERNMENT, MISS BARCLAY!
THANK YOU, EMPRESS ZORENA! BUT I CANNOT ACCEPT THEM IF IT MEANS ANY HARM IS TO BEFALL STEVE ROPER!
YOU SHALL ACCEPT THEM—AND MORE!
YOU SHALL STAND BY AND APPLAUD MY SKILL WITH THE WHIP, WHILE I CUT MY SIGNATURE ON THE FACE OF YOUR HANDSOME LOVER!
BUT—EMPRESS! YOU ARE WRONG! MR. ROPER MEANS NOTHING TO ME!
YOUR CLUMSY LIES DO NOT DECEIVE ME! THOUGH HE GOES AWAY WITH YOU, HE SHALL BEAR FOREVER THE BRAND OF ZORENA ON EACH CHEEK! STAND BACK!!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

BUT, KING, TH' SHARK'LL GET ME FOR HELPIN' YOU!
THEN FOR YOUR OWN PROTECTION AND SALLY'S—WE'VE GOT TO MAKE SURE HE'S CAPTURED!
I KNOW TH' SHARK! HE AN' HIS GANG ARE TOO POWERFUL... ---THEY'LL KILL YOU, TOO!
DAD, LOOK! A STEAMER! IT'S THE SCORPION!
THE SCORPION! KING, THAT'S SHARK'S BOAT!

On the program with him will be Miss Edith Jarboe, who will speak on "The Sign of the Cross," Mrs. Agnes Stewart and A. J. Garrigan. At all meetings there are no collections. The public is invited to attend these meetings and to question the speakers.

Accent on Youth

Ninth Street Church Junior Choir to Make Second N. Y. World Fair Appearance Sept. 1

The Rev. Wesley Sadler to Address Lutheran Leagues

The 36-voiced junior choir of the Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D streets northeast, which scored a hit at the New York World's Fair last year, has been invited to sing there again on Sunday, September 1.

In preparation for that occasion, vocally and financially, the organization will present a preview concert at the church services tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. Proceeds will help defray expenses of the trip. Dr. Clifford H. Jope, pastor, directs the choir, which he organized in 1931.

The first half of the concert at the Temple of Religion will be heard over the Columbia network from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

Fred Forney, ministerial student and member of the Ninth Street congregation, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Ye Must Be Born Again." He is one of several seminarians who have been filling the pulpit during August.

The Rev. Wesley L. Sadler will present an illustrated talk on Christian missions in Central America before the combined Luther Leagues of Luther Place Memorial Church tomorrow at 7 p. m. Member of the spring graduating class at Gettysburg Theological Seminary, he has been commissioned by the United Luthern Church Board of Missions as missionary to Liberia, Africa.

Elihu Frick, 414 Edgewood street, Arlington, Va., tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. will play host to the young people of Calvary Methodist Church. Foundry Methodist youths will conduct services at the Central Union Mission, with Arthur Fleming, of the Civil Service Commission, as speaker. Miss Angel Gillis will conduct the Epworth League devotions tomorrow at 7 p. m. at Union Methodist Church and the Rev. Marion S. Michael will speak. A tea is set for 6:30 p. m.

Young people of National City Christian Church will meet tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. in the Vermont avenue building, with Clifford Weare in charge.

Presentation of historical sketches of old hymn favorites will feature the Christian Endeavor program tomorrow at 6:15 p. m. at Central Presbyterian Church. Laura Gibbs will conduct the meeting.

Petworth Methodist young people will conduct the first half of the combined service tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., with Ray Rice leading, Mary King reading Scripture, and Grace Cudmore offering devotions.

Scores of members of the Potomac Federation of the Luther Leagues of the American Lutheran Churches in Washington will attend the convention of the Luther Leagues of the Eastern district of the American Lutheran Church from August 30 to September 1 at Hickory, N. C.

They will come from St. Matthew's, Grace, Takoma, Faith (Arlington), and Christ (Bethesda) Lutheran congregations. The convention's subject will be "Forward in Faith," suggestive of the theme of the tenth anniversary of the formation of the American Lutheran Church being celebrated this year.

To Sing at Vespers

A chorus from Lincoln Road Methodist Church, directed by William T. Stevens will sing at the 4 o'clock vespers tomorrow at the Little Church of Fort Lincoln, Bladensburg road and the District line. "Heaven" will be the Rev. Dale Crowley's sermon topic.

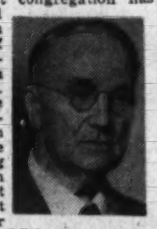
Sing at Services

The childrens choir will sing at the morning services tomorrow at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church. Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood, pastor, will conduct services.

Church of the Week

Disciples of Christ Launch Congregation in Bethesda

Pacing the tremendous commercial and residential growth of Montgomery County, a new Disciples of Christ congregation has been launched there through the efforts of the denomination's leaders in the Capital area.



REV. MR. ORAM

Known as the Christ Memorial Christian church the group is meeting temporarily in the parsonage at 4416 East-West highway under the direction of the Rev. William G. Oram, who was released from his post as assistant pastor of Ninth Street Christian Church to begin the project.

The fourth service of the congregation will be held tomorrow at 3:30 p. m., when the Rev. Mr. Oram will preach on "God's Care of His Children." First services began on Sunday, August 4.

According to the Rev. Mr. Oram, the Bethesda project has been contemplated for some time, but decision to proceed did not come until two months ago, when a committee was appointed to study a location for the congregation.

It included the Rev. Arthur P. Wilson, pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church; the Rev. Fred L. Miller, pastor of Mount Rainier Christian Church, and the Rev. J. V. Lilly, pastor of Rockville Christian Church.

Others boosting the project are Dr. Clifford H. Jope, Ninth Street Christian Church pastor; William M. Norment, president of the Capital Area Missionary Society of the denomination, and Henry Brewood, president of its Capital Area Convention.

Mr. Oram, who yesterday predicted a great future for the denomination's work in Montgomery County, said regular Sunday school and morning and evening worship services are being planned for the fall. The present afternoon service hour is temporary. His will be the first branch of the Disciples of Christ Church in lower Montgomery County.

Formal organization of the congregation may possibly come in the early spring, he pointed out, explaining that the charter membership is now being built up. Mr. Oram, who is married, is owner of the parsonage dwelling.

Immediately prior to coming to Ninth Street Christian Church four years ago, Mr. Oram was for 13 years pastor of the Gainesville (Fla.) Christian Church. The University of Florida is located there.

He is a graduate of Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., where he received his B.A. and M.A. degrees, and the University of Chicago, where he took his bachelor of divinity degree.

Falls Church Pastor to Talk At Brookland

The Rev. John G. Sadtler, of Falls Church, Va., will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Our Saviour Episcopal Church, Brookland. Holy Communion will be observed at 7:30 a. m., and church school services at 9:30 a. m.

Washington Cathedral—The last of a series of sermons by diocesan clergy at the people's evensong rites will be preached tomorrow at 4 p. m. by Dr. T. F. Opie, of Olney, rector of St. Bartholomew's Parish, Laytonsville, Md.

The Rev. William M. Bradner, canon precentor, will preach at the 11 o'clock service.

Other services tomorrow will be Holy Communion in Bethlehem Chapel at 7:30 and 9:30 a. m.

Ascension — The Rev. Harold Lounsbury will have charge of the service at the Church of the Ascension tomorrow. At 8 a. m., there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion, and at 11 o'clock, morning prayer and sermon.

St. John's—The Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, curate, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. Holy Communion will be at 8 a. m. Services for the week will be Communion on Wednesday at 7:30 a. m., and on Thursday at 12 noon.

St. Columba's—Apostle Day will be observed today with Holy Communion at 7 a. m. The Rev. E. A. Le Moine tomorrow at 11 a. m. will continue his sermons on "The Beatitudes" Communion will be at 7:30 a. m.

Special Retreat Meeting

Mrs. Leo Kelly, president of the Washington Retreat League, has called a special meeting of all parish team captains tomorrow at her home, 117 Monroe avenue, Rivdale, Md., to plan for the annual communion breakfast at the Mayflower Hotel Sunday, September 29. Committees to assist General Chairman Mrs. Francis E. Smith, jr., will be named.

Md. Pastor To Fill Pulpit HereTomorrow

The Rev. Wendell S. Tredwick, jr., pastor of the Warner Memorial Presbyterian Church, Kensington, Md., will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Western Presbyterian Church in place of Dr. Harvey Dunham, who is vacationing.

Westminster Memorial. "Is Your Religion Second-hand?" will be the Rev. Harry V. Porter's sermon-theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Catholic Guild Plans Meeting in Manassas

Doctrines of the Catholic Church will be explained by Washington Catholic Evidence Guild speakers at a meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Courthouse Square, Manassas, Va. They will include Purgatory, the Divinity of Christ, the Sin of Adam and Indifference.

Charles E. Ferry, veteran guild speaker, will be in charge of the meeting, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Raney, C. G. Klimowicz and Clemens Poiesz.

Queries on the teachings of the Catholic Church will be welcomed and answered. In event of inclement weather, the meeting will be held in the All Saints Catholic Church. There will be no collection, the guild states, and the public is invited.

N. Y. Pastor to Speak

The Rev. Dale DeWitt, of New York City, will address union churches tomorrow services of All Souls' Unitarian, Mount Pleasant Congregational and Universalist National Memorial churches tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the first-named place. He is regional director of the Middle Atlantic States Council of Unitarian Churches.

1,500 Expected At Religious Parley Here

12th Youth Conclave Of Church of God Will Open Today

More than 1,500 young people from the United States and foreign countries are expected to attend the Twelfth International Youth Convention of the Church of God, opening today at First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest. It will continue through Tuesday.

The keynote address will be delivered tonight at 8 o'clock by Dr. W. A. Miller, president of the convention. The daily programs will begin at 8 a. m.

Dr. J. A. Morrison, for 20 years president of Anderson College, Anderson, Ind., will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. as guest of the convention.

His message, "Growing Up Into Christ," will be heard during the church's regular service, which is being combined with the program of the convention.

R. C. Caudill, of Middletown, Ohio, will speak tomorrow at 2 p. m. and Dale Oldham, of Dayton, Ohio, at 8 p. m.

Dr. Walter Judd, famous Congregational medical missionary to China and champion of the China cause in its struggle against Japan, will address the convention on Monday at 8 p. m., speaking on "The Call of the World's Needs." Dr. L. Foster Wood, home relations authority of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, will lead two discussions on Tuesday.

Others who will participate include Edith Young, teacher in the Jamaica Institute, Jamaica, British West Indies; the Rev. and Mrs. Lester Crose, from Syria; Mona Moors, supervisor of "The S. S. S. Shelter," a home for girls in Cuttack, India; the Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Ludwig, Africa; the Rev. and Mrs. R. Olsen, Denmark, and the Rev. and Mrs. R. Ring, Sweden.

The Rev. Esther M. Boyer, pastor of the local congregation of the Church of God and vice president of the youth convention, is in charge of its local arrangements.

J. E. Ackerman Turns to Study Of Divinity

J. Emory Ackerman, Christian Endeavor and Sunday school worker, has resigned his clerical position at the National Biscuit Co. here to begin preparation for a ministerial career.

ACKERMAN

Lifetime member of the Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, Ninth street and Maryland avenue northeast, he will enter the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., on September 10 for a three-year theological course.

A native of Washington and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ackerman, 1333 C street northeast, he was graduated from Eastern High School in 1932 and from Maryland University in 1938, majoring in business administration and specializing in accounting. He was secretary-treasurer of Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting fraternity.

He has served as recreational and assistant recreational superintendent of the District Endeavor Union, and led organization of the union's bowling league, of which he has been official scorer for ten years. He also has been local representative of the Christian Endeavor World, and literature superintendent of the local union.

Mr. Ackerman served several official posts on the Keller Church Christian Endeavor Societies, and has been delegate to the International Endeavor conventions on several occasions. He has been secretary of the junior department and registrar of the Keller Sunday school. He also has been interested in Luther League activities.

Recreational Leaders Open Institute Monday

Scores of church youths will learn more about the art of making interesting social and recreational programs at the Church Recreational Leaders' Institute opening on Monday at the Y. M. C. A. Camp Letts, Edgewater, Md. It will close on September 2.

The institute will be sponsored by the District of Columbia Sunday School Association, the D. C. Federation of B. Y. P. U.'s; the D. C. Christian Endeavor Union and the Methodist Young People, and held under the auspices of the Religious Work and Physical Education departments of the Central "Y."

Leaders will include Walter E. Kirker, director of Physical Education, the Harrisburg Y. M. C. A.; the Rev. Walton L. MacMillan, assistant pastor of Grace Baptist Church here and camp pastor; Ralph W. Foster, director of the Physical Education the Central "Y," and others.

Dr. Rasmussen to Deliver Farewell Sermon Tomorrow

Washington will say au revoir to one of its most distinguished clergymen tomorrow, as Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen delivers his farewell sermon as pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle. "Benediction" will be his theme.

Dr. Rasmussen

The congregation will show its appreciation for a decade of devoted service with the presentation of a gift to him and his family at the service tomorrow. A group of new members will be welcomed.

Dr. Rasmussen, who will become professor of systematic theology at the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., has enjoyed a fruitful pastorate at the local church.

Through his untiring efforts and zeal, nearly 1,800 members have been received in ten years; the church indebtedness has been reduced by two-thirds, and extensive church improvements made. Shortly after his arrival here, a system of church council visitation was begun, which has brought closer fellowship between members of the congregation.

He has served as president of the Washington Federation of Churches and of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America. Gettysburg College once sought his services as professor of religious education.

Georgetown—"I Was a Leper" has been chosen as the Rev. Harold E. Beatty's sermon theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Reformation—The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor, will preach at the three services tomorrow. He will speak at 8:30 and 11 a. m. on "The Inescapable God" and at 8:15 p. m. on "Eyes Above the Dust."

St. Mark's—The Rev. J. Luther Frantz' sermon theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m. will be "Such As I Have."

Atonement—The Rev. James Powers, assistant pastor, will conduct the 9:30 o'clock service tomorrow, and the Rev. Howard E. Snyder the 11 o'clock rites.

St. Paul's—The Rev. Henry W. Snyder, jr., will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Henry W. Snyder, his subject being "Men, Not Temples." John Charles Thomas, of Washington, will sing as a solo, "Service," by Cadman.

Dr. and Mrs. Snyder, who are spending their vacation at Ocean Grove, N. J., will return early in September.

Grace—Back from his vacation, Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, tomorrow at 8:45 and 11 a. m., will continue his sermon series on "Great Truths from the Old Testament," discussing "Conscription Day in Ancient Israel."

Presbyterians Gain 43,806 In Membership

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—The largest net increase in the communicant membership of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America since 1923 and the largest total communicant membership in its history were registered during the past year, according to the annual statistics of the church. The figures were made public here today by the Rev. Dr. William Barrow Pugh, the stated clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly. They cover the church year ended March 31, 1940.

During the year the net gain in communicant membership was 43,806. The total communicant membership is now 2,021,901.

All Presbyterian membership statistics are based solely on the number of communicants remaining in full standing, according to the strict rules of the church relating to membership. They are based neither on the number of baptized members nor on the Presbyterian population. This broader constituency of the church, its "population," is estimated at 5,000,000.

107,653 Received in Year

Church members received during the year on profession of their Christian faith total 107,653, the largest number recorded in the past 11 years. Members received on certificate of transfer from other churches number 57,843, the largest number in nine years.

An increase also of $1,980,580 in contributions by the 8,775 churches is revealed in the annual statistics. The total of these contributions was $41,862,860, a larger amount than had been reported for eight years.

In addition to the net communicant membership of 2,021,901, the church enrolls 9,573 ordained ministers. Offiers of the local 8,775 churches, who are enrolled among the communicant members, include 52,720 elders and 25,714 deacons. The Sunday school membership is 1,472,666.

With local churches in every State, the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America continues to be, as it has been since its formal organization early in the eighteenth century, the national Presbyterian Church.

Of the $41,862,860 contributed by the local churches, $34,794,358 was used for local church expenses. Benevolence budget causes during the year received from living givers $5,045,936. This total was distributed among the official benevolence agencies as follows:

National Missions (maintaining work throughout the United States and its territorial possessions), $2,235,228.

Foreign Missions (maintaining missions in 16 foreign countries), $2,113,981.

American Bible Society, $23,455.

Federal Council of Churches, $8,186.

The per capita giving of the church during the year was $21.20. Last year the per capita figure was $20.65.

Baptists Will Break Ground For School

Mrs. Emory Talbert, who recalls having attended organization of the East Washington Heights Baptist Sunday school almost 50 years ago, tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. will turn first earth for its new $32,000 Sunday school structure.

Groundbreaking, to take place on the northeast corner of the church at Branch and Alabama avenues southeast, will follow services in the auditorium, when Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention, will speak, and Elgin Smith, the convention's treasurer, bring greetings.

Led by Clifford H. Jenkins, Sunday school superintendent, a procession of scholars, teachers and others will march from the auditorium to the groundbreaking site. The Rev. Glenn B. Faucett is pastor. The worship service will begin at 6 p. m.

Metropolitan. Dr. J. E. Berkstresser, of Sylacauga, Ala., will be the guest preacher in absence of Dr. John Compton Ball. His morning theme will be "The Manifestation of Eternal Life." At the evening hour he will speak on "Blessed Assurance, Jesus Is Mine."

Calvary. Dr. Solon B. Cousins, of the University of Richmond, Richmond, Va., will be the guest preacher tomorrow. He will be assisted by the Rev. Edwin H. Tuller at the morning service and by Miss Virginia Rowley and Charles Gregory at the evening service.

Chevy Chase. The Rev. Frank L. Griffin, of the local Baptist Federation, will occupy the pulpit at the 11 a. m. service. The topic will be "Unmasking the Greatest Humbug."

Brookland. "What Will You Do About It?" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. M. C. Stith tomorrow at 11 o'clock. At 8 o'clock his subject will be "Be Ready Always." The midweek Bible conference hour will be conducted by the pastor on Thursday at 8 p. m.

400 of D.C. Area Will Attend Bible Conclave

More than 400 Bible workers from many local and nearby churches will make their annual trek to Western Maryland College, Westminster, over Labor Day week-end, as the Nineteenth Annual Summer Conference of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association gets under way.

Enjoying both a vacation and spiritual retreat, they will attend discussions on class problems, worship at impressive services, hear inspiring addresses by noted religious leaders. Spare hours will be filled with tennis, golf, swimming and other recreation.

Dr. Rasmussen to Preach

"Life and Personal Religion" will be the theme of the three-day parley, opening on Saturday, and at which Dr. Frederick Stamm will deliver the main address. He is minister of the radio pulpit of the National Broadcasting Co. and pastor of the Clinton Avenue Community Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, who in September will become professor of systematic theology at the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., will deliver the annual sermon of the conclave, and Arthur R. Bodmer, director of adult work for the Pennsylvania State Council of Christian Education, will be forum leader.

Special Music Planned

Officers of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association are Page McK. Etchison, religious work director of the Central Y. M. C. A.; George E. Harris, executive secretary; William R. Schmucker, treasurer-song leader, and Lucille Shannon Etchison, pianist.

Special music for the conference again will be provided by the Petworth Baptist quartet, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Randall, Mrs. Vesta Lynn and Harold S. King, and the National Brass Quartet, that includes William L. Bachman, Charles W. Barnes, Howard B. Smith and Joseph Virga.

Enrollments may be made through Mr. Etchison, 1736 G street northwest. Total cost, including registration, is $8.

"CROWN HIM WITH MANY CROWNS"
MATTHEW BRIDGES
Crown Him with many crowns,
The Lamb upon His throne
Hark! how the heavenly anthem drowns
All music but its own
Awake my soul, and sing
Of Him Who died for thee,
And hail Him as thy matchless King
Through all eternity

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
One of the finest sacred lyrics in the language, this favorite of the Easter season was based on the words, "And on His head were many crowns."
